CROWDS ATTACK CASTLE GATES

CITY HALL EYES $94,000,000 IN STATE FUNDS

Big Sums to Be Used by New Governor.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

In cash and bonds there will be $94,000,000 in the state treasury of Illinois waiting to be spent when the next governor is inaugurated.

The Thompson-Lundin organization desires the handling of that money, and is urging the electorate to vote for Len Small. It is this organization which has issued scrip to pay current municipal bills after five years of managing city hall affairs in Chicago.

Of the total of $94,000,000, about $14,000,000 consists of current receipts for the ordinary operation of the state machinery. It is a surplus.

Another $20,000,000 has been authorized for waterways. None of those bonds have been sold.

$60,000,000 for Roads.

The remaining $60,000,000 is in the form of an approved bond issue for good roads. Not one dollar of these bonds has been sold.

Regarding this last sum Mr. Small in his announcement of his candidacy for the nomination for governor said:

"I favor and shall vigorously push to completion the development of Illinois' hard road system, which has been emphatically approved by the people."

"Vigorously push" is a phrase which any reader can interpret. If it means that Mr. Small means to begin spending this money as soon as the frost is out of the ground, following the inauguration next January, presumably the bonds will be placed on sale soon after the close of the ceremonies.

Prices Up; Bonds Down.

The $60,000,000 has not been sold because the price of road construction has jumped from $18,000 a mile to $43,000, according to the last bids received. That is one reason. Another is that federal bonds, Liberty and Victory issues, are selling from 85 to 95 cents on the dollar. These two conditions make it impossible to build the 4,800 miles of roads, which were promised the people in exchange for their approval of the bond issue.

Under such conditions Mr. Small cannot "vigorously push to completion the development of the Illinois hard road system."

He can, however, "vigorously push to completion" the expenditure of the $60,000,000 bond issue, with the result that under present conditions not more than 50 or 60 per cent of the 4,800 miles of good roads promised will be constructed. He has not indicated what communities he will select for the 60 per cent of the roads, and what 40 per cent will be left in the mud.

The state expects to complete about 300 miles of permanent roads this summer. These are being paid for from the current income of auto licenses.

The Waterways Fund.

Skip to the $20,000,000 for waterways. William Lorimer, when he was state leader, was much interested in that subject. He stumped the state, with the aid of Cicero J. Lindly, who is now reported to be working for Len Small, for the $20,000,000 bond issue. Lindly handled this subject in the constitutional convention. The provision of the proposed constitution now agreed upon will permit the state to increase that $20,000,000 to $30,000,000, regardless of what the people think about it. The provision says that the sum shall not exceed $30,000,000 without a referendum of the people. Mr. Small did not disclose his policy regarding this sum in his announcement of his candidacy.

Nor did he say anything about the surplus in the state treasury from current income. He was also silent on the way—in part—that surplus was obtained.

This surplus on July 1 totaled $16,[illegible]654. On Jan. 1 next—Omar Wright, state director of finance, predicts—there will still be a surplus of $14,000,000. This is comparable with a surplus of $307,660 in the treasury on Jan. 1, 1917, when the present state administration went into office.

State Tax Rate Reduced.

At the same time the state tax rate has been reduced. In 1917 it was 90 cents, in 1918 75 cents, and in 1919 40 cents. This 40 cents is not directly comparable with the other two rates because they were on the basis of one-third valuation, while 40 cents is on the basis of one-half valuation. To

LIEUT. KINCAID PLAIN HOOSIER, SEARCH SHOWS

'Mystery' Fades as Spy Confesses.

At least one skein of the weird, tangled narrative of the two Lieut. Arthur M. Kincaids was unraveled yesterday when a TRIBUNE reporter, visiting Orange county, Indiana, located the real Arthur M. Kincaid.

With this discovery the fantastic tale of the former student of the University of Chicago, "blood relative" of the imperial German household, descendant of the French pretender, who slew his father in a duel at Grunewald, Germany, becomes the personally related yarn of the other "Kincaid," who is Theodore Schude, suspected German spy, now under arrest by the military authoritiees in San Francisco.

Schude Confesses.

The other thread of the story is also in possession of federal agents. It was supplied by Schude, who yesterday made a full confession. He admits that he formerly was in the German intelligence service, that he came into possession of Lieut. Kincaid's papers, and, posing as that officer, collected $1,600 back pay from the authorities at the Fort Sheridan hospital.

Real Kincaid Just Plain Hoosier.

The rest of his story—not yet made public in detail—tallies, military officers say, with the other tale of high adventure heretofore attributed, even in official government documents, to the real Kincaid, a plain country Hoosier lad whose claim to royal blood extends no further than the Indiana corn fields.

Clyne Gets Warrant.

Following the confession of Schude District Attorney Clyne yesterday went before United States Commissioner Lewis F. Mason and obtained a warrant charging Schude with obtaining $1,600 by false pretenses while impersonating an officer of the United States army.

Mr. Clyne announced that he is having a thorough investigation made, not along the line of Schude's alleged spy activities or the possible implication of other soldier accomplices but on the theory that certain civilians may have been involved with Schude in a scheme to defraud the army of provisions, equipment, and money. The warrant was immediately forwarded to San Francisco for the return of Schude to Chicago for trial.

Records Tell Kincaid's Story.

Young Kincaid—the real one—left home three weeks ago to accept a job in the field with the Standard Oil Company of Texas at Iowa Park, Tex., but his story was supplied by army records and, where they are blurred by the false entries of the pseudo Kincaid, by relatives and by letters written home while he was overseas. A carbon copy of a letter, dated Jan. 19, 1920, in the files of the adjutant general's office in Washington, states:

"Records of the war department are to the effect that there is only one Arthur M. Kincaid, second lieutenant, field artillery. He was born on May 24, 1894. His home address was given as Orleans, Ind."

That is the true Arthur M. Kincaid. His father, Albert Kincaid, also was born in Orange county. So were the parents of his mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Maddock. Arthur is the youngest of a family of five children. His father died when he was a year and a half old.

Brother Makes Notable Record.

The oldest son, Charles Kincaid, now lives in Yorkville, Ill. Another son, Alvan Kincaid, made a notable record as an army flyer in France. He was shot down by a boche, recovered, and is still in the army service in Texas. Then there are two daughters, Mrs.

TWO COUGHLIN BABES FURTHER MYSTIFY POLICE

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The mystery of the kidnaping of 13 month old Baby Coughlin was intensified today when official records, coupled with the statements of persons in close touch with the family, indicated there were two Blakely Coughlins.

One was born at the Lankenau hospital on April 25, 1919, the other at the Coughlin home in Norristown. Official records at the city hall tell the birth at the hospital in this city. The sister of a servant in the Coughlin home tells of the birth there.

Still another complication was added to the mystery when examination of the records proved that the birth at the hospital was not recorded until June 5, 1920, just thirty days after the kidnaping.

On top of this the maid who says Blakely was born in the Norristown home today said her name was Wiliams after claiming for some time that it was Mendenhall. It was a Mrs. Williams, who was trapped in a Scranton (Pa.) hotel in June with a baby police thought was the Coughlin child. Mrs. Coughlin looked at a photograph of the child with no apparent show of emotion and denied it was her son.

In other words, the mystery deepens, and George C. Coughlin, grandfather of the supposed child, for whom the police have been searching for two months, told a reporter this afternoon that the newspapers were digging too deep into the private affairs of the Coughlin family.

$18 Minimum Wage for California Women, Minors

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 14.—A minimum wage of $18 weekly was set today for women and minors in California factories, except beginners, by the state industrial welfare commission. Employment of women later than 11 p. m. without express permission is prohibited. The order affects bookbinding, printing, engineers, and lithographic establishments and involves the wages of approximately 20,000 women.

Former Art Teacher Makes Beloit College Her Heir

Beloit, Wis., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The estate of Mrs. Helen Brace Emerson, former Evanston art teacher, who died here aged 81, is willed to Beloit college for maintenance of the college art collection she founded valued at $120,000. She was the widow of the late Prof. Joseph Emerson of Beloit.

3 KIDS FROM OL' SWIMMIN' HOLE WILSONS' GUESTS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—Three kids, just out of a swimming hole in Rock Creek park, were picked up today by President Wilson, treated to a forty-five minute motor ride, and dropped out at their home in town so proud the folks there could not hold them with a rope.

The trio had just come from a dip in one of the park's streams and were hiking along the roadway when they saw the White House car and recognized the president. Off came their caps and as Mr. Wilson ordered the car stopped, they timidly approached and asked how he was getting along.

"Hop in," said the president, and they hopped.

All along the ride the boys kept their eyes on the president and Mrs. Wilson. Water from tousled heads trickled over three sunburnt faces and dropped on the president's shoes. One youngster ducked to save the president's shine and apologized, but was told not to worry.

Coming down Connecticut avenue the youngest of the trio, a thin, frail lad, barely 8 years old, spied a kid he knew, and called to him by name. The youngster in the street dropped a loaf of bread and gasped.

When the kids got out all three shook hands with the president and his wife.

"So long, bo," one shouted to the secret service man on the front seat. The president smiled broadly, lifted his hat and started home.

4 IN HOME DEAF AS GEM BANDITS STEAL $30,000

Asbury Park, N. J., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Jewelry valued at from $30,000 to $40,000 was stolen from a safe in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Metzger here last night by thieves, who unlocked the combination door and escaped without leaving a single clew.

The robbery was discovered when Mr. and Mrs. Metzger returned about 10:30 o'clock last night from a bazaar.

Three servants and Mrs. Metzger's invalid mother, at home during the evening, told the police they heard no noise in the house. The servants said they went to their rooms on the third floor about 9:30.

CAMP CUSTER WILL BE SOLD; AUTO PLANT SITE?

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Camp Custer, the $16,000,000 military camp here, is ordered abandoned and salvaged, action to take place gradually. The 10th infantry will be transferred to Camp Sherman, Ohio, the 14th infantry to the Panama Canal Zone, while the miscellaneous outfits will be distributed through the various camps of the central division.

Rumor has had it for some time that certain large industries had an eye on the reservation as an ideal factory site, and that representatives of such corporations had been in Washington conferring with officials relative to acquiring the tract. Among those mentioned were the General Motors and the Ford Motor company.

Camp Custer has been declared the best military camp in the United States by all military authorities who have ever visited it. It covers about 9,000 acres and was established July 1, 1917.

During Maj. Gen. Wood's recent visit he recommended new roofs for the buildings, and a larger fund was set aside for Custer improvements.

TROOPS FIRE AND DISPERSE THE RIOTERS

Clashes in Streets; Mails Taken.

DUBLIN, Aug. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—Dublin was aroused at 9 o'clock tonight by heavy firing in the vicinity of Dublin castle, the result of a crowd attempting to rush the castle gates.

Soldiers fired over the people's heads and there were a few revolver shots from the crowd. No one was injured.

The trouble started when a crowd saw a number of soldiers of the Lancashire fusiliers who, they believe, shot a boy named Farrell during the recent riots in the city. The soldiers were pursud to the castle gates. The firing lasted ten minutes.

Attack Soldiers on Lorries.

A short time after the firing at the castle an armored car with a lorry of troops toured the principal streets. The crowds pulled some of the soldiers from the lorry. Other lorries were then sent out to pick up straggling soldiers.

The troops fired a volley over a crowd at the O'Connell bridge. Many persons took refuge in buildings. Irish volunteers finally advised the people to leave the streets.

Another daring seizure of mails from England was carried out in a thoroughfare of the city early this morning by armed men. Shortly after the mails left the railway station for the postoffice raiders intercepted the vans and removed all government correspondence. Civilian letters were left untouched.

MAY CHANGE POLICY

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[By Special Cable.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The British cabinet has been considering the Irish situation and there is a persistent rumor that the government is on the verge of a sensational change of policy. There are renewed rumors that Bonar Law will select this time to announce willingness to make much more generous concessions, even amounting to dominion rule.

All that can be said is that this move is being considered. No final decision has been made and there may be a new change of plans before Monday. The government is much worried about the reception accorded the new coercion bill not only in England, but in Ireland as well, and it is possible that its operation may be suspended pending the development of a new policy.

Surprised by Resignations.

The government has been surprised and alarmed also by the flood of resignations of positions of honor such as magistrates, lords lieutenant of counties, and privy councilors in Ireland, by men who have always been Unionists because of their opposition to coercion. These resignations in many cases were accompanied by frank announcements that they were joining the Sinn Fein.

PRINCE MAY OMIT INDIA FROM TRIP; CAUSE NOT CLEAR

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—According to advices received today by the New York branch of a well known London bank which has important financial interests in India and obtains its information from reliable sources, the British government has decided that it would not be advisable for the Prince of Wales to visit India until conditions there have become more settled.

It had been planned that the prince should hold a durbar in Delhi early in January, to celebrate the introduction of the new reform government for India.

Thieves Rob House While Cardinal Sits on Porch

Spring Lake, N. J., Aug. 14.—While Cardinal Gibbons was being entertained on the front porch of the home of Marquis Martin Maloney here last night thieves ransacked the house and escaped with a large quantity of silver plate, the police reported today. A report that some of the cardinal's belongings were taken could not be confirmed. The cardinal has been a house guest of Mr. Maloney for several days.

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—Breslau reports intercepting a Moscow wireless saying: "Russia's answer to France's recognition of Gen. Wrangel will be Russia's declaration of a state of war with France."

BY EUGENE SZATMARY.
[By Special Cable.]

WITH THE RUSSIAN ARMY NEAR MLAWA, Aug. 14.—Gen. Rewa, commander of the 12th Russian division, believes the time is coming when Russia will settle accounts with France and England if the entente refuses to recognize the soviet government and make peace.

"Lloyd George and Millerand are just playing with Russia," said Gen. Rewa. "They don't really want to make peace. And as long as Gen. Wrangel in the Crimea receives ammunition from England and money and moral support from France, we cannot believe the entente's sincerity and we cannot have peace.

"I am a former czarist captain, but I am now a confirmed bolshevist. We bolshevists believe we are bringing liberty to western Europe. That's why we will make peace only with a sovietized Poland."

Poles Start to Hear Red Peace Terms

BULLETIN.

MANCHESTER, England, Aug. 14.—(United Press.)—The prospects for an armistice between the Poles and the bolsheviki "are not rosy," according to a dispatch from the Guardian's Warsaw correspondent. The Poles plan to refuse to agree to partial disarmament, the dispatch said.

WARSAW, Aug. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—The Polish peace delegates who are to meet bolshevik representatives to discuss an armistice and peace left at dawn this morning for Minsk.

The string of automobiles carrying the delegates streamed out of the capital just as day was breaking. They are scheduled to pass the frontier east of Siedlce before 7 o'clock, where they will meet bolshevik officers, who will conduct them to Minsk.

Gen. Litowsky heads the military experts, while among the diet members of the party are Stanislaus Grabski, the national Democratic leader, and Norbert Barlicki, Socialist leader.

M. Domoski, who heads the delegation, is one of the peasant leaders.

The party left Warsaw led by three Polish officers in an army automobile which saw service in France. Three new staffs around which were wrapped white flags could be seen beside the chauffeur of this car.

Two representatives of the American relief organization, Herschel Walker of Philadelphia and Maurice Pate, received permission to accompany the Polish peace mission. They will confer with the bolshevist authorities regarding the treating of 300,000 children formerly cared for by the Americans but now within the bolshevist lines.

WARSAW, Aug. 12. — Delayed. — Gladislaw Okencki and Maj. Stamirowski, Poland's armistice envoys. In the early morning the Polish delegates were taken before Commissar Mulin at Losice.

After finally agreeing that the conference should be held on Sunday night the two delegates returned to Warsaw to find the local population which remained when the majority left the capital organized into soviets and wildly cheering for the bolsheviks.

Gave Blood in Vain to Save Life of Man He Shot

Hot Springs, Ark., Aug. 15, 3 a. m.—William Bost, who was shot by his brother-in-law, Neal Irvin, last night, died in a hospital here tonight, although his assailant today gave more than a pint of blood in an effort to save his victim's life.

SOLDAU FALLS; WARSAW HEARS ECHO OF GUNS

Red Avalanche Hits Capital Defenses.

BULLETIN.

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—(By the Associated Press.)—Bolshevik forces captured Soldau, on the Warsaw-Danzig railroad about fifteen miles northwest of Mlawa, Friday night, it was learned today. The Poles are reported retreating to the northwest.

WARSAW, Aug. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—The front is being gradually brought nearer Warsaw. Before Saturday's dawn artillery flashes were visible against the clouds to the north and northeast and at times the bark of cannon could be heard. People on the roofs of the highest buildings watched the gun flashes until the early hours.

Today's communique concedes the Poles withdrew further in the center of the Warsaw front, asserting it was for the purpose of regrouping soldiers who have fallen back upon the defense line less than nineteen kilometers out.

But even more serious than the approach in that direction, according to observers, is the situation northwest of Warsaw, where some 2,000 Red cavalrymen are making rapid progress toward the Vistula.

Infantry Joins Red Horse.

The cavalry's right flank, which follows the right wing of the Russian frontier, has been reinforced by Red infantry soldiers, who have requisitioned the peasants' horses and are following closely on the heels of the cavalry division.

The Poles say that there is no chance of the bolsheviki crossing the Vistula either below or above Warsaw. It is estimated it will require several days before the Reds from the northwest reach the river.

Meantime the newspapers continue confident that a counter stroke will bring the results desired to free Warsaw from immediate danger.

Rush to Defend Vistula.

Precautions have been taken against an encircling movement by the Reds designed to cross the Vistula above and below Warsaw and enter the city from the west. Warsaw's defense extends from the fortress of Novo Georgievsk through the fortress of Zegrje, through Radzymin, just beyond which the bolsheviki brought up artillery today, through Ceglow to the fortress of Ivangorod, sixty kilometers above Warsaw on the Vistula.

In their westward drive the Reds, crossing the Bug river, in the region of Brest-Litovsk, occupied Siedlce on Wednesday, and Thursday reached Kaluszyn, just east of Warsaw. Kaluszyn is within gunshot distance of the line of defense.

REDS GLOAT OVER GAINS

BERLIN, Aug. 14.—Gen. Weger, commanding the 40th bolshevik army, in Lomza yesterday told the correspondent of the Berliner Zeitung Am Mittag that Warsaw was surrounded on four sides and its capture was imminent.

Asked whether peace would be declared with Poland, Gen. Weger said, "Certainly it will." He added that the soviet government, which he said had been formed at Bialystok July 30, would proceed to Warsaw upon capture of the city and would conclude peace "on a soviet basis of the right of self-determination."

LAY CARNAGE TO FRANCE

BY GEORGE SELDES.
[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]
[Copyright: 1920: By the Tribune Company.]

BERLIN, Aug. [illegible]—France is blamed for all further bloodshed in the war between Poland and soviet Russia in a wireless message, intercepted at Breslau today, signed by Foreign Minister Tchitcherin. France is charged in the message with responsibility for delaying the peace negotiations.

A second message, also interrupted at Breslau, addressed to a French labor leader, declares that Premier Millerand's recognition of Gen. Wrangel means that France is about to declare war against Russia and appeals to French labor to take such steps as would make this impossible.

Siege of Warsaw On.

The siege of Warsaw has begun. The Russians have broken the Polish resistance everywhere along the front from Soldau to Karuszyn, and now are actually attacking Warsaw's fortifications. The Poles fear that Warsaw will fall on Monday.

A state of siege was declared on Warsaw on Thursday with complete restrictions on civilian activity.

The most rigid military censorship has been established. Although correspondents are having great difficulty in receiving and sending out the news, a cleverly worded dispatch passed the censor today which declared that every available man has been ordered to Warsaw's outer defenses, which are said to be in a complete state of defense, but this is known here to be impossible, inasmuch as not a line of wire had been strung as late as last week. The correspondents have packed up their belongings, expecting to leave Warsaw with the last Polish troops.

Reds Cross German Line.

The Russians disregarding the former German border, have captured Illowo, near Soldau after severe fighting in which the Poles sent tanks to protect Soldau, but Russian cavalry charged the tanks and chased them back. The Reds also broke through the Wyskon-Kaluszyn.

The capture of Illowo indicates that the Russians are entering the Danzig corridor, which the entente governs. It is not expected that the Russians will recognize the plebiscite areas but will occupy them if the Poles continue fleeing to them.

There is much chagrin in Germany over a note received today from the ambassadorial council declaring a fifty meter band on the right bank of the Vistula river as a safe haven for the Poles in East and West Prussia. The towns of Marienwerder and Kurzebrak were given to Poland despite the protest of Germany.

REDS USE CAPTURED GUNS

BY HENRY WALES.

[By Special Cable.]

PARIS, Aug. 14.—The heavy guns captured from the Poltsk fortress which the bolsheviki took yesterday are being sent forward to bombard Warsaw when the Reds come within range of the Polish capital.

The Poltsk defenses included two batteries of ten inch and several batteries of eight inch guns. The Red engineers lifted them from their emplacements and started forward with them behind the attacking troops.

Jumping off from Poltsk and Siedlce, the bolsheviki have unleashed the final phase of their offensive against Warsaw and this morning are advancing slowly but steadily all along the line.

The Polish resistance is stiffening as the Reds progress, but the French tanks and British armored cars, captured from Denikine, and now in use by the bolsheviki, have succeeded in breaking through in some places.

There is considreable machine gun fighting, the Poles spraying the roads with indirect fire from hidden defenses, but the Red batteries, their range accurately laid by German gunners, are rapidly knocking out these isolated strong points.

POLES DRAWING BACK

BY PARKE BROWNE.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

WARSAW, Aug. 12.—[Delayed.]—Tonight's Polish communique stating "the Polish defenses are being drawn back to the Vistula and the line of fortresses encircling Warsaw" indicates that gunfire will be heard from the capital tomorrow. This will speed up the temporarily slackened evacuation at once.

The statement also means that if the Reds reach the Vistula at Wloclawek they can, without crossing the river, cut the second and last railroad between Warsaw and the Danzig corridor by artillery fire.

JAIL VENIZELOS POLITICAL FOES IN GREEK CITY

ATHENS, Aug. 14.—Several opposition leaders were arrested today, it is said, because there are indications suggesting that they were in collusion with the assailants of M. Venizelos, upon whom an attempt at assassination was made in Paris on Thursday.

It is thought that the cause of former King Constantin of Greece has been completely crushed as the result of the attack on the premier.

The news of the attempted assassination has given rise to unbridled popular indignation here, resulting in excesses such as the wrecking of plants of opposition newspapers and the residence of former Premier Skouloudis.

M. Iragoumis, former Greek minister to Petrograd, was shot dead while trying to escape from a military escort.

'ENTENTE JR.' HOPES TO END BALKAN ROWS

ROME, Aug. 13.—An agreement has been reached between the Prague, Belgrade, and Bucharest governments, called the "little entente," for the self-protection of Szecho-Slovakia, Serbia, and Roumania against Russia or enemies in the Balkans, according to the Giornale d'Italia today.

To make this coalition more effective, says the newspaper, the "little entente" is anxious to have the Adriatic problem settled so Serbia may be free from any threat from Italy.

The Giornale d'Italia expresses the view that the present time affords a good opportunity to insist upon the application of the pact of London, while letting Fiume look after its own independence.

Mrs. Mealiff and three children were killed instantly. Mealiff and the baby cannot live. Dust on the road is said to have blinded Mealiff.

BRITISH-FRENCH SPLIT HANGS ON MINSK OUTCOME

Conference of Premiers Postponed.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Copyright: 1920: By the Tribune Company.]

PARIS, Aug. 14.—The projected meeting tomorrow between Premier Millerand and Prime Minister Lloyd George of Great Britain has been postponed until the outcome of the Minsk negotiations betwen soviet Russia and Poland are available.

This was determined upon today at the foreign office, where both sides agreed that nothing definite could be determined until the result of the peace negotiations was known, and thus the situation was clarified.

Foreign Office Busy.

Leland Harrison, counsellor of the American embassy, held a long conversation this morning at the foreign office with Maurice Paleologue, general secretary, who, in the absence of Premier Millerand, is directing French policy.

Later in the day Lord Derby, recalled from his vacation to Paris, was closeted with M. Paleologue. The result was the announcement of the postponement of the meeting between the two premiers.

It is pointed out in American circles in Paris that President Wilson's stand in agreement with France regarding soviet Russia binds the United States from freedom of action, as any American act not previously indorsed by Premier Millerand would precipitate a break between the two nations, just as Mr. Lloyd George's personal recommendations that Poland accept the Russian terms has caused the present international crisis.

Crisis Near in France.

With the French deputies, senators, and press insisting that the French parliament be summoned immediately, it is indicated that the government has taken serious steps in its foreign policy, which may determine the issue between peace or war, since the adjournment of that body.

The new break between Great Britain and France over Russia makes a session of the French parliament seem indispensable just now, and the comment is frequently heard that the British parliament was not adjourned because of the break.

A session also is made necessary by the presidential crisis. President Deschanel's condition is now generally admitted to be hopeless and there is much talk to the effect that if the constitution is changed to provide for the appointment of a vice president Premier Millerand will be elected to that post, M. Poincare succeeding him as premier.

BRITISH EYES ON MINSK

BY JOHN STEELE.

[By Special Cable.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—The Anglo-French rift did not grow any wider today, but that is all that can be said. All eyes are turned on the Minsk conference, on whose result the next step hinges.

Great Britain is now thoroughly committed against extending the Poles any help if they refuse what England considered to be reasonable terms. France is anxious to use the Poles, Czechs, Roumanians and people of other neighboring states to destroy the soviet government and thus assist France in collecting the old Russian debts.

Harmony May Result.

If France insists upon this policy a breach is sure to come in which Great Britain will have the wholehearted support of Italy. It is considered not unlikely that the Russians may force France and Great Britain into harmony again by imposing such drastic terms upon the Poles as no self-respecting nation could accept.

The council of action appointed by the labor convention to control labor's policy in the crisis decided today to send Mr. Adamson, parliamentary leader of the Labor party, and Mr. Gosling, leader of the transport workers, to France to consult with French labor. The convention also called for reports from all districts regarding work on war stores now in progress.

Labor's Position Strengthened.

A great majority of the London press declares that labor is forcing the open door policy and expresses the opinion that any such experiment in unconstitutionalism is unnecessary, as labor's policy is also that of the government. Only the Morning Post, the Tory organ, makes a wild attack in an editorial headed "Bolshevism Unmasked," in which it declares that labor's policy is "naked sovietism."

This simply is not true. British labor is as frightened of sovietism as of capital, and I am in a position to say its support would be welcome to Prime Minister Lloyd George, who thus would be able to demonstrate that the whole public opinion stood behind his pacific policy.

POET AND FIUME COUNCIL SPLIT; THREATENS TO GO

TRIEST, Aug. 14.—An open break has occurred between the national council of Fiume and Gabriele d'Annunzio, the soldier-poet, whose insurgent troops have been in possession of the city for nearly a year past.

The soldier poet last night addressed a meeting of his soldiers, at which time no members of the national council were in the city. He said:

"I think the city must proclaim its independence and extend its confines. Fiume is now limited within the boundaries set by Maria Theresa (archduchess of Austria and queen of Hungary in the eighteenth century). One feels suffocated within them.

"I have reason to believe that my project will not receive the consent which I desire from the national council. I seek instead the consent of the people of Fiume. If I am denied it, I will leave before the anniversary of my entrance."

The dramatic seizure of Fiume by D'Annunzio, took place Sept. 12, 1919.

FRANCE BACKS WILSON NOTE REJECTING REDS

BY EDWIN L. JAMES.

[Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.]

[Copyright: 1920.]

PARIS, Aug. 13.—[Delayed.]—France has taken the same stand as did the United States toward the Lenin régime in Russia, a stand of nonrecognition on the ground that the bolsheviki are oppressing Russia and intend to be bound by no international agreements.

Premier Millerand's statement as sent to the French chargé d'affaires at Washington, calls attention to the American note to Italy as being "truth itself." France regards the Lenin-Trotzky régime as minority rule maintained by fraud and force.

Explains Wrangel Recognition.

French recognition of Gen. Baron Wrangel and French objection to Polish peace terms, as formulated recently, Milerand declares are based on the common desire of France and America for Russian unity and development and for the Polish peace terms to which Wrangel has agreed.

The text of the Millerand note reads:

"The Temps publishes in full the note relative to Russia which the department of state has handed to the ambassador of Italy and of which you sent me a summary. I have the satisfaction to state that the government of the republic of France is entirely in accord with the federal government of the United States of America upon the principles formulated in this document.

At One with America.

"The government of the republic has upon the present government of Russia the same judgment as the federal government of the United states of America. According to the expressions of the American secretary of state, it is not in power by the wish or consent of any considerable part of the Russian people.

"Representing a small minority of the nation it holds power by force and by deceat. For two years and a half, during which it has placed upon the country a savage oppression, it has not yet authorized popular elections. On the contrary, it has prevented the creation of a popular representative government based on universal suffrage.

"These facts have proved that the present regime of Russia is founded upon the negation of all principles of honor and good faith and of all usages and conventions which are the basis of relations between nations and individuals.

Boast of Faithlessness.

"The responsible chiefs of this régime have often and openly boasted they were ready to sign treaties and accords with foreign powers without having the least intention of observing them; they pretend that no contract or accord concluded with the non-bolshevist government binds them morally.

"Having proclaimed this doctrine, they have applied it. They have declared that by all their means they would provoke in other countries revolutionary movements in order to establish soviets there. Besides, they admit that they are subject to the control of a political faction having international ramifications, and they boast that their promises of nonintervention would, in no case, bind the agents of their organizations.

"All the conclusions of the American secretary of state are truth itself. In consequence, the federal government of the United States of America finds it impossible to recognize the present master of Russia as a government with which relations common to friendly governments can be maintained.

"The government of the Republic of France arrives at identical conclusion. We cannot have official relations with a government which is resolved to conspire against our institutions, whose diplomats would be instigators of revolts and whose orators proclaim that they will sign contracts with the intention of not fulfilling them.

"In perfect union with the federal government of the United States of America, the French government believes in the necessity of an independent Polish state, and the French people, like the American people, desire ardently the maintenance of political independence and the territorial integrity of Poland.

"That is why there is accord at Paris and at Washington to encourage all efforts made with the view of getting an armistice between Poland and Russia, but avoiding what the character attributed to the negotiations should have as a consequence of recognition of the bolshevist régime and dismemberment of Russia.

True Friends to Russia.

"The federal government of the United States of America, interpreter of the sentiment of the American people, desires to aid the Russian people in the future, for which the United States guards an unshakable faith. The government of the republic associates itself wholly with this declaration.

"The French government never has varied in its wish to sustain the principles so clearly formulated by the government of the United States. It is in this spirit that it has decided to approve the armistice conditions offered to Poland only if they conform to these principles. It is also in this spirit that it has, after careful examination, recognized a Russian government which accepts the same principles.

"I ask you to make known to the government of the United States in a communication to it the present telegram and the reception which its declarations have had. The French government is happy to declare again the intimate harmony of the sentiments which animate the French and American people when the future of civilization is at stake."

RED CROSS WORKERS TELL OF KILLINGS IN BOLSHEVIK SIBERIA

After more than a year and a half spent in the frozen wastes of Siberia as Red Cross workers among the bolsheviki, Maj. and Mrs. F. W. Prince arrived in Chicago yesterday to visit Mrs. Prince's parents in Austin.

Maj. Prince, who was division manager at Vladivostok for the Red Cross, met bride while she was acting as a nurse in the same organization in that city. They were married last summer in a bolshevik church which was later blown up by warring factions. For a time men were shot down in the streets of the city by the reds, many falling before the door of the newly married couple.

The Princes aided the bolshevik ministers of finance and foreign affairs at Vladivostok to escape from the country when they started home by way of China and Japan.

Maj. Prince declared that the Japanese are greatly concerned in the success or failure of the Jones bill now before congress. They declare, he said, that passage of the bill would be unfair to them, making them a third rate merchant marine power. The Chinese, he said, are caught in a "silver famine" which has slackened business.

POWERS FAVOR WILSON STAND ON BOLSHEVIKI

Europe Inclines to a Hands-Off Policy.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Developments in European capitals tend to show that the declaration of American policy toward Russia and Poland, made in the Wilson note last Tuesday, is serving as a basis of the effort to bring the powers into a common point of view as to how the crisis in eastern Europe should be handled by them.

A more moderate attitude on the part of Great Britain, France, and Italy is indicated by advices received in Washington and a hopeful feeling exists that the American policy of noninterference and refusal to recognize the bolshevist régime at Moscow will prevail.

Hope to Meet Lenin Trick.

Lenin has been clever in persuading the Russian people that the efforts of the allies in behalf of Poland are intended to bring about the downfall of Russia and the allies now hope to offset this claim.

The first step in this effort was the note to the Italian ambassador in Washington outlining the American position. The sympathetic way in which Italian newspapers have commented on the note has produced a feeling that Italy and the United States are not far apart in their views. It also is thought that France and the United States generally are in accord.

Information received by the state department from Paris leads officials to believe that the French government does not intend to follow its recognition of the anti-bolshevist government of South Russia by sending troops to assist Gen. Wrangel.

Would Appeal to Russians.

This is greatly pleasing to the United States government, which contends that the refusal of the allied nations to participate in a military way in the Russian civil war is the surest means to bring about the overthrow of bolshevist rule.

The next move in the earnest attempt of the Washington government to bring about a common understanding among the allies will be to make public the texts of communications that have passed between the United States and Japanese governments concerning the Japanese seizure of the northern or Russian portion of the Island of Saghalin and the continued occupation of Siberia by Japanese troops.

Mr. Shidehara, the Japanese ambassador, called personally at the state department today and handed to Secretary Colby the Japanese response to the American note on these subjects.

There was some conversation concerning the Japanese position between the secretary of state and the Japanese ambassador, but afterwards, officials said, as no opportunity had been given to study the Japanese communication they did not feel at liberty to discuss it. The Japanese response probably will be made public next week.

WRANGEL'S LIFE READS LIKE TALE OF BOLD KNIGHTS

Young Russian's Career Is Series of Triumphs.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[By the Associated Press.]—An informal inquiry into the character and policies of the anti-bolshevik leader in southern Russia, Gen. Wrangel, has been begun by government officials.

One report, written by a neutral observer attached to the staff of Gen. Wrangel, is said to be the first authentic summary of the anti-bolshevist leader's achievements.

Gen. Wrangel, who is only 39, the report says, enlisted in the Russian army in 1901 as a private in the Horse Guards after having been educated as a mining engineer.

Promoted for Bravery.

Resigning in 1902, after promotion to a lieutenancy, Wrangel reënlisted upon the outbreak of the Russo-Japanese war and was twice promoted for bravery.

Subsequently he was graduated from the General Staff academy and at the outbreak of the European war was a captain commanding a cavalry squadron. With his squadron on Aug. 18, 1914, he captured a German battery, receiving the Cross of St. George.

Promoted to colonel, he was appointed an aid to the czar, and later became commander of the 1st Trans-Baikal Cossack regiment, with which, in July, 1916, he captured an entire battalion and several machine guns. He was then promoted to the grade of major general.

Stayed Till Discipline Fled.

As a division comamnder and afterwards in command of a cavalry corps he continued with the army until revolutionary disorders destroyed its discipline.

Gen. Wrangel then retired to the Crimea. Arrested by the bolsheviki, he narrowly escaped execution, his life being saved only through the appeals of his heroic wife.

In the summer of 1918, with the growth of the volunteer anti-bolshevik army, he was given command of a brigade under Gen. Erdeli. Succeeding to command as a result of the illness of his chief, Wrangel, with other volunteer forces, routed the bolshevist troops and liberated the Kuban, later entered Stavrapol, and in February, 1919, liberated the whole of the north Caucasus and the Terek state, capturing 40,000 prisoners and an enormous quantity of material.

Becomes Lieutenant General.

He was then promoted to the rank of lieutenant general to command the Caucasian army.

Later he was military adviser to Gen. Shilling.

With the evacuation of Odessa and the reduction of Shilling's responsibilities Wrangel went to Sevastapol, where he was informed by the British admiral there that on account of previous difficulties with Gen. Denikine that officer requested he leave Russia. He retired to Novorossiak.

On April 4, 1920, "public opinion," the report says, "clamoring for a new leader, caused Gen. Denikine to resign and a council of Russian generals to elect Wrangel as his successor."

$175,000 WHISKY RAID BARES HIGH FINANCE STORY

Man Under Arrest Says He Lost $45,000.

Fifteen hundred cases of whisky recently shipped into Chicago on forged withdrawal permits were seized yesterday by Maj. Dalrymple's agents while it was standing in the Pennsylvania railroad yards awaiting removal by one of Chicago's whisky rings. Dry agents estimated the value of the liquor at $175,000.

To which ring the liquor was consigned is not known, but Maj. Dalrymple believes he has evidence which will connect it with the "Great Pickle Mystery Ring" of Aug. 4, when Harold J. Micheliv, president of the Sunshine Pickle company, is alleged to have skipped with an $81,000 whisky fund.

Two men were arrested when the seizure was made. One of them was Robert Fabbrini, former owner of a saloon at 207 West Van Buren street, and the other was Hugo Weiss, 4661 Lincoln avenue, a soda water manufacturer and formerly a saloonkeeper.

Confesses; Refuses to Sign.

Weiss, it was disclosed in a confession which he later refused to sign, learned about liquor speculations from Fabbrini. Weiss said he had lost $45,000 in a deal. Fabbrini was mentioned in connection with the financial operations of the pickle factory man.

This is the dry agents' version of the confession made by Weiss. Three men met him one night. One was Fabbrini. Another they called "Al," and the third was "Hask."

"'I know a place in Cincinnati where we can get a carload of bonded whisky,' said one. 'I know where we can get a permit that will move the whisky. Is there any one interested?'

"'All we need is $45,000. Hugo, come on in. You have the money to purchase 1,500 cases. Put up the dough and we will give you a $5 commission on each case.'"

Pays Over $45,000.

That was in July. On Aug. 3 the three met again. Weiss said he paid $45,000 to one of the party. Fabbrini was at the meeting. The whisky was ordered.

Two dry agents, a bit chilled from an all night vigil, watched two men approach the car of booze yesterday morning. One was Fabbrini, the other was Weiss. The agents leaped at the men. "This is what you want," said one of the agents, pointing to the car of whisky. Fabbrini protested. He was strolling down to the yards to give his brother a wedding invitation. Weiss had accommodated him with a lift in his car.

Commissioner Mason set Weiss' bond at $15,000 and that of Fabbrini at $10,000.

UNCOVER $360,000 PLOT.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 14.—A conspiracy through which liquor worth $360,000 was fraudulently taken from a United States bonded warehouse at Owensboro, Ky., was revealed by a raid here this afternoon in which a deputy constable and ten others were arrested after local police, with the aid of government agents, had recovered more than $50,000 worth of the whisky.

The liquor, according to government agents, was sent to St. Louis Wednesday, consigned to Deputy Constable Harry Levin. Levin is charged with having obtained a permit to remove the liquor from the warehouse to St. Louis under the pretense of carrying on a wholesale liquor business for medicinal purposes.

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-TWO boys and girls had the time of their lives at Northwestern university yesterday, when the annual meet of the juvenile class of the summer swimming school was held in the gymnasium. They swam dashes and relay races, dived from springboards, and gave exhibitions of life saving.

The meet, the tenth annual affair of its kind, was under direction of Coach Thomas Robinson, and the participants in the forty-four events ranged in age from 6 to 12 years.

To the boys went the honors in the shorter dashes, but the girls beat them in the 400 yard relay race, an annual competition. Yesterday's victory for the girls ties the score, 5 to 5.

Five hundred spectators were amazed by the diving of "Billy" McCurdy and Gertrude Fox, each 7 years old. They dived fifteen feet from a spring board.

Gold, silver, and bronze medals were distributed to the children participating. Richard French, 9 years old, won the twenty yard dash with 19 seconds elapsed time, Mary Buell, 12 years old, winning the prize for the girls in 23 seconds. Anna Tardy, 10 years old, finished the twenty yards in 24 seconds. Frances Coleman, 13, won the forty yard swim in 42 seconds. Arthur Winslow completed the 100 yard event in 1 minute and 13 seconds. Martha Ferguson, 14 years old, led the girls in that event, her time being 1 minute and 50 seconds.

Announcement was made that fourteen girls of this year's class, which started June 28, have passed tests for life saving membership in the American Red Cross corps.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—[Special.]—Gov. Lowden, replying today to a request from Secretary Colby for information regarding the killing of Louis Carrari, an Italian, in a riot at West Frankfort, Aug. 7, said the state authorities have the situation in hand and that every means is being exercised to prosecute guilty persons.

In his telegram to Gov. Lowden asking for an inquiry into the facts, Secretary Colby said:

"It is needless for the department to express its earnest desire that the state of Illinois will take all possible measures to see that alien citizens or subjects receive the full protection of our laws equally with our own citizens."

DR. ROBERTS FOR PARDON OF GIRL WHO SHOT WIFE

Asked as to what relation he believed this effort had to his wife's memory, he said he believed all persons connected with the case had suffered enough.

Miss Lusk, her father says, is suffering from neuritis largely due to wounds self-inflicted after she had shot Mrs. Roberts. Miss Lusk has served three years of a term of nineteen years for the killing.

Other advices show that the movement of coal to relieve the acute situation in New England has advanced to a point where ample coal is being dumped at tidewater ports and shipped all rail to meet New England's requirements.

CLOTHING PRICES KEEP CRAWLING UP, U. S. LEARNS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Clothing prices increased more than 15 per cent in principal cities between December and June, a labor department investigation just completed showed today. In some cities the increase was more than 25 per cent despite sensational "price slashings" indulged in by merchants throughout the United States this spring. Raw wool and cotton prices went down while finished clothing prices were going up, according to reports to the agriculture department.

Tailors and dealers in ready to wear clothing now are warning customers prices probably will be higher this fall.

Men's clothing prices soared more than prices of women's garments in the first six months of this year in Chicago, Detroit, Denver, and Philadelphia.

FOE AND FRIEND IN TENNESSEE SUFF WAR READY

Speaker Tells Wilson He Won't Heed Request.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 14.—Both sides in the fight over the federal suffrage amendment before the Tennessee legislature were confident of success as they waited for the renewal of the contest which will come next week. Though the senate completed ratification of the amendment Friday, the hardest test, in the vote before the lower house, is still to come.

Replying today to a message from President Wilson eexpressing the hope that the house would ratify the suffrage amendment, Speaker Seth Walker telegraphed the chief executive that the president was "too great to ask it," and he did not believe the men of Tennessee would "surrender honest convictions for political expediency or harmony."

Speaker Opposes Suffrage.

Mr. Walker told the president he did not attempt to express the opinion of other members of the house, but spoke for himself. He leads the house opposition, and the suffragists regard him as one of their most difficult obstacles.

The house committee in charge of the suffrage resolution is scheduled to meet Monday night to consider the measure, and a report is expected Tuesday morning. If a report was made Tuesday, it was said, debate on a motion for adoption or rejection probably would begin at once.

Anti-ratification headquarters made public today a telegram from R. H. Williamson, president of the State Rights Defense League of North Carolina, declaring that suffrage would be defeated in that state.

Calls Vote "a Crime."

"We are going to win in spite of pressure from the White House, from Dayton, and from the United States senate and the secretary of the navy," the message said. "The will of the people of our state must be the law. If this crime is perpetrated let it not be laid at the door of either North Carolina or her daughter, Tennessee. Fight to the last ditch and then some."

Suffrage advocates still stood by their poll of from 53 to 60. Fifty votes are necessary for ratification.

Governor Slightly Satiric.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 14.—Gov. Marcus H. Holcomb has formally notified Will H. Hays, chairman of the Republican national committee, that he will not call a special session of the Connecticut general assembly to act upon the suffrage amendment. The letter says:

"Dear Mr. Hays:

"Your letter of the 9th instant, mailed the 10th, reached me on the 11th instant, two days after I had read it in substance in the Hartford Times, the leading Democratic newspaper of Connecticut, and after it had appeared in the New York papers. I assume this prior publicity seemed desirable.

"I received your letter of Oct. 31, 1919, relating to a special session and answered it on Nov. 4, stating that there would be no special session to act upon the woman suffrage question. I presume you overlooked or had forgotten my reply to your former letter.

Won't Pay Hays' Price.

"I have given at least four hearings upon applications to call a special session and have stated my reasons for refusing. It is unnecessary to repeat them. I have not changed by conclusions. You say 'a special legislative session is a small price to pay for clearing the political atmosphere.'

"The financial cost is unimportant, but violating the provisions of our constitution, which I have sworn to support, is too great a price to pay. I shall not call a special session.

"With personal regards, I am, sincerely yours, MARCUS H. HOLCOMB."

PLAN MEETING HERE TO MEET SOVIET MENACE

A massmeeting at which ways and means of stamping out the Red menace in the United States will be considered will be held in the Auditorium within a month if plans hastily formulated at the Press club of Chicago yesterday are carried out.

Frank Comerford, special counsel in the trial of William Bross Lloyd and nineteen other defendants under the sedition law, suggested the massmeeting in an address before the club.

"We have come to the cross-roads," he declared. "The time to stamp out this menace is now. I want to tell you that Europe is more than half sovietized now. The Lloyd George régime will be short-lived and with its passing a strongly socialized government will come in in England. When the soviets have conquered Europe they will come to America."

Ferdinand W. Peck offered to engage the Auditorium for the meeting and steps will be taken immediately to complete arrangements.

In meetings in forty-eight different places today a Chicago drive will be started to rouse Americans against bolshevism and create sympathy with Poland. This morning's prayers will be offered in every Polish church in the city, and the sermons will deal with the red menace. Throughout the afternoon and evening massmeetings, with speeches in both English and Polish, will be held in various halls. There will be several parades. At every gathering resolutions will be offered condemning bolshevism and pledging loyalty and service to the ideals of America.

$3,000,000 IN COWAN ESTATE SPLIT 13 WAYS

Circuit Court Dismisses Nine Claims.

Wheaton, Ill., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The $3,000,000 estate of the late William P. Cowan, Wheaton oil magnate who died without leaving a will or any known heirs, goes to thirteen poor relatives by a decision handed down by Judge Adam C. Cliffe in the Sixteenth District Circuit court here this afternoon.

The court dismissed the appeals of nine other claimants who failed to prove their heirship in the Dupage County court, where Judge Rathje entered an order of heirship in favor of seven cousins and six children of cousins of the late oil magnate.

"Son's" Claim Disallowed.

Judge Cliffe threw out the claim of William Cowan Lowery of Neelyville, Mo., who claimed to be an illegitimate son of Cowan Lowery, a half breed Indian, swore that his mother, a beautiful Indian actress, lived with Cowan in Chicago as his common law wife and that he was born of this relationship. His mother died five years ago, he said.

Witnesses who were brought from Missouri testified before Judge Cliffe that Lowery's mother is still alive in Missouri, that she is a Negress and that she never heard of Cowan.

Heirs Court Acknowledged.

Following are the heirs whose claims were upheld by Judge Cliffe: Walter Saxton, Grand Lodge, Mich.; William Saxton, Eagle, Mich.; Charles Edward Saxton, Bannister, Mich.; Mrs. Caroline Saxton Hart, Grand Lodge, Mich.; Mrs. Birdellia Saxton Colby, Cadillac, Mich.; Henry S. Stillwell, Gloversville, N. Y.; William S. Stillwell, Sprinfield, Mass.; three heirs of Mrs. Helen Shadbolt, Plymouth, Wis.; three heirs of Judson Phelps, Detroit, Mich.

The claims of the following were dismissed: Mrs. Jane Cowan William, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Mary Cowan McAdams, Quincy, Ill.; Mrs. Sarah Cowan Brainerd, Cleveland, O.; Joseph Peter Cowan, St. Louis, Mo.; Mrs. Elizabeth Cowan Teirgraver, St. Louis, Mo.; Miss Catherine Cowan, Chicago; James William Cowan, U. S. army; David Henry Cowan, Camp Winchester, O.

BOY, 13, SCOLDED, HANGS SELF AS 'SCARE' AND DIES

William Douglas, 13 years old, yesterday was found strangled to death by a rope fastened to a nail high up on a wall in the basement of his home at 9538 South Robey street. It is the belief of his father, W. A. Douglas, assistant telegraph superintendent for the Rock Island railroad, that the boy placed the rope around his neck in an effort to frighten his mother, who had just scolded him, and then was unable to unloosen the slip knot.

William had just been graduated from the Harvard grammar school and was to have taken up a course in electrical engineering. His mother had been compelled to rebuke him for breaking a clothes wringer which she had forbidden him to try to fix. When she threatened to tell his father, the boy's eyes filled up with tears and he went to the basement.

Ten minutes later Mrs. Douglas found him. An hour was spent in efforts to revive him, but to no avail.

CONFERENCE TO END CABLE GRAB BY ALIEN NATIONS

Great Britain Now Has World Monopoly.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Control of cable telegraph systems, now largely in the hands of Great Britain, may be entirely revolutionized and the way opened for a greater degree of American activity in this field as a result of the international conference on wireless and cable communication to be held here next month. The British established their control of the avenues of cable communication by pioneer enterprise in laying cables under long term concessions granted by a multitude of countries, which concessions exclude competition. The aim of the international conference is to establish an international agreement removing the restrains on competition, defining property rights in cables, and enunciating the principles of national and international regulation of cable and wireless communication.

Permit Refused English Concern.

Pending the deliberations of this conference the United States government recently refused to issue a permit to the Western Union Telegraph company to land at Miami, Fla., the American end of a new cable the Western Telegraph company, a British concern, proposes to lay between the United States and the Barbadoes, a British possession in the West Indies.

The action to prevent the landing of the Barbadoes cable was taken as the result of representations made by the All-American Cable company of New York, a competitor of the Western Union and British cable interests in the Caribbean. The All-American company, which is headed by W. Emlen Roosevelt, John L. Merrill, John J. Pierrepont, Cornelius Vanderbilt, R. Fulton Cutting, and Robert W. De Forest, operates 15,000 miles of cables between points in North and South America.

Lays Cable to Brazil.

The All-American company wants to lay a cable between the United States and Brazil, but has bumped into the exclusive cable concession granted by Brazil to the British company which transmits messages between the United States and Brazil by way of Europe. By laying a cable between the Barbadoes and Miami, however, the British company could eliminate the European detour and reduce the cost of transmission if not the rate, for it would still enjoy a monopoly.

The All-American company succeeded in getting into Brazil, but in a roundabout way. One of its cables runs from Panama down the west coast of South America and is connected with land wires between Valparaiso and Montivedeo. The American concern was allowed to lay a cable between Montevideo and Santos, Brazil, but was not allowed, because of the British concession, to connect Santos and Rio Janeiro with a cable. They were compelled to lay another cable between Montevideo and Rio Janeiro. Then, because of the British exclusive rights, the Brazilian government imposed a tax of 3 francs a word on every message between Brazil and the United States passing over the All-American lines.

Fights British Monopoly.

The laying of the Miami-Barbadoes cable would strengthen the British monopoly in the handling of Brazilian messages and the All-American company has been fighting the move at every step. At the request of those interested Senator Kellogg of Minnesota introduced a bill on April 28 forbidding the landing of a cable on American soil without a permit issued by the secretary of state.

Senator Kellogg made a speech on the bill setting forth the futile efforts of the All-American company to buck the British cable monopoly, but the measure was not passed. In preventing the landing of the cable at Miami the government acted without specific warrant of law, but the attorney general has ruled that no law is necessary and there is precedent in the action of President Grant, who stopped the landing of a French cable until reciprocal privileges had been granted by France.

Discussed at War Council.

In recommending the legislation under which congress provided for the international conference called by the president, the house committee on foreign affairs said:

"The general question of international communication was raised at a meeting of the supreme war council in Paris in connection with the German submarine cables which had been taken over by Great Britain and France. The problem of the disposition of these cables was left to a special commission which later made a report to the council of ten, consisting of the heads of state and ministers of foreign affairs of the five principal powers. In the course of the discussion it was suggested that there should be world arrangements made for the regulation of submarine cables.

"It developed that there was no unanimity of opinion on the part of international lawyers and jurists as to the rights of property in submarine cables in times of war. There were two cables connecting Germany with the United States. Both of these cables were from Emden to the Azores and from the Azores to New York. Both were cut in the English channel, and later one was diverted into Lands End, England, and the end of the cable going into New York was cut and diverted to Halifax. This gave the British an additional cable from Lands End to the Azores and from the Azores to Halifax.

Another for France.

"The European end of the other cable was diverted into Brest, France. This gave the French an additional cable from Brest to the Azores and from the Azores to New York.

"A more extreme case was presented by the cable from Liberia to Brazil. Both ends of this cable were in countries at war with Germany, and the cable was the only means of communication between parts of South America and Africa, yet, because the cable in question was owned by a German company, the allies cut it and severed all means of communication previously utilized by means of the cable.

World Owner of Cables.

"It may be said parenthetically at this point that Great Britain is the great world owner of submarine cables. France possesses some and the United States possesses some."

HARD WORKING COLONELS TO GET CREDIT FOR WORK

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The war department issued an order today that regimental commanders, who have been rated as "superior or above the average" will not be assigned away from their present regiments for at least two years.

This order is to encourage colonels to do all they can to develop their regiments, with the assurance that they will not suddenly be assigned elsewhere and others gain credit for their work.

Colonels are rated by their immediate superiors, brigade commanders, who in turn are rated by their superiors. The rating practice extends to all officers.

Only for "exceptional reasons" will highly rated colonels be reassigned in less than two years, today's order said.

VEGETABLES AND FRUIT "CHEAPER THAN LAST YEAR"

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Fruit and vegetable prices are generally lower than a year ago at this time, the department of agriculture announced today in its weekly review of market conditions.

According to the department's figures, potatoes are down to $1 a bushel at some western shipping points. Eastern farmers are getting $1.50 a bushel, while city dealers are paying $5 to $6 a barrel for potatoes. New York is the largest producer, with Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota producing nearly as many.

Onions, the department says, are selling at prices considered low in prewar days. Early apples are reported selling at $1.50 to $2 a bushel in city markets.

BRITAIN TURNS TO MESOPOTAMIA FOR OIL SUPPLY

U. S. Prices Too High, Says Controller.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[By Special Cable.]
[Copyright: 1920: By the Tribune Company.]

LONDON, Aug. 14.—Sir John Cadman, the British oil controller, in an interview today explained Great Britain's position in the international scramble for world control of oil supplies. He said that most certainly there was a world wide shortage in oil and that consumption was increasing faster than production.

The pre-war output of oil was 60,000,000 tons annually; now it is 70,000,000. America controls 80 per cent of the world's supply and Great Britain but 4½ per cent.

U. S. Oil Too High.

So long as Britain was buying its supply cheaply from the United States there was no incentive to seek new sources of supply, but now, on account of the high prices, there is an incentive and Britain is seeking oil concessions in all parts of the world. This is purely a private enterprise, however, and is unassisted by the government.

"The policy regarding Mesopotamia is to encourage the Mesopotamians to develop their oil fields for their own benefit. The method employed in interesting them is to have them seek oil fields and then sell concessions and have them pay royalties to their government.

America Has Plenty.

"This will help to stabilize the government and will give the producers governmental support in protecting their wells and pipe lines. The oil obtained from Mesopotamia will be piped to the Mediterranean for shipment to Great Britain, Italy, France, and other European countries. I have omitted America, as obviously, with her own huge supplies, she has no need for new ones."

I have just learned that Mr. Hughes, the Australian premier, is about to start for London, where he will discuss with other dominion representatives the Anglo-Japanese treaty. Premier Hughes is anxious to organize the colonial forces against a renewal of the treaty before the meeting of the league of nations at Geneva, where the treaty will be reviewed, and where he fears Japanese influence will secure its ratification unless Great Britain previously has been convinced that the dominions won't have it.

Coal Situation Alarming.

A serious situation has been created by the decision of the coal miners to take a ballot on the question of a national strike to enforce their demands for an increase in their wages of 50 cents daily and a reduction in the price of coal of $3.50. The ballot will take place between Aug. 15 and 20 and a second conference will be held in London early in September to hear the results.

It is practically certain that the vote will favor the strike, and the demand for a reduction in the price of coal will secure a large measure of public support, for it is felt that the coal mine owners have been profiteering.

$900,000,000 JUMP IN U. S. EXPENSES LIKELY NEXT MONTH

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Government expenditures in September probably will jump nearly $900,000,000, it was estimated today by treasury officials.

Nearly two-thirds of this sum will represent payments to the railroads. Between $500,000,000 and $600,000,000 probably will be paid out under the earnings protection provision of the Esch-Cummins plan.

A heavy drain also is expected on the $300,000,000 revolving fund by the transportation act for purchase of new equipment. Loans to the lines have been proceeding slowly, but, with the increased freight rates soon to become effective, it is thought the roads will have less difficulty in borrowing the poportions of their equipment needs from private capital required by the commission for participation in government loans.

With this outflow from the treasury in September, officials believe reduction of the public debt may be somewhat curtailed, although reductions will continue, it is emphasized.

Raise in Raisin Imports Shown; There's a Raisin!

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Increased consumption of raisins in the United States since the advent of prohibition is believed to account for the 1,400 per cent increase in imports of this comodity from Spain during the first six months of 1920. Nearly 5,000,000 pounds were exported from Malaga to the United States up to June 30, according to the department of agriculture's bureau of markets, "in quantity that exceeds the total raisin exports from that port for the seven year period 1913-1919, inclusive."

HARDING PAWN OF SENATE RING, GOV. COX SAYS

Peace and Progress to Be His Slogan.

BY ROBERT B. SMITH.

Wheeling, W. Va., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—In a flying trip across Ohio and into West Virginia, Gov. James M. Cox, Democratic presidential nominee, made five speeches today and definitely marked off the two main issues on which he believes the campaign will be fought out. He declared the two issues to be:

First, peace or war. He stands for peace, he declared, as exemplified by the league of nations; Senator Harding, he said, by his opposition to the treaty, stands for war.

Second, adjustment by progress or readjustment by reaction. Mr. Cox said he stands for progressive readjustment; Senator Harding, he said, stands for a reversion to reactionary government.

Says League Ends War.

"There are two things American voters must ask themselves in this election," he said. "The first is: why did we send our boys abroad to die in France? Under Democratic auspices you have the opportunity to enter the league of nations and put an end to war. The issue is plain. If you are for peace vote for the governor of Ohio. If you are for war, vote for the Republican senator from Ohio. If you vote for the Republican party you signify your willingness to scrap the league of nations. If you vote for the Democratic party you get the absolute pledge that the league will be ratified very soon after March 4.

"The second question is: Do you want readjustment under the auspices of progress or readjustment under the auspices of reaction? If you want readjustment by progress, vote the Democratic ticket. If you want readjustment by reaction, vote for the Republican nominee."

In Fighting Mood.

The governor was in a fighting mood and he made good his promise to take the gloves off in dealing with the Republican opposition today. He charged the Republicans with "attempted treachery on the American people," declared "their hands were daubed with perfidy," in the treaty controversy, and asserted it would be his great pleasure to destroy the smoke screen of hypocrisy they were attempting to spread over the country.

He got enthusiastic receptions everywhere, but the biggest demonstration of the day was at the West Virginia Democratic convention. The delegates and visitors cheered themselves hoarse as he whacked the Republicans, and shouts of "Hit 'em again, Jimmie," resounded through the hall.

The governor told the convention that the Republican senators obtained an official copy of the peace treaty from "enemy hands," and declared "that alone ought to be enough to condemn them in the eyes of the American people."

Borah-Johnson Threat.

When Senator Lodge, the Republican leader, tried to compromise on the treaty issue, he said, Senator Borah and Senator Johnson served notice on him that if he made the slightest concession they would bring about a rupture in the affairs of the Republican party. As a result of their threat, he said the Republican platform declaration with regard to the treaty was a plain straddle.

He told the convention that Senator Harding had declared for a separate peace with Germany, and continued, "he can't make a separate peace with Germany because he will not be given the opportunity and there will be no separate peace with Germany because I will not make a separate peace with Germany." The crowd cheered lustily. He said he wished all the voters in the country could have been with him when he visited President Wilson at the White House.

Promise to Mothers.

"The great hope in the president's heart," he said, "is this: He gave a promise to the mothers of the country to end wars and he wants to live long enough to see the faith kept and the pledge redeemed."

A considerable portion of the governor's audience was made up of miners and he received loud applause from them when he declared that during his three terms as governor of Ohio he had never "sent a soldier into an industrial dispute," and had "never fired a shot to settle a strike."

We substituted the golden rule for the bayonet in Ohio, and what has been done in Ohio can be done throughout the nation, he said.

The governor also accused the "senatorial oligarchy" with having already formed a plot to emasculate the federal reserve act and regain control of the national banking system for the hands of Wall street.

Tells of Senatorial Intrigue.

"We shall not alone make appeal to the electorate by contrasting the rules of economic thought that have prevailed in the past, but we shall call attention to the delinquent attitude in which this country has been placed by senatorial intrigue, and to the very definite program of action which we pledge. It is unnecessary to recall the issues of the war. They were well marked in the public mind. We were willing to sacrifice in behalf of the next generation, because preceding generations sacrificed for us. After all, that is the vital thing in civilization.

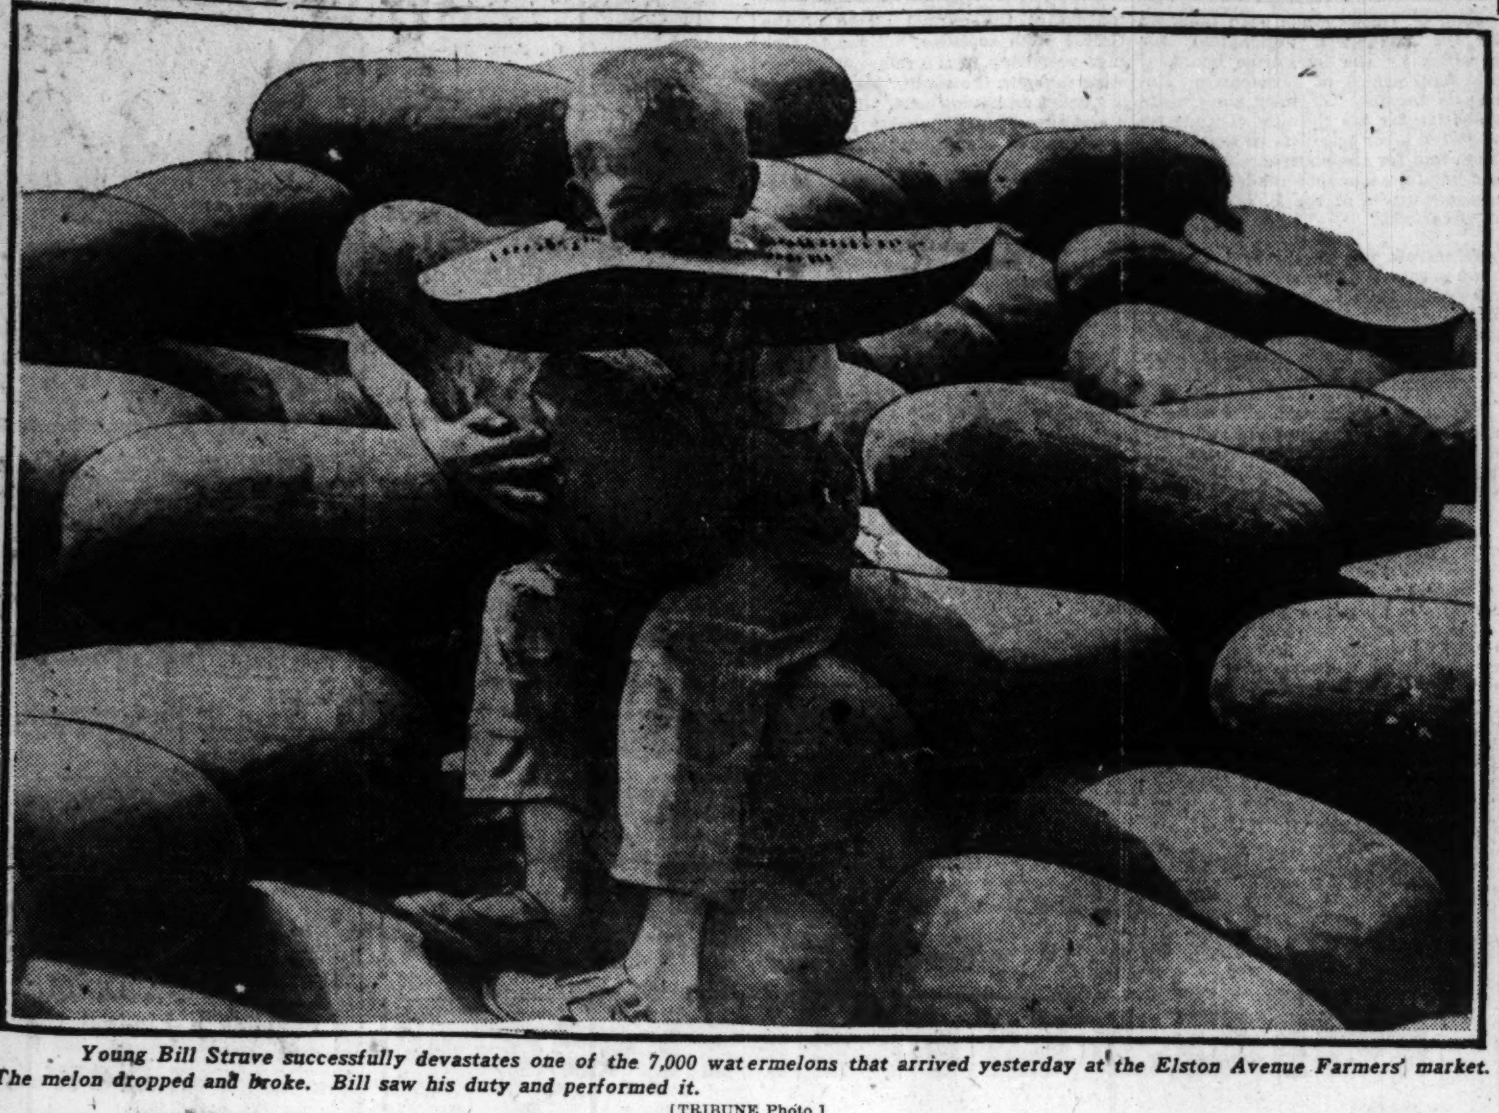
"We resisted a world-wide menace and we intend now to establish permanent protection against another menace. We know how easily wars came in the past. We want to make their coming difficult in the future. We have a definite plan; the American people understand it, and after the 4th of March, 1921, it is our purpose to put it into practical operation, without continuing months of useless discussion.

Accuses G. O. P. of Trickery.

"The platform of our party gives us the opportunity to render moral cooperation in the greatest movement of righteousness in the history of the world, and, at the same time, to hold our own interests free from peril. Our position is plain. The circumstances of the last eighteen months convict the Republican leadership of attempted trickery with the American people. Under one pretext after another, they prevented the readjustment of national conditions. They proposed certain reservations to the league of nations, and then they were abandoned, to be followed by nothing more definite than the announcement of a hope that an entirely new arrangement might be made in world affairs.

"What method they have in mind, if it is concretely in any one's mind, the people do not know. No unprejudiced person can deny the consequence of abandoning the league and attempting an entirely new project, will be prolonged delay."

PARADISE FOUND!



Young Bill Struve successfully devastates one of the 7,000 watermelons that arrived yesterday at the Elston Avenue Farmers' market. The melon dropped and broke. Bill saw his duty and performed it.

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Yum Yum!

BILL STUVE, ear deep in watermelon, was a "consumer" at the Elston Avenue Farmers' market yesterday. The advertisement of the market reads "from producer to consumer." Bill says he's ready to do his part if the producer will only hold up his end.

The particular melon which Bill successfully surrounded was one of the 7,000 that have arrived here during the last four days. As a melon vulture Bill finally reaped the reward of patient waiting when one of the melons dropped and broke.

He pounced upon the crippled melon and proceeded to reduce it to ruins.

REPLIES TO COX

Democratic waste and extravagance as a campaign issue cannot be dodged by Gov. Cox, Congressman James W. Good of Iowa declared yesterday. Mr. Good is chairman of the house appropriations committee at Washington and is in immediate charge of the speakers' burueau at the Republican national headquarters at the Auditorium hotel.

In his statement Congressman Good said:

"Neither parties nor men make political issues. They but formulate the issues. Unquestionably the league of nations, as presented by the president will continue to be one of the big issues in the campaign, but there are other issues in the minds of a great many of our people. The issues of the waste and extravagance of the Wilson administration are paramount issues.

Says Cox Evades.

"Mr. Cox is attempting to evade these issues and the responsibilities of his party for mismanagement of the government's affairs. The people are feeling the burden of heavy taxes. They know that during the last three years they have paid into the treasury, in taxes, and in the purchase of government bonds, more than $40,000,000,000.

"Mr. Cox will be called upon either to repudiate the wanton waste and all around criminal extravagance of the Wilson administration, or to explain and justify it. I regard this as one of the big issues of the campaign and one that is troubling Mr. Cox and Franklin D. as much, if not more than, the league of nations issue."

VOTELESS NEGRO MAY LIMIT SOUTH IN U. S. CONGRESS

Ballots, Not Population, Basis of Change.

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Representative Isaac Siegel, chairman, reapportionment committee, house of representatives, has received a number of letters advocating the reduction of southern representation in the house of representatives and in the electoral college.

According to Mr. Siegel, the question will be reopened by his committee in response to sentiment in the north. Six of the nine committee members are northern Republicans, and one of them, Representative Barbour, California, is a leader in the propaganda in favor of abolishing representation in congress, based on Negro population which is denied the ballot.

Cowardice Elected Wilson.

In a letter to George B. Lockwood of Washington, D. C., editor of the National Republican, Mr. Siegel said:

"To the inexplicable weakness and cowardice of Republicans in the handling of this matter in the reapportionments of 1900 and 1910 is due the reëlection of President Wilson in 1916, for without votes in the electoral college based upon the suffrage of voters disenfranchised under the laws and practices of the states of the solid south, Gov. Hughes would have been elected.

"In 1916 Illinois cast more votes than all the eleven states of the solid south, plus Oklahoma, combined. Yet these twelve states had five times as much representation in the house and in the electoral college.

Proposition of Voters.

In Indiana one person in four votes. In the solid south as a whole, one person in seventeen votes. In South Carolina and Mississippi one person in thirty votes. This is not only a violation of the basic principle of democracy but an imposition upon the states where representative government is permitted to exist.

"It is not generally known that in these states more white men than black have been disenfranchised by one dishonest expedient and another. The effect of the system is to exclude from participation in elections the vast majority of those who toil with their hands."

A letter from William M. P. Bowers of Providence, R. I., asks the committee to act at once.

'KITTY' IS DEAD; NEW ORLEANS' GAMBLERS SAD

New Orleans, La., Aug. 14.—"Kitty" is dead. For the first time since the village days of New Orleans. Gambling houses where the "Kitty" thrived were closed at 12:01 o'clock this morning.

Early last night police visited each of the places and served notice that the new Higgins law would become effective at midnight and would be strictly enforced.

The new law eliminates the "kitty," the main source of revenue for the gambling clubs.

Only clubs where the proceeds of the game go to the players are allowed to continue.

G. O. P. MAJORITY IN CONGRESS TO GROW, FESS SAYS

Tariff Will Be Big Issue in Campaign—Harding.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

Marion, O., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The next congress will have a Republican majority of six in the senate and fifty in the house. This is the prediction brought to Senator Harding by Representative Fess, Ohio, chairman of the Republican national congressional committee. He has just returned from a nation-wide political survey, in which he gave special attention to districts and states where the sharpest battles will be fought. The accuracy of the following forecast, he said, would be proven by results next November.

"We will gain two Ohio congressional districts, the Twelfth and Fourteenth, the former represented by Brumbaugh, and the latter by Davey, both Democrats. The Republicans will elect Knight of Akron in the Fourteenth and Gen. Speaks of Columbus in the Twelfth.

"We probably will gain the Third and Fourth districts also.

Counts Other Victories.

"We will gain two representatives in New England and lose none in New York. We will gain two in New Jersey and three in Pennsylvania. We will gain one in Kentucky and three in Missouri. There is a bare possibility of gaining one in Michigan, the only district now represented by a Democrat.

"We cannot gain any from Indiana, as the present delegation is solidly Republican. Five Indiana districts are normally Democratic and our fight will be to return the Republicans now representing them.

"We hope to gain seven Republican senators in the West. The drift is all our way in Idaho, South Dakota, California, Colorado, Nevada—states which have Democratic senators whose terms expire next month!"

Harding Watching Contests.

Senator Harding is keenly interested in the congressional phase of the campaign. He cannot make a success of "party government" without a good working majority in both houses. He may be prevailed upon to go into one or two places where the fights are hot, particularly in Indiana, where Senator "Jim" Watson has a hard race.

Senator Harding predicts that one of the big issues of the campaign and one of the vital things before the next congress will be the tariff.

"People can smile now, but you will hear a lot of shouting about the tariff before this campaign is over," he said today.

Favors Tariff Commission.

"I don't know whether I am in agreement with others on this, but I favor a tariff commission. No congress can have all the information necessary as to differentials and rates.

"Europe is bound to make every possible effort to rehabilitate her trade. We are the best buyers. America is the chief solvent nation."

Mr. Fess doubts that the prohibition issue will cut much figure in the congressional campaigns. He said that in practically all of the districts represented by Republicans the congressmen voted on wet and dry legislation in accordance with the prevailing sentiment in their respective districts.

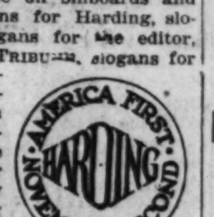
Mr. Fess thinks the Republican plan of separate, quick peace will be popular.

Former Senator John W. Weeks, Massachusetts, arrived today in response to a summons from the candidate, who said the visit was to "swap" observations. Mr. Weeks said he had received good reports from Maine.

Representative Nicholas Longworth, with Mrs. Longworth, called on the senator last night.

SHOOT IN A SLOGAN FOR YOUR CHOICE; THEY'RE ALL AT IT

Slogans for use on billboards and on buttons, slogans for Harding, slogans for Cox, slogans for the editor, slogans for THE TRIBUNE, slogans for the prize money—everybody, seemingly, thinks in the form of slogans. Today the Slogan Editor picked out a few that looked pretty good to him. Herewith is the offering of I. J. Obenshain of Galva, Ill., as he sketched it.



Other Harding slogans are:

"Harding, the advance guard of confidence and business stability."—Gertrude R. Ferreira, 410 South Michigan boulevard.

"America wants the Man from Marion."—J. L. Israel, 4948 St. Lawrence avenue. Mr. Israel suggests it be used on billboards with Mr. Harding's picture below it.

Here are three for Mr. Cox.

"Vote for Cox and you can have good brew in your icebox."—Thomas A. Farrell, 3717 West Twenty-second street.

"See it through with Cox."—K. A. Murray, 5640 Peoria street.

"Cox will keep our country in the lead and in the league."—E. E. Hanna, 1629 North Shore avenue.

You might as well make up your mind now to send in that slogan you have been thinking about. Just address the Slogan Editor, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, and maybe some day Uncle Sam's postman will bring a little note inclosing a check.

DICE CARNIVAL GOES ON MERRILY AT LAKE FRONT

Police in Auto Seize 19, but Games Bob Up.

They kept right on rollin' the bones on Chicago's front door step yesterday.

The fifty odd crap games, not to mention the shell games and other forms of gambling, furnished a modicum of competition for the circus, which is supposed to be the big attraction in Grant Park.

Officials of Ringling Brothers issued a statement deploring the presence of gambling near the circus and expressing their desire to have the police put a stopt to it.

Chief of Police Garrity called Capt. Morgan A. Collins on the carpet and told him to close the Grant park African Golf links for good and all, but there were so many crap shooters and so few policemen on the links that as fast as the police broke up one game 'steen more had sprung into life.

Passes Blame to Park.

Chief Garrity disclaimed responsibility for the conditions, saying he was taking an interest in the gambling not because it was taking place within his jurisdiction, but because the south park commission seemed oblivious to it.

"I have tried on several occasions to get the coöperation of the south park board in policing the lake front," said the chief. "Each time I have failed. Men I have sent to the board to discuss coöperation were treated politely, but nothing else."

Nineteen men, many of them colored, were arrested during the afternoon by the bone picking squad, which made its raids in an automobile, from the running board of which the police leaped. More than 2,000 witnessed the games.

Fifteen Draw Fines.

Twenty-four men arrested for crap shooting around the circus tents on Friday were arraigned yesterday before Judge Holmes in the South Clark street court. Bad luck stuck with fifteen of them. The other nine were discharged.

HARDING BILLED FOR TWIN CITIES SPEECH SEPT. 8

Deviation from Porch Campaign Plans.

Senator Warren G. Harding goes into action in the western political battleground at the Minnesota state fair at the Twin cities on Sept. 8.

This was announced officially yesterday by Senator Harry S. New at Republican national headquarters. The announcement is the first publicly made of deviation from the earlier plans for a porch campaign at Marion. The Minneapolis speech, it is understood, is to be followed by other addresses at strategic centers, including Chicago, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, and possibly other cities. The Republican nominee's address in Minnesota is to be non-political in character and will deal with the agricultural questions before the nation and related problems.

Await Fate of Suffrage.

The immediate course of the national campaign, both in the Republican and Democratic camps, depends largely upon the fate of the woman's suffrage amendment now at the critical stage in the Tennessee and North Carolina legislatures. The Republicans are all set, apparently, to charge to the Democrats full responsibility for failure of the amendment, for the purposes of the 1920 election, in the event that these Democratic legislatures now in session fail to furnish the thirty-sixth ratifying state. The next strategic step, therefore, in the presidential contest is not expected before Tuesday or Wednesday.

Mayor to Visit Kankakee.

The first big round-up of the Thompson-Smith-Small Republicans is set for Wednesday at Kankakee, Len Small's home, on Republican day at the Kankakee fair. All of the city hall candidates and Mayor Thompson are expected to be present.

Mr Small yesterday issued an appeal to the Republicans of Illinois, asserting that the public utilities issue is the only factor in the state campaign.

Sweitzer Aids Igoe.

Public declaration by County Clerk Robert M. Sweitzer that he supports Michael L. Igoe for the Democratic nomination for state's attorney and opposes Maclay Hoyne, the organization candidate, indicated perfectly that the Democratic primary fight in Chicago is to a gilt edge finish.

The news was entirely satisfactory to the Republicans, who see in the Democratic feud the certainty that thousands of Democrats who voted for city hall committeemen in April will be kept in their own primary on Sept. 15.

Mr. Sweitzer, after his pro-Igoe declaration, said:

"My sense of party regularity makes it impossible for me to consider the candidacy of any man for any office if that man has betrayed his party."

Oglesby Ticket Indorsed.

William B. McKinley for United States senator, John G. Oglesby for governor, the candidates on the state ticket headed by Oglesby, and the candidates on the county ticket headed by David F. Matchett for state's attorney were indorsed yesterday by the Republican organizations of the Fourteenth and Thirty-third wards affiliated with the national Republican party of Illinois.

Burke Issues Platform.

Robert Emmet Burke, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator, issued his platform yesterday. He is against the league of nations, for the freedom of Ireland, against prohibition, and for personal liberty, his statement declares. He is also for a substantial bonus at the earliest possible moment from the federal government to world war veterans, and he is opposed to compulsory military training and for the freedom of the seas. "Let us get rid of Wilsonism," Mr. Burke says.

Field headquarters of the Republican national committee are to be opened tomorrow at the Missouri state fair at Sedalia and will travel through the country until election day. Included is a tent seating 2,000 people and a corps of speakers, motion picture apparatus, and phonographic speeches of Republican leaders.

ECREMENT, LINK IN $5,000,000 PLOT, DEPORTED

ARTHUR C. ECREMENT.

Arthur C. Ecrement, former member of the Canadian parliament, who was arrested in Chicago last May because of an alleged connection with the "Nicky" Arnstein $5,000,000 bond swindles, is no longer in the United States. He has been deported.

The man, whose refined manner and expensive clothes attracted many Chicago women, was secretly slipped over the border Friday night. Yesterday he was turned over to the Montreal police and lodged in jail at Rouz Point, Canada.

Ecrement had been held at Ellis island for three weeks. Friday night an escort of guards appeared at his cell and informed him that he was going back to Canada.

A warrant from Washington asserted that he was subject to deportation because he had never been legally admitted as a resident of this country and because he was "liable to become a public charge because of criminal tendencies."

The man, whose rôle in the "bond plot" is that of a witness said nothing. Without a word he accompanied his guards. Under cover of night he was taken out of the United States.

CITY HALL EYES $94,000,000 IN STATE FUNDS

Vast Sums to Be Spent by New Governor.

make all three comparable the 40 cent rate should be made 60 cents.

As an aid in getting this surplus, in the face of a reduction in tax rates, two laws were passed. One of these placed a franchise tax on corporations. It is estimated by Mr. Wright that this will bring $2,500,000 into the state treasury this year. Another was a privilege tax on insurance companies, which is expected to net the state $3,000,000 this year.

This $5,500,000 corresponds to the city's effort to increase its income by license fees placed upon businesses and corporations. The city is not expected to get more than $800,000 additional from these sources this year.

Will Taxes Be Boosted?

But all this does not tell the whole tale. There is still another opportunity to get more money by the next state administration. The governor and a couple of other state officials have the authority to fix the state tax rate. They can boost it up or shove it down. That is their power and privilege.

Perhaps it will be hammered down, but the Thompson-Lundin administration will not be running true to form—if it does it.

PLACES U.S. WITH BOLSHEVIKI FOR BALK AT TREATY

Mitchell, S. D., Aug. 14.—Franklin D Roosevlet, Democratic candidate for vice president, in an address here today declared that "progressiveness and the league of nations are so closely akin" that he had yet to find the progressive man or woman "who is not in favor of the league."

"By not signing the peace treaty, we have placed ourselves in the same class with bolsheviki Russia, Mexico, and unspeakable Turkey," Mr. Roosevelt asserted.

"The people of the United States are offered the opportunity of going back to the 'good old days' or the opportunity for progress."

Illinois Lets Contracts for U. S. Aid Highways

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14.—Contracts for approximately $320,000 worth of federal aid road and bridge work were let today. A firm at St. Joseph, Mo., got the largest contract. The bid was $189,000.

POLITICAL NOTES

John G. Oglesby has been indorsed for the Republican nomination for governor by the legislative board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers because "of their sincere approbation for his friendly attitude toward the labor interests as a state official, and for the courteous treatment and helpful assistance rendered to the representatives of the B. of L. E. on all occasions."

Tomorrow will be the first day for filing petitions for candidates for primary nominations for judges of the municipal court. City Clerk James T. Igoe announced that the petitions filed through the regular mail will have preference in the filing.

The Sixth Ward Regular Democratic club last night indorsed the full slate of the regular Democratic organization. This is the home ward of State's Attorney Hoyne.

Charles M. Hanley, an overseas veteran, was indorsed yesterday for the Democratic nomination for the house in the Fifth district by the Sixth ward Democratic regular organization.

Mayor John R. Grace of Charleston, S. C., who is to speak at Brand's park tonight at the annual picnic of the United Irish societies, arrived in Chicago yesterday. "If a referendum vote were taken in the south," Mayor Grace is quoted as having said, "it would be found that a vast majority is opposed to the league of nations."

Lieut. Gov. John G. Oglesby's itinerary tomorrow takes him to Highland Park, Waukegan, Woodstock, Marengo, Rockford, Winnebago, Pecatonica, Freeport, Stockton, and Galena at night. Wednesday he is in the Thirteenth congressional district finishing at Rock Island and Moline at night. Col. John V. Clinnin will accompany him to Rock Island and Moline. Col. Frank L. Smith, candidate for senator, is scheduled for the Twenty-second and Twenty-third congressional districts this week, with the exception of Wednesday, when he is to be at the Kankakee fair.

Paul J. Healy, who served in France with the 132d infantry, has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for representative in the Nineteenth senatorial district, and has been indorsed by the regular Democratic organization.

WILSON SILENCE ON COX SPEECH WORRIES PARTY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—President's Wilson continued silence on Gov. Cox's speech of acceptance, in which the Democratic nominee went the limit in accepting Mr. Wilson's league of nations ideas, is causing comment among Democratic leaders here.

It had been expected by administration leaders that Presirent Wilson had in preparation several days ago a message of congratulation to Gov. Cox on his pronouncement of party issues making the league of nations the leader of them all, but now a week has passed and nothing has come from the White House on the subject.

Secretary Tumulty, who has returned to Washington after attending the Cox notification and looking party affairs over in New York and New Jersey, had nothing to say when asked today when the President was going to comment on Gov. Cox's address to the voters.

Some Democrats are inclined to feel that the President should have spoken before this and that for him not to have done so they regard as a slight to the new leader of the party.

COURT ORDERS MAYOR TO PAY $93 BACK TAX

Olson Enters Judgment for 1915 Assessment.

Judgment against Mayor William Hale Thompson for $93,55 and costs for nonpayment of certain personal taxes for 1915 was entered yesterday by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal court.

Judge Olson dismissed that part of the suit which dealt with a similar charge in connection with the mayor's 1916 personal property taxes. The mayor's attorneys immediately announced their intention of appealing the case to the Illinois Supreme court.

The judge's finding hinged on the appearance of a letter "R" after the mayor's name in the 1915 assessment roll. Assistant State's Attorney Frank J. Carroll introduced evidence to show that the letter indicated that the mayor made a return on personal property at his former office in the First National Bank building and thereby confessed the correctness of the assessment.

Mayor Fails to Appear.

Assistant Corporation Counsels Brown and Hornstein were badly handicapped by the failure of the mayor to appear and testify on this point. In his finding Chief Justice Olson said:

"The state's contention, backed by the records of the assessor's office, is that the R means that the mayor or his agent made a return on property at [illegible] South Dearborn street. There is no direct evidence that contradicts this contention.

"The defense says that the R does not necessarily mean a return; that it may have been placed there by some clerk who sought to save the mayor from the 50 per cent penalty provided for failure to make a return under the law.

"In 999 cases out of 1,000 the R actually means a return, and in view of the fact that the mayor has not denied that he made a return, the court will assume that the public records are correct."

Tax Book Missing.

It was brought out that the field book of the tax assessors' office, covering the period when the mayor should have filed his schedule, is mysteriously missing.

"The book has been missing for two weeks," said Chief Clerk Paul H. Weigel of the assessors' office.

"I am informed that it was in the state's attorney's office two weeks ago," Attorney Breen said.

Assistant State's Attorney Carroll demanded that this assertion be stricken from the records. He declared the book never was in the state's attorney's office.

17 Year Old Boy, Fined $100 as Speeder, to Appeal

Seventeen year old Edward Udell, who has been arrested four times since January for speeding, was fined $100 and costs in Justice of the Peace D. M. Mickey's court, Wilmette. His father, Bertram Udell, 302 Park avenue, Wilmette, announced he would appeal the case. Edward says the motorcycle policemen are persecuting him.

Witness Against Geary Stabbed; Seek Roommate

Patrick Murphy, 30 years old, 10 East Twenty-second street, a witness against Gene Geary in the Tripple murder trial, was stabbed last night. His injuries are not serious. The police are looking for Patrick Carroll, a roommate of Murphy's. They argued over a woman, the police believe.

Bird by Name and Nature

[Daguerre Photo.]

Her name is Bird Millman. If you've been under the big top in Grant park you have seen her hopping and skipping at a dizzy height, her twinkling feet apparently treading nothing more substantial than the circumambient. That's why they call her bird. She is the aerial sprite of the circus. One of her most enchanting acts is captioned "A Fairy on a Cobweb," in which she walks a slender wire, invisible from the ground.

BOMB AT YELLOW CAB GARAGE JUST MISSES BIG TANK

One man was injured and twenty or more workers thrown into a panic last night when an explosion, believed to have been caused by dynamite, broke windows in the garage of the Yellow Cab company at 1153 West Monroe street.

Chief Garrity, after looking at the hole in the ground near the center of the rear wall, declared that if the explosive had been placed a short distance farther west along the building line it would have wrecked an underground tank containing 2,800 gallons of gasoline.

Albert R. Weinshank, manager of the garage, told the police he believed the explosion was the work of a rival taxicab organization.

START CAMPAIGN TO CUT LOSS ON HANDLING MEAT

A nationwide campaign to eliminate avoidable losses on livestock, thereby saving millions of pounds of meat for the nation's supply, was launched yesterday through the appointment of two large committees by Everett C. On the advisory and publicity committees named yesterday, Mr. Brown appointed representatives of railroads, producers' organizations, stockyards, shipping associations, the Iinstitute of American Meat Packers and livestock exchanges throughout the country.

MILLIONAIRES OF LAKE COUNTY FACE TAX QUIZ

Lawyer Charges They Are Evading Assessment.

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 14.—Declaring there are nearly 75 millionaires living in Lake county who have been evading personal property tax on stocks and bonds running into millions of dollars, Attorney Larry A. McGill of Chicago, through Attorney Charles Jack of Waukegan filed petition before the Lake county board of review, demanding that these wealthy men be summoned to appear Aug. 23 to show cause why they should not have personal taxes assessed against them.

Among the more prominent persons called are: Julius Rosenwald, Edward F. Mandel, John Borden, David B. Jones, Ernest A. Hammill, James W. and Charles H. Thorne, and Stanley Field.

The persons in question live in Highland Park, Lake Forest, and Lake Bluff. Members of the board said McGill has informed them that he has evidence to prove they have avoided paying the tax on stocks and bonds since 1913.

"In the case of one rich man in Highland Park, Mr. McGill declares he will prove that he has $40,000,000 in stocks and bonds which he acquired since 1913, on which he has not been paying a cent's worth of taxes," said one member of the review board today. As a result of this move it is figured by board members that the biggest addition to taxes of Lake county that has ever been made in a single action will be attained.

WOUNDED MAN ENDS HIS LIFE TO AVOID ARREST

Identity of the well dressed bandit, who, preferring death to capture by the police, committed suicide after he had been twice wounded by a railroad watchman, was still a mystery last night.

Although crowds viewed the body in the undertaking rooms at 5356 West Grand avenue none was able to identify it. Police sent out to check up on the laundry marks on the victim's linen were unsuccessful.

The man was shot by Tony Fuchs, 1611 West Chicago avenue, a watchman in the Narragansett avenue yards of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad company. He encountered the prowler among some freight cars and, when he did not halt on command, opened fire. The man fell to the ground wounded and fired at Fuchs. Then he became still. When Fuchs reached him he was unconscious.

The watchman went for the police. When he returned the man had disappeared. A short time later two shots were heard, but it was not until daylight yesterday that the body was discovered.

The man, wounded twice in the abdomen by the watchman, had dragged himself three blocks and then fired two shots into his head. He is described as about 35 years of age, 5 feet 9 inches tall and of medium build. He was dressed in a suit of good material over which he was wearing a suit of overalls.

Laundry marks, "W. M." and "W. S.," were found. In the pockets were $35 and a gold watch which bore the name W. M. Kenley, Canton, O.

WHAT CAN HAPPEN IN EUROPE.

The treaty of peace left Russia hostile and Germany, Austria, Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria dissatisfied. Defeated nations are not expected to be satisfied after a war, and in that respect the situation is not unnatural, but it is of consequence to both victor and defeated to consider what the probable or possible results of dissatisfaction are.

Poland was not satisfied and endeavored to find satisfaction by taking Russian territory. It was one of the nations aligned with the victors, but isolated in hostile or dissatisfied territory. Other such nations are Roumania, Greece, and Serbia, and the new Jugo-Slavia and Czecho-Slovakia. Poland's experience was that she could not defend herself and the nations with which she was aligned could not help her.

The nations which have no use for the treaty do not form a compact mass in eastern and central Europe, but the area is broken only in spots by patches of country which are small and in some cases new in national organization. The map in adjoining columns shows the extent of Europe, within shaded boundaries, which would benefit by an overthrow of peace conditions.

The consequences of the peace were imposed to exist for many years, for several generations at least, and in some cases forever, as nearly as men ever are justified in thinking in that term. Germany is to be regulated for generations and taxed for generations. Austria is supposed to remain an insignificant state and it has not yet found any means of supporting itself. Hungary has been deprived of lands the loss of which Hungarian nationalism deeply resents. The Tyrolean Germans, who were given to the Italians, will die hard. Bulgaria hates the Serbians and the Greeks, and the Greeks are active in taking from the Turks territory for which the Bulgarians have fought.

All these regions, which form the greater part of central Europe, have as much cause as the Russians to be opposed to victorious western Europe.

They have hostilities which set them against each other. Hungary had an experience with the Reds which does not incline it to Russia. Germany had an experience with the Reds which made it fear Russian proletarian propaganda. Hungary also had an experience with the Roumanians which left bitterness.

The question is whether they will find in their common objection to the conditions of peace reasons for coöperation which will transcend the factors which keep them apart. Is the force in eastern and central Europe integrating rather than disintegrating?

Germany could not afford to have a Russian army going over her territory to attack France. We are certain of that. If the Russians could go by air the Germans would be glad enough to have them dropped in France or Great Britain, but they could not have Russians passing through Germany, to raid every German wine cellar and fill Germany with a mujik orgy.

Although the Russian doctrine is the German doctrine of Marx, the Germans do not want Russian social ideas in Germany. There is that hostility which might prevent an entente, but there are considerations which may promote it.

It might result in the elimination of the Danzig corridor which separates East Prussia from Germany, in the annexation of Austria, which wants to be annexed; in the restoration of Hungarian lands, and in the modification of treaty terms which, unmodified, will ride Germany for generations.

Central and eastern Europe are subject to powerful influences in the direction of solidity and coöperation. Each nation now hostile to the peace could obtain, in coöperation with the others, a reëstablishment of the pre-war conditions and a relief from almost obliterating obligations.

The entente necessary to reveal a common purpose and to produce common measures might require several or many years in development, but the obligations will require many times that number of years for their fulfillment, and some of the losses never can be made good until they are made good by force.

If Great Britain and France find that Russia and central Europe are developing a common purpose they will find themselves facing an alliance probably more dangerous than the military alliance which caused the world war.

It is only a question whether the deterrents are greater than the incentives. The tendency in Russia, we think, will be towards a development with which Germany can deal. The Russian doctrines which could not exist in harmony with the purposes of any democratic government are being modified or effaced by experience. The Russians are getting away from the confiscation of property. It was an agrarian impossibility in the beginning.

Russia in a few years may be ready for German coöperation in industry and trade, and ready for political concord. It is possible that before many years the treaty terms will be nullified. They have bound up too much of the future in one sheaf. Human beings do not make chains strong enough to contain so many years and hold so much territory.

Poland has had the first experience in meeting great forces which exist in eastern and central Europe, and those forces could not be eradicated by the peace council. The council made a new map and it made its terms, but other years will have a wet sponge.

A RADICAL ON RED RUSSIA.

Any criticism of Russian bolshevism, any assertion of discreditable facts, from any source that can be labeled "capitalist," is scorned by the adherents of communism. The observations of Mr. Bertrand Russell following a five weeks' trip to Russia hardly can be disposed of so lightly. Mr Russell, it is true, is a gentleman, a man of education and intellectual occupation. He could not be classed as a proletaire, a manual worker, but neither could Lenin nor Trotzky nor a considerable proportion of the admirers of Lenin's enterprise in this country. Mr. Russell is, however, a philosophical radical of known sincerity and courage, and his attitude toward the communist experiment was friendly and optimistic. That his conclusions are emphatically adverse ought to carry weight.

Mr. Russell's testimony begins with an assertion which has significant bearing on what we said the other day in regard to the Asiatic aspect of the bolshevik menace and the Russian problem. "Much," he says, "in their methods is merely Russian, and does not distinguish them from their compatriots of other parties. It is difficult to exaggerate the difference between a Russian and an Englishman. I am convinced there is more resemblance between Mr. Smillie and Mr. Winston Churchill than between the former and Lenin or the latter and Kolchak."

Mr. Russell does not specify and our Red advocates may use his remark to load the excesses of bolshevism on this Russian factor while asserting that communism in western Europe would be guiltless of inhumanities. Their reasoning would not carry them very far, inasmuch as violence is preached as an essential of the bolshevik method. What the rest of us have to consider is that the influence represented by communism has its source now in Russia and is deeply stamped by the Asiatic morale and has turned openly to Asia for aid and alliance.

But what does Mr. Russell find as the actual results of communist rule where it has had full sway for three years? American Reds are making their chief attack upon our system on the grounds of liberty. But Mr. Russell finds no liberty under the communist rule. He finds "a profound difference between the theories of actual bolsheviki and the version of those theories current among advanced Socialists in this country (England). Friends of Russia here think of the dictatorship of the proletariat as merely a new form of representative government in which only working men and women have votes and the constituencies are partly occupational, not geographical. They think that 'proletariat' means 'proletariat,' but 'dictatorship' does not quite mean 'dictatorship.' This is the opposite of the truth. When a Russian communist speaks of dictatorship he means the word literally, but when he speaks of the proletariat he uses the word in a Pickwickian sense."

If a "capitalist" critic said that, wouldn't our parlor radicals hiss! But Mr. Russell specifies. He says the Russian communist means by proletariat "the class conscious" part of the proletariat, i. e., the Communist party. He includes people by no means proletarian (such as Lenin and Chicherin) who have the right opinions, and he excludes such wage earners as have not the right opinions, whom he classifies as lackeys of the bourgeoisie. Opposition is crushed without mercy and without shrinking from the methods of the czarist police, many of whom are still employed at their old work.

Thus power, ruthlessly used, is in the hands of representatives of one party, which claims a membership of 600,000 in a total population of 120,000,000. Virtually all opposition is disfranchised, yet the very men in America who are demanding political and social equality for the Negro and crying out against capitalist tyranny, demanding the right of unrestricted speech and assemblage, are the warmest admirers of bolshevism and want to plant it in America in place of our democracy.

Space is not available to give Mr. Russell's details as we should like. The article, studiously moderate in tone, should be widely read. As a picture of the bolshevik system, with its remorseless disregard for private freedom, its centralized tyranny is the more impressive for the absence of those dark shadows of cruelty and bigotry which Mr. Russell's philosophic survey omits.

NO TAMMANY IN ILLINOIS.

A quotation which the Lundin-Thompson campaign makes much of is Dr. Samuel Johnson's familiar epigram: "Patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel."

Dr. Johnson would be as much gratified over this misuse of his remark as a man would be at finding a pole cat in his bed.

But we have an epigram of our own which we offer for the Thompson-Lundin Tammanyites to think about. It's this: "The proverb that patriotism is the last refuge of a scoundrel is frequently the last refuge of a traitor."

Editorial of the Day

THE CLEANUP IN CHICAGO.

[Brooklyn Standard-Union.]

Conviction and sentencing to prison of twenty members of the Communist Labor party should remove from doubting minds any question of the intent and activities of this organization masking itself under the false assumption that it in some way represents the labor interests of the United States.

There can be no talk of persecution in this case, none of the accustomed declamatory protest that a great and rich government has unjustly employed its vast powers to railroad poor and defenseless men to jail. The head and front of the offending was William Bross Lloyd, millionaire Socialist, and the defendants enjoyed every advantage of legal skill money could employ.

The question was whether a man could keep within the law and advocate a policy under which banks were to be blown open to obtain funds to buy rifles and ammunition for a revolution to overturn the government. The defense was the customary demand for "free speech."

The court held that the sort of free speech sought by the defense would put perjury, libel, slander and any other criminal act consisting of words on the immune list, and at one stroke wipe out most of the liberties and safeguards of the nation, the state and the individual.

The Communist Labor party grew out of the Socialist left wing convention in New York in July of last year. In the light of the Chicago verdict there seems to be justification for the department of justice's attitude that membership therein is all the evidence required to make any alien eligible for deportation.

MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM.

Such a night sings! Some Lydian shepherd's song
Is by the milky moonlight softly trilled,
'Neath tall black trees in gray-green spaces filled
With errant satellites, now led a-wrong
From pale, moon-banished stars: the path along
An overflow of heaven has been spilled
In silver silence, from which Love's distilled
The antique melody, sweet, sanguine, strong.

Such a night sings, and asks for audience
No motley worldling's changeful, glib pretense,
Nor does it court the scholar's hand-cupped ear,
Which analyzes sound but song can't hear.
It wants but lovers, so I pray that we
Sometime may be its close-clasped audit'ry.
PETRARCHINO.

IN Madrid, we read, a weekly review has been founded to which only subscribers can contribute. "Every manuscript which is accepted receives a number. One in every ten is paid for, the lucky one being the manuscript whose number ends with the same figure as the winning number in the national lottery at the first drawing after the article is published." Not a bad idea.

IN adapting it to this column we should improve on it by giving a number to each rejected contribution, and then printing one in every ten of these, the winning manuscript to be, say, the one whose number ends with the same figure as the first automobile license sign passing our window at a given moment. Let's try it on the next ten.

EVERY night, during a recent motor trip, we wondered why the least bad hotels are almost always located on the noisiest street corners. Boy, Page Brother Knutson and Ask Him How the Strike Came Out.

[From the La Crosse Tribune and Leader.]

Will you please publish this in your paper under public debate. I want to ask Brother Knutson to publish how the building trades strike was settled as so many of the union men don't know whether it is closed shop or open shop, and neither does the public. There is so much unrest among the men in the city that I think that it is the duty of Brother Knutson, also the building contractors, to publish how the strike was settled, so all men, both union men and also the public will know how it was settled. There is nothing to be ashamed of. If we union men won the closed shop, we wish to know it; and also if it is the open shop, we wish to know it. I ask brother Knutson to publish in the paper how this strike was settled, because if it was the closed shop we union men want to know it, and if it was the open shop we also want to know it. So I call on Brother Knutson to publish how it was settled, also call on the building contractors to publish how the agreement they signed reads, so we union men that don't know how the strike was settled will know whether we won or lost the strike.

NO symphonies or other large compositions are being turned out in Europe, because the cost of printing them is prohibitive, not because of a lack of composers able to go the distance. But he's not singing, singing now for me;

And over grasses little zephyrs run;
Ah, once I danced and once I ran as they,

And stars forget their offerings of light,
I seem the soul of some too-hopeful Spring
That through Oblivion trails a broken wing.

CURING CONSTIPATION.

DR. ROY UPHAM in treating ordinary constipation follows this method: On arising, two glasses of very hot water. In some cases he adds a teaspoonful of salt to the water; in others, two tablespoonfuls of soda; in still others, two tablespoonfuls of milk sugar.

My advice is that the salt, soda, and milk sugar be omitted. Following this, fifteen minutes' exercise and a cold sponge. Breakfast consists of some fruit and a cereal in which two tablespoonfuls of agar has been mixed. Rye or Boston bread is used instead of white bread. Many need bran bread. Formula for Upham bran bread:

Two cups of wheat bran.
One cup of flour.
One teaspoon of salt.
One and a half tablespoonfuls of molasses.

Mix bran, flour, baking powder, salt and molasses; then add enough milk to make a dough. Various fruits, such as raisins, figs, and dates, may be added if desired.

Bake the dough into a loaf or into gems or steam it to make a pudding and serve with honey or other syrup.

At 10 o'clock in the morning drink a glass of buttermilk, sour milk, or kumyss. Take eight ounces of water between meals in the morning. Before luncheon four tablespoonfuls of olive oil, served iced. While meat may be served at luncheon, the bulk of the meal must consist of such vegetables as green beans, celery, cabbage, onions, cauliflower, carrots, beets, and a luncheon salad in which olive oil and vinegar are employed.

Bread the same as at breakfast; stewed fruit and a glass of cider with a tablespoonful of milk sugar in it. At 4 o'clock another glass of buttermilk.

Dinner should be preceded by some iced olive oil. The dinner should be along the same general lines as the luncheon—a bran bread, vegetables and fruit, with some meat; a fruit salad with considerable oil and vinegar; a dessert of stewed prunes to which a tablespoon of agar-agar has been added is excellent. When he gives mineral oil he mixes it with grape juice, equal parts, and adds an ounce of mucilage of acacia to each pint of the mixture. The day's routine concludes with abdominal exercises, such as those used in the United States army.

Among foods the constipated should avoid are soups, rice, sago, farina, cream of wheat, cheese, chocolate, cocoa, cranberries, huckleberries, clarets, and red wines. In the general discussion of the subject in the New York Medical Journal the need of drinking water in considerable quantity was emphasized.

SWIMMERS' EYES.

D. K. writes: "Is it harmful to the eyes to keep them open under water; also whether a great deal of swimming affects the ears in any way? Some one told me that I should close my eyes before going into the water, open them after I was under, and close them again before coming to the surface, as the change from air to water and from water to air will harm the eyes. Is this true?"

REPLY.

Some people can keep their eyes open under water without producing symptoms. It makes most people red eyed.

Boils in the ears are frequent among people who stay much in the water. The precautions mentioned in the second paragraph of your letter are not worth while.

SEND STAMPED ENVELOPE.

W. L. N. writes: "Will you kindly give me a formula to cure the tobacco habit?"

REPLY.

Send a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

TRY EATING LESS.

Miss L. B. writes: "1. Do Epsom salt baths help a person to reduce weight? 2. Are they injurious? 3. How much Epsom salt may be used in the daily bath? 4. Is it possible to lose six pounds a week by taking these baths?"

REPLY.

1. No.
2. No.
3. Makes no difference.
4. If you cut your diet enough you will lose, regardless of whether you take baths or not.

BETTER TRY SANITARIUM.

G. E. A. writes: "1. I have pulmonary tuberculosis, and have a lot of moisture on my lungs. Will iodide of potassium clear this off. 2. Is it harmful? 3. Of what benefit is Iceland moss tea in lung trouble? 4. Will ipecac clear off the lungs?"

REPLY.

1. No.
2. It is likely to upset your digestion and lessen your appetite.
3. Probably none.
4. No. You should be in bed taking fresh air and eating plenty of good food. A sanitarium is much the best place for you.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

Letters for this department must be signed with names and addresses of the writers.

THE SMOKE HABIT.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[To the Friend of the People.]—There is an apartment house which is three stories in front and two in back. In the back is a large chimney, the smoke from which blows directly into third story windows of rear apartment. This may be caused by the branches of a tree which drop almost directly over said chimney. It is impossible to have windows on west side of our apartment open because of the dense black smoke from this chimney. Can anything be done to better these conditions? H. H. O.

An investigation was made by an inspector from this department, as a result of which a notice was served on agent to extend chimney on rear of building and abate nuisance of smoke and odors entering living room windows in adjoining building east.

JOHN DILL ROBERTSON,
Commissioner of Health.

ALL HET UP.

Evanston, Ill., Aug. 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly give me the state law, the Chicago law, and the Evanston law on the amount of heat that a landlord shall provide for his tenant? On Jan. 2, 1920, our apartment in Evanston, Ill., was 45 degrees F. all day and the landlord, a prominent man, has refused to fix his furnace, and this summer he has done nothing to fix the said furnace. Can anything be done in the matter? L. J. C.

1. A "reasonable amount," if the facts or the wording of the lease are such as to place on him the burden of furnishing heat.

2. We do not know.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNTIDY PARKWAY.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[To the Friend of the People.]—The owners of a fruit store on the corner of Forty-third street and Calumet avenue insist on dumping their empty boxes, poor vegetables, and other rubbish on the Calumet avenue sidewalk and street.

This is unsightly, insanitary, and unpleasant to all living near by, but is continued in spite of all protests. X. Y. Z.

The owner of the fruit store complained of has been notified to stop the practice of dumping rubbish and boxes in the parkway.

THOMAS H. BYRNE,
Superintendent of Streets.

BROKEN CONTRACT.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A person is employed by a company for one year at $100 per month, payable semi-monthly by the company's check. The second year the pay is made $150 per month, payable as before. Late in July of same year he is told his services will not be needed after August on account of retrenchment. Is not this a broken contract, and can be collected for the full year if the party offers his services for the full term? W. F. H.

Yes, on the exact facts stated.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

MICHIGAN AVE. TO SIXTY-THIRD.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[To the Friend of the People.]—In your issue of July 16 you stated Michigan avenue from Fifty-fifth to Sixty-third would be paved this year.

I understand the property owners and the board of education have entered a protest and this work will not be done. Is this correct? G. H.

Concerning the paving of South Michigan avenue, from East Garfield boulevard to East Sixty-third street, I beg to advise that on account of the Supreme court decision the above improvement was abandoned. New proceedings have been started and in due time your correspondent will be notified the time and place of the public hearing.

EDWARD J. GLACKIN,
Superintendent Special Assessments.

FLATS ARE SCARCE.

Chicago, Aug. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Last August the writer rented an apartment and the landlord demanded a two year lease. Since then rentals have increased considerably, and the landlord is trying his best to get the tenant out by making things miserably uncomfortable.

Is there any way in which the tenant can compel the landlord to live up to the agreements in the lease, such as keeping up hot water and heat? M. A. S.

Yes, but in view of the housing shortage we advise against holding back from the rent. We advise you to supply the deficiency by gas and sue for its cost.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGAL TENDER.

Paxton, Ill., Aug. 10.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is the United States treasurer legally required to redeem silver coin or certificates in gold?

2. Are [a] silver certificates or [b] silver dollars legal tender?

3. Are federal bank notes legal tender? I. N. C.

1. No. 2 and 3. Paper money bears on its face a statement of its sufficiency as legal tender. 2b. Yes, within limits, but the safe course if you are making a tender is to use gold or paper bearing a statement that it is legal tender.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

ANOTHER WALLOP AT RACE SUICIDE.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I happened to read the Voice this morning while nursing my darling 7 months baby. May I inquire of "C. J." what Mrs. does to need that afternoon nap?

I live in a twelve apartment building, and positively know what ails these childless women. If they don't sleep until noon they must have two or three hours' sleep in the afternoon. We mothers are glad to get our night's rest, and if any one needs an afternoon nap it is "mothers" and not your class, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. You poor, contemptible beings, we really ought to forgive your ignorance, because you don't know what real life and love are. MRS. C. E. R.

CHILDREN AS A SIDELIGHT ON PARENTS.

Chicago, Aug. 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—"C. J.," in a recent communication, tells of dirty hallways, noise, and other incidentals which must always be counted on when families with children move into flat buildings. But "C. J." does not place the blame where it properly belongs—on the parents of such children. It is not necessary for a "healthy" youngster to be yelling at the top of his voice all the time; dirty children who run around like stray dogs in the neighborhood reflect the type of parents they have. Some of them can swear like troopers—a little trait derived from the parents, who as a rule use the same kind of language. Leave a summer home vacant for a month or two, and you'll find when you come back that every window has been smashed by "healthy, fun loving" boys. And everything they can steal will be carried away—to their homes. Some parents never ask questions.

We have a feminized system of education in this country which does away utterly with the discipline necessary to raise a well mannered boy.

Landlords are right in barring noisy, dirty children from flat buildings. Let them find homes in the suburbs or in the country until they become civilized and know how to regard others' rights. M. E. F.

FOR AN ANIMATED SAFETY ISLE.

Chicago, Aug. 11.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I am sometimes amused but more often times disgusted when reading so called suggestions in this column of your paper regarding the so called safety islands now in use (misuse) on our boulevards.

These islands are placed in our streets primarily to regulate traffic, both pedestrian and motorist, and not mere targets for wild eyed speedsters. I would advocate some sort of a mechanism attached to each island that would work a huge hammer, striking each reckless driver a sharp tap upon his thick skulled head as he bumps one of these posts, as a reminder that one must drive a motor car on our city streets with his eyes open.

These islands are all placed so that any normal person, using just ordinary care, can easily avoid striking them and at the same time keeping the traffic within regulated areas. Now if these drivers cannot see a large white lamp post in clear view in the center of the driveway, what chance has the thoughtful driver or pedestrian on our streets? A. H. P.

FOR ONE BIG UNION.

Cicero, Ill., Aug. 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—If you are fare enof to lissen to a laborin man let me tell you that the cheap skate woman who lives in that flat and scabs on the windo washers union is freedoms worst kind of enemy she deserves to get hers from the union when work is unionised no one cant put the union man out yet the railroad unions have run the roads in the war and wil never give them up now yet and we will be painters and window washers and railroad mer for a long while yet and ten yea five years more they wont be bankers or flat owners nor Americans nor Eng or Ger but all one big union and everybody who gets anything belong or starve or be sent to farming as a slave where the women washes their own winders an are fredom clases. MAX FANNING.

F. R.'S VAIN DELUSION.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In the press reports of Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt's speech in the Auditorium last night he is said to have "served notice that it is his immediate political duty to round up the old Progressive vote for the Democratic national ticket." He is indulging a vain delusion!

Franklin D. is entitled to his surname of Roosevelt. But as an honest man (and that surname should cover one) he cannot hope to mislead any "old Progressive" into voting for the Democratic national ticket because his name is on it. Franklin D. is a horse of a different color from Theodore. The old leader of the Progressives must stir in his grave in protest at the bare suggestion that he would stand for the Wilson administration, with its un-American league of nations, which Mr. Franklin D. and his running mate, Gov. Cox, are putting up as a fetish for the American people to bow down to and worship. EDWARD A. HALSEY.

"AMUSED."

Chicago, Aug. 8.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Your recent editorials on Russia and Japan have been highly amusing. Had Roosevelt complained to Japan re Sakhalin, it would have been "real Americanism," but because Medill McCormick and Mr. Wilson are not on the same side politically it is all wrong!

Mr. Editor, will you please tell the public when the United States made peace with Russia or are you trying to forget the fact that you got an awful licking in the region of Archangel and had to run away and leave the people you wanted to succor? America forgot one of her ideals when she went to war with Russia, viz., never to attack any country until said country is nearly exhausted fighting other powers or internal strife. May I not suggest, Mr. Editor, that the United States do all they can to induce England, France, Italy, etc., to attack Russia, and when they are all pretty well exhausted, America can join and win the war.

I consider the newspapers in this country are doing more to encourage bolshevism and race war than any other propaganda, because they do not tell the truth. They don't even try to. H. DOLAS.

OFFERING US AN IDEA.

Chicago, Aug. 12.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—I consider it your duty as editor of one of Chicago's leading newspapers to enlighten the public on the league of nations. They should vote against it, as by signing the league they sign away America's liberty. As for the entente, in case America would call upon them, they simply would excuse themselves as having men or money to [illegible]. LIBERTY.

"ISSUE ENOUGH."

Chicago, Aug. 10.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—In your editorial of yesterday, "Cox Accepts the Issue," you say, among other good things, "The Democratic party wants to transfer the seat of the American government to Geneva; the Republican policy is to retain it at Washington." That is issue enough, grave enough, alarming enough. As a lifelong Democrat I intend to vote against Cox so as to repudiate this policy and also to repudiate Wilsonism generally. Keep right after Cox. G. H. HARRIS.

TAKING IT SERIOUSLY.

Chicago, Aug. 9.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Mr. G. D. Urban's article in THE TRIBUNE this morning said: "Now that the country is dry, and the people are reaping the benefits thereby, would it not be advisable to extend the principle so as to include all the people caught gathering dandelions and picking elderberries." I agree with Mr. Urban, but first tell me why you say "dry." Why, this city of ours is far from dry. Seems to me it's wetter than ever. I have often heard men say they can get all the whisky they want, and wine, too, for 50 or 75 cents a drink. I am beginning to think were the laws of the United States and the state of Illinois enforced we might be dry and many a home made happy, possibly too, fewer divorce cases. F. SMITH.

The six best circulators in the public library last week were:

- "This Side of Paradise," by F. Scott Fitzgerald.
- "White Shadows of the South Seas," by Frederick O'Brien.
- "Now It Can Be Told," by Philip Gibbs.
- "Woman Triumphant," by Blasco Ibanez.
- "The Rescue," by Joseph Conrad.
- "Mrs. Warren's Daughter," by Sir Harry Johnson.

"THE PRAIRIE MOTHER" is a continuation of that appealing story of "The Prairie Wife," which a few years ago made us all blink our eyes in wonder that a man—and a lawyer man at that—could have made such an intimate and tender record of a woman's love and her adjustment to a new and harsh life. When the anonymous author was dragged from his comfortable seat in the grandstand and put at the head of the procession, Arthur Stringer, a handsome, debonair, cosmopolitan successful lawyer was discovered to be the author of a book which seemed certainly to have been written not only by a woman but by a woman of the great prairies.

In "The Prairie Mother" Mr. Stringer shows that same genial human womanliness in his heroine, but he tells less of an idyllic story. It would be a very sad story if the prairie mother weren't so irrepressibly common sensible and if her sense of humor hadn't staked the claim that hope is supposed to occupy in the human breast.

"The Prairie Wife" was an idyll. "The Prairie Mother" is a tragedy of reality which has comic reliefs and a "happy" ending. It has, however, the same provocative quality that the earlier book had—of making the frontier, despite its hardships, sound like the happy hunting grounds of the blessed.

All of J. D. Beresford's later books must be read with a sense of disappointment by one who remembers Jacob Stahl, which to me has always been one of the most satisfactory of those intimate, detailed records of the lives of average persons, which for some time threatened to make novel writing a branch of pedagogy. Lately Beresford has chosen themes which have a slight tinge of fantasticality unsuited to his matter of fact method.

His latest novel, "An Imperfect Mother," is that sort. It is really composed of two highly dramatic and distinct episodes in the life of a mother and her son, loosely connected by a rather casual record of the son's fortunes, as if, part of the time, the author had become bored with his story and were merely carrying on from a sense of duty.

Mr. Beresford has drained his characters of all emotion in the first episode, in which the boy's sudden independence of her is the occasion of her abandonment of her family. He is happier in the second episode, when the mother's revelation of the cause of her own actions aids in bringing together the son and the girl he loves. The situation is one of infinite complexity and delicacy, but Beresford's casual manner somehow robs it of the mystery which is necessary to make it wholly successful.

A book for fishermen. "Golden Days, the Fishing Log of a Painter in Brittany!" It is by Romilly Fedden, whose exhibition in New York last spring was very successful. This fall there will be exhibitions in Montreal and Boston. Mr. Fedden is also an ardent student of folklore and a fisherman con amore. He was for four years a captain in the British army.

In a lengthy review of contemporary American literature in the current number of the Mercure de France the writer singles out Sherwood Anderson's "Winesburg, Ohio," as "perhaps the best fiction published in any language since the armistice."

He says further of American fiction: "If a capable critic were to select the most truly representative of the American fiction for translation into French the European public would be struck above all else by the technical proficiency which these stories would display, far more than by their display of imagination."

He thinks that the technique of the short story in America has become far too rigid. His five rules for writing successfully for American magazines are: "First, bear in mind that you are not writing for a class that enjoys satire either at the expense of itself or at the expense of some other class of society. There are no such divisions in the American reading public. You are writing for an entire people. Second, avoid questions of race or religion. Don't slight the stenographer and the shop girl. Give them romance, not reality. Third, reveal the gayer, happier side of every type of American who might be attracted by the magazine. Fourth, avoid slighting references to Catholics and Jews. Fifth, go to any lengths in depicting the politician. You can safely lampoon him for any crime, including wife beating."

That's what a bright young Frenchman thinks of our magazine reading public! And the amusing part of it is that his five rules—a trifle modified—might have been written by any editor of any popular magazine.

"The Best Psychic Stories" is an anthology of seventeen of the most mystic tales written in English. They are not ghost stories in the Macbethian sense. They are classics of the supernatural, like Fiona Macleod's "The Sin Eater," now out of print; Algernon Blackwood's "The Return," and Ambrose Bierce's "The Eyes of the Panther." They are edited and compiled by J. Lewis French. They are nothing to read on a lonely night on a deserted sea coast with the waves wailing. But, given company and a candle that doesn't splutter ghastly shadows on the wall, they're fascinating and not too terrifying.

"Old Plymouth Trails," by Winthrop Packard, is a very pleasant journey walk through New England with the fragrance of the memory of the old pilgrim fathers and with the charming observations of a man who loves nature sincerely.

Mrs. C. Casquoine Hartley, in her provocative book, "Women's Wild Oats," says that marriage is no longer a religion with us, it is a sport. The book is one of those half sensational, half old fashioned pleas for the sanctity of marriage and the freedom of the sexes, for honorable partnerships outside of marriage, and for the beauty of sacrifice and service for women. It states at the same time the most conventional and the most radical theories to point the way to what Mrs. Hartley believes to be an effective and honest morality.

Arthur Symons' new volume of verse, "Lesbia and Other Poems," was published last week by E. P. Dutton & Co. Arthur Symons is one of the English writers far too little known in America. He writes with beauty of style and cadence; he sees the world and its people with the eyes of an artist; and he writes of them with complete charm.

His "Color Studies in Paris" is one of the loveliest books imaginable. "Cities and Sea Coasts and Islands" is another.

A friend of mine, a young lieutenant, who was studying in London under the auspices of the American University union just after the armistice, picked up a copy of "Cities and Sea Coasts" on a bookstall one day, was lost in its charms, and, lured by the beauty of Cornwall, which Arthur Symons crystallizes in the book, dashed off for two weeks A. W. O. L. It's that sort of book.

An "American Guide Book to France and Its Battlefields" has just been issued by the Macmillan company. It has been prepared by Capts. Ellis and Carey of the United States army and Prof. Magoffin of Johns Hopkins university. It contains all information necessary for the annual American invasion of Paris.

Which reminds me of a story Georgene Faulkner tells of a doughboy with whom she was riding one day.

"This is sure a grand country," he vouchsafed. "I'm goin' to bring my wife and kids over here to see it."

He looked about 19, she said, so she was surprised. "Have you a wife and children?"

"Nope; not yet. But I'm certainly goin' to bring 'em over here when I have."

Two pleasant Englishmen are now here, Ian Hay Beith, whose fame as a novelist has been augmented by his complete capture as a human being of all the Americans whom he met on his visits to this country, and Theodore Maynard, poet, author of "Carven from the Laurel Tree," and compiler of that anthology of songs of a past civilization, "A Tankard of Ale," which contains the famous two lines:

> "I wouldn't sell my noble thirst
> For half a dozen bags of gold."

There is a bit of gossip that on his arrival two of our most brilliant young literary figures took the good poet aside one afternoon in New York and gravely coached him on what not to do in America and that he saw them a week or so later and told them that every one he had met in the meantime had just as gravely taken him aside and told him what not to do in America!

"The Second Latchkey" is the latest romance of that literary company, C. N. and A. M. Williamson, whose firm name always looks like a railroad line.

Hugh Walpole has a permanent souvenir of his visit to the United States last year. It is a house in England bought with the proceeds of his lectures here—so I just heard. Hugh Walpole is one person who gave an audience its money's worth and an extra bun or two, as the bakers are reputed to have done in the old generous days.

He came to America to learn "American." He was much more interested in finding out what we have done than in telling us what he and his fellow lecturers had accomplished. The fact that his lecture tour was financially successful inspires one with satisfaction, rather than with the almost unreasoning peevishness which some of our foreign visitors left with us in exchange for pots of gold.

Which reminds me that the business of importing literary lecturers is wobbling. The great Maeterlinck fiasco is said to have hardened the hearts of the patient American peepul. They were more than a trifle jellied by Lord Dunsany and a few of his predecessors.

W. L. George is going to risk coming over and lecturing.

He will arrive sometime this month, watch his new novel through the presses, and then undertake his tour of the land of the free. That interview in the New York Times which Mr. George denied vehemently, in which he was said to have said that he had heard American women were deficient emotionally and he was coming over to find out, may have something to do with the fact that he will be accompanied by Mrs. George.

POEMS YOU OUGHT TO KNOW

THE DESTRUCTION OF SENNACHERIB.

By Lord Byron.

The Assyrian came down like the wolf on the fold,
And his cohorts were gleaming in purple and gold;
And the sheen of their spears was like stars on the sea,
When the blue wave rolls nightly on deep Galilee.

Like the leaves of the forest when summer is green,
That host with their banners at sunset were seen;
Like the leaves of the forest when autumn hath blown,
That host on the morrow lay wither'd and strown.

For the angel of death spread his wings on the blast,
And breathed in the face of the foe as he pass'd;
And the eyes of the sleepers wax'd deadly and chill,
And their hearts but once heaved—and forever grew still.

And there lay the steed with his nostril all wide,
But through it there roll'd not the breath of his pride;
And the foam of his gasping lay white on the turf,
And cold as the spray of the rock beating surf.

And there lay the rider, distorted and pale,
With the dew on his brow and the rust on his mail;
And the tents were all silent, the banners alone,
The lances unlifted, the trumpet unblown.

And the widows of Ashur are loud in their wail,
And the idols are broke in the temple of Baal;
And the might of the Gentile, unsmote by the sword,
Hath melted like snow in the glance of the Lord!

LIEUT. KINCAID PLAIN HOOSIER, SEARCH SHOWS

"Mystery" Fades as Spy Confesses.

Mother of Hard Working Class.

Mrs. Dora Kincaid, the mother, is still living. She is a highly respected, home loving housewife, a daughter of honest, hard working people, a wide contrast to the French light opera star pictured by the pseudo Kincaid in his wild babblings to a Rotterdam official Mrs. Kincaid is fond of opera, but that is the extent of her "theatrical career."

Arthur is of the same type, a wholesome, home loving young man. He was drafted and sent to Camp Taylor, Ky., a raw recruit. A few weeks later, while on sentry duty, he stopped the chief of staff and marched him to the guardhouse. The chief of staff enjoyed the experience, complimented young Kincaid on his faithful execution of orders, and as a result the sentry became a sergeant. He was named personal orderly to Maj. Gen. Harry Clay Hale, commandant of the camp.

Enters Officers' Training Camp.

In January, 1918, he entered the officers' training camp at Camp Taylor and in March went overseas, still as a student officer. He completed his training at Namur, France, and was commissioned a second lieutenant by an order from general headquarters on July 19, 1918. From then on until the signing of the armistice he remained in training. War department records show he was attached to the headquarters company of the 330th field artillery on Sept. 20, 1918, and was assigned to duty with the 155th field artillery brigade on Oct. 14, 1918.

He was transferred to the headquarters company, 310th field artillery, on Oct. 27, and on Oct. 30 was again transferred to the 2d army intelligence corps. On the last day of the year he was reassigned, this time to Company C, 117th ammunition train, Rainbow division, and reported to that organization for duty at Altenburg, Germany, on Jan. 4, 1919.

Fiancée's Letters Give Record.

The rest of his record overseas is checked up through letters to his fiancée, Miss Lulu Wedeking of Franklin, Ind. On Feb. 1, 1919, he was assigned to the headquarters of the 10th field artillery at Kruft, Germany, and remained there until he was picked, on April 30, to attend the A. E. F. university at Beaune, Cote d'Or, France. The army service record drops the real Kincaid when he passed through Paris. From there the war department documents pick up the record of the bogus Kincaid.

That is why. When young Kincaid arrived at Beaune he dropped his pack by a roadside, along with some other companions, and climbed to a tiny knoll to see some machine guns spitting away at targets in the valley beyond. He watched them for fifteen minutes. When he came back his pack was missing and with it his lieutenant's papers, orders, and other documents. These are the papers by means of which Schude later traveled back into Germany, escaped to Holland, and made his way to the Fort Sheridan hospital by feigning insanity and shell shock.

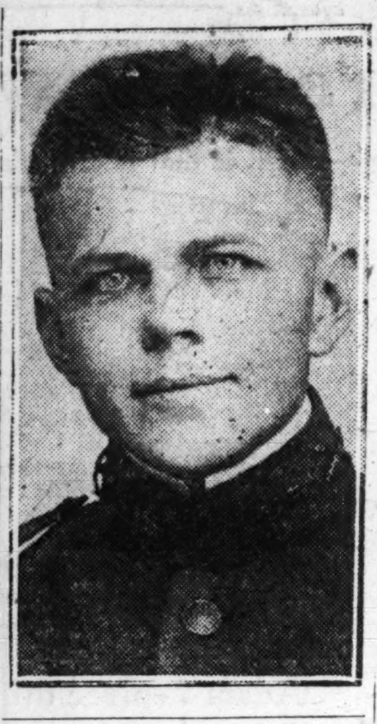
Kincaid was graduated from the university on July 17, 1919, and was sent to Camp Pontanezon at Brest for sailing orders home. He arrived at Hoboken on Aug. 12, aboard the Northern Pacific, spent a few days at Camp Dix, N. J., and returned to Franklin for a short visit with his mother. Then he returned to Camp Taylor, where he was given his discharge, back pay, and his $60 bonus. He accepted a position teaching school in Oklahoma City last winter and returned home, where he remained until he was offered the position in Texas.

Now Schude's Tale Begins.

But the war department records at Washington, bolstered by other documents, including the dueling drama of the "son of Count von Hohenhorst," told a different version of "Lieut. Kincaid's" travels after reaching Paris. It is not known whether Schude himself picked up Kincaid's pack along the dusty road at Beaune or whether another was the thief and he became the recipient of stolen property.

KINCAID

The Real Lieut. Arthur Kincaid, Whose Name Has Become Involved in a Weird Drama of the Army.



At any rate, Schude came into possession of everything necessary to identify him as Lieut. Kincaid—everything but one item, the finger prints of the real Kincaid on file at the war department. It was through these that the bogus officer was finally traced when the department sought to separate the records of the two men.

And what was Schude, if that be his right name, doing in Cote d'Or when he came into possession of the papers? Army officials may know, now that he has confessed, but this they have not revealed. Was he serving in the American army or was he a German spy gathering information in France who wanted to get back to his native country following the armistice, and then, finding it in the throes of a revolution, wanted to get out again?

Whatever the motive, Schude, traveling as Lieut. Kincaid, found no trouble in getting to Paris and passing through to Germany. Then he next appeared at the Dutch border. He bribed the guards to let him pass. According to his tale, he had shot his father in a duel at Grunewald, a suburb of Berlin. The guards, money in hand, sympathized with the patricide and let him pass.

Tells Tale of Noble Blood.

Then he threw a fit and got into a Rotterdam hospital. There the doctors found him a victim of paranoid dementia praecox. It was a most distressing case, aggravated by shell shock. But he had his lucid intervals. To Inspector of Police G. J. Welbergen he babbled his story confidentially. His mother had been a descendant of Napoleon, a Paris opera singer; his father the Count von Hohenhorst of the imperial German household, upon whom he had avenged his mother's wrong.

He had been a student of the University of Chicago when he enlisted, not drafted as Kincaid's record shows. When he reached Paris "he had resided in the Boulevard des Italiennes with his uncle, Bourbon Parma, pretender prince, and had aided him toward a French revolt." Then he had gone to Germany, shot his father and here he was in Holland, hoping to get home.

Story Was a Thriller.

Army officers sadly shook their heads and sent the poor fellow home. While in a New York hospital he sent two letters, one to Miss Wedeking, and another to Mrs. Kincaid, apologizing for having caused them any uneasiness through having the same name as their fiancé and son.

Then he was taken to Fort Sheridan, where he remained until he was discharged. He next turned up in San Francisco, where he enlisted again in the army as Arthur La Grande, a name which he found among the papers stolen from Kincaid.

But in the meanwhile the weird story taken down by the Dutch officials and American army officers who had investigated the impostor's case in Holland was forwarded to Washington, and the war department clerks became woozy trying to straighten out the tangle.

If Schude is found to have enlisted originally in the American army as a citizen of the United States he may be tried for treason, according to the district attorney. If, as he claims, he was with the German intelligence service, he may be tried by court martial as a spy. Either offense is punishable with death, as we are technically still at war.

FARMERS CALM FACING RICHES OF BIG HARVEST

"We Should Worry" Note Fills Minnesota.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Winona, Minn., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Minnesota's crops this year will have a value in excess of $500,000,000 according to the experts. They will be worth more than those of 1919 and perhaps almost up to 1918, when they registered $556,000,000 by the federal figures.

The rust is in the wheat and that is the chief fact the alarmists see, but out in the countryside they have a saying: "There's more rust on the farmers' faces than on the ears of wheat."

Canny old farmers with whiskers, grandsires in husbandry, and spruce young farmers in high power cars have repeated it with chuckling explanations "The crop was made before the rust struck, and most of it sticks to the stalks without getting into the ears."

Losses Overbalanced.

At that the rust has cut the estimated wheat yield per acre from about twenty bushels to below twelve. But along the route farmers have passed this off with a laugh, all as a hazard of farming and have waxed joyful as they dwelt on the other crops.

Idleness is lacking. The country towns wake up with a bang about 5 a. m. Business men scramble out of bed to transact business with farmers as they roar into town with stuff for the market or the creameries, or to get field spplies, and 6 o'clock p. m. sees the countryside humming. Harvest is nearly over.

The corn this year is Nature's wonder. In Minnesota it is pressing wheat to the wall. The state is in a transition period. Diversified farming is steadily marching northward. Corn this year is being grown right up to the Canadian border. Everything, dairying, fat stock, tame grasses, oats, barley, is advancing northward, driving the wheat before it.

Bread Vs. Beefsteak.

What we lose in bread we ought to make up in beefsteak. Then in the northern third, too, corn is invading the old cutover lands. Young farmers are moving in for cheaper acres, while men from Iowa and Illinois, where land is very high, are moving up into southern and middle Minnesota.

It's a continuous migration. At Olivia, for instance, Iowans have been selling Iowa farms for $400 or $450 or more an acre and moving into lands bought for $50 or $75 an acre less, while the owners of these lands have been moving either to the small cities for retirement or onto cheaper lands north and west.

The newcomers in these newer lands bring improved methods, and diversified farming grows. There are sections of old cutover lands where dairy herds are kept thirty and forty miles from a railroad, and the butter fats are collected and transported to creameries by motor truck express.

$100,000 CLUB OPTIMISTIC ON U. S. BUSINESS

Optimism regarding business was the feature yesterday at the seventeenth annual meeting and banquet of the $100,000 club of the Illinois Life Insurance company in the Hotel La Salle.

Officers' reports showed 100 members of the club had written $200,000 each of insurance during the year and four members—the newly elected officers—each had written more than $2,000,000 worth. The new officers are: President, Eugene C. Wharp; vice presidents, W. A. Martin, C. B. Jones, and J. E. Wroughton.

Harold Dyrenforth of Illinois was awarded $100 in gold as winner of the first prize in the ninth annual conservation contest. Other prizes were awarded as follows: Alvin C. Johnson, Oklahoma, $50; George H. Osgood, Kansas, $50; Robert S. Baker, Illinois, $50; John W. Griggs, Missouri, $50.

CANADA ENDS GRAIN CONTROL; TRADING TO START

Winnipeg, Man., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The Canadian government, [illegible] for four years has controlled the [illegible] of wheat and flour in Canada, at midnight relinquished its control. Beginning Monday open trading in all grains and flour is permissible. As the grain exchange here has been unable to get a quorum of members this week no date is yet fixed for opening of market. It may not be until Thursday.

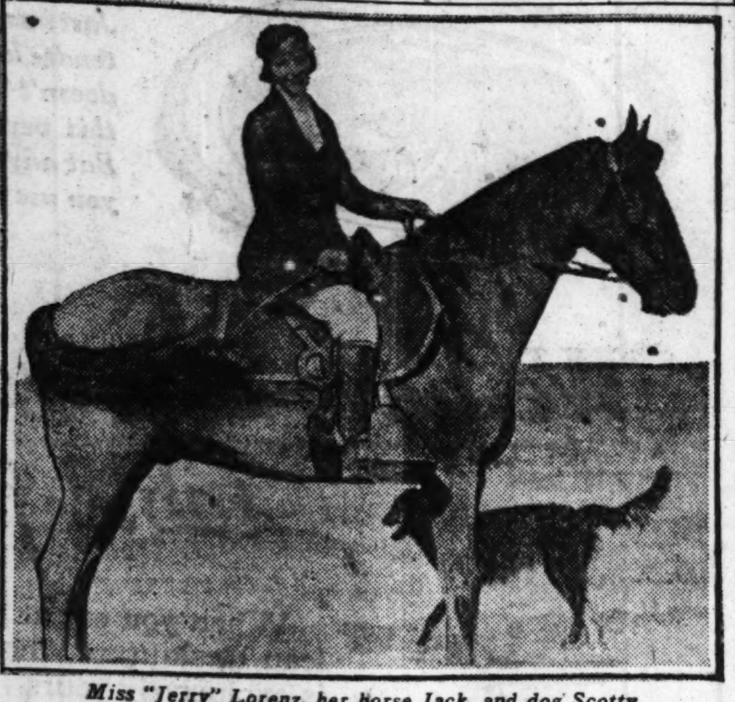
Fort Sheridan Wounded's Loss



Miss "Jerry" Lorenz, her horse Jack, and dog Scotty.

There are long faces at the Fort Sheridan hospital. "Jerry" is leaving today—"Jerry," the reconstruction aid, whose gladsome smile and cheerful, zippy disposition have kept the whole place humming with happiness for the last two years, from the commandant to the convalescent in the last cot, is going away to school.

They have never known her by any other name than "Jerry" and when a reporter asked her for her first name yesterday she said:

"Just put me down as Miss 'Jerry' Lorenz of Milwaukee."

She has been the "smile sister" on the reportorial staff of the Fort Sheridan Recall. They do not have "sob sisters" on hospital journals. Her horse, Jack, and her dog, Scotty, have been almost as familiar figures at the post as she.

"And I'm taking them both away with me to school," she said. "I wouldn't go if I had to be separated from Jack and Scotty. I'm going to specialize in music, piano and organ, but I'm going to take a course in short story writing too. I've just got enough of a taste of journalism to want to become a real reporter and I feel that I need more training yet."

DR. ALTENDORFF TAKEN OFF TRAIN TO MEXICAN JAIL

'Spy' Again in Capital; New Revolt On.

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 14.—Information received here today by authoritative sources say that Dr. Paul Altendorff, recently ordered to leave Mexico as an undesirable foreigner, had been taken from a train at Monterey, N. L., while on his way to Nuevo Laredo and returned to Mexico City, where he has been placed in prison.

Altendorff's wife, who was Mrs. Wallace McIver Woody of Louisville, Ky., has been in San Antonio several weeks and has been without word of her husband since Aug. 7, when she received a telegram from the American embassy at Mexico City saying her husband had been arrested.

New Rebellion Admitted.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The Mexican embassy admitted today that a rebellion has started in Jalisco, the rebel leader being Pedro Zamora. Yesterday the embassy denied the report.

That the outbreak is of considerable proportions is indicated by the embassy's statement that President de la Huerta has ordered 7,000 men to Jalisco under Gen. Enrique Estrada, to quell the rebellion.

The embassy denied reports that in an informal conference with state department officials Mexican government representatives had agreed to guarantee the life and property of Americans in Mexico, to promptly and fairly adjust claims of Americans for life and property destroyed in recent years, and to repeal confiscatory laws passed by the Mexican congress during the Carranza régime.

General Called Embezzler.

Mexico City, Aug. 13.—Gen. Carlos Sanchez has been imprisoned in the penitentiary here, charged with embezzlement of 44,000 pesos which, it is said, the government gave him to muster out troops in the states of Mexico and Puebla. Investigation, it is asserted, shows that Sanchez had no troops in these two states, as they had already been mustered out by Gen. Fortunato Maycotte.

Two Great Lakes Planes Fly 300 Miles in Fogs

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Machinist Harry Barr, U. S. N., piloting a Curtiss F flying boat with Licut. Commander E. E. Wilson, chief of the mechanical aviation school, Great Lakes station, as a passenger, and Carpenter A. M. Volpe, U. S. N., piloting a Hispana Suiza N-9 biplane, with Mechanician Anger as passenger, returned to Great Lakes today from Sturgeon Bay. The trip of about 300 miles involved four hours' actual flying time, and was made through dense fog and rough weather conditions.

CASH GONE IN LAST BANK HIT BY PONZI CRASH

Financial "Wizard" Still Held in Jail.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 14.—Assurance that no further bank closings are likely as a result of the collapse of the financial dealings of Charles Ponzi was given tonight by Joseph C. Allen, state bank commissioner.

"In response to repeated inquiries," the commissioner said, "I again state that the Hanover Trust company and the Polish Industrial association are the only banking institutions in New England known to be in any way affected by the Ponzi failure.

"The Polish Industrial association, conducting a private bank, steamship agency and other accommodations for immigrants, was taken over by the commissioner today. Henry H. Cimielinski, president of the association, also is president of the Hanover Trust company, closed by the commissioner early in the week. Mr. Allen said that affairs of the two institutions were "hopelessly interwoven"; that the Polish association had exhausted virtually all its cash, and that its loans were either bad or of doubtful value.

Officials Stay in Jail.

No bondsmen were forthcoming today for Ponzi or for the three officers of the Old Colony Foreign Exchange company, the "100 per cent in six months" concern, who were arrested yesterday. Ponzi remained in the Middlesex county jail at East Cambridge and the other three, Charles M. Brightwell, Raymond Meyers and Fred Meyers, in the Charles street joil. Samuel Zorn, an agent of the foreign exchange company, was released in $2,000 bonds.

Definite clarification of Ponzi's tangled affairs is looked for if petitions for receivers for his Securities Exchange company are granted by the federal court. A hearing will be given on these petitions next Tuesday forenoon.

Bankruptcy petitions were filed against the Old Colony Foreign Exchange company today. Branch offices in several New England cities were closed by county authorities.

Demand Money Back.

The offices of Attorney General J. Weston Allen at the state house were crowded throughout the day with note holders of the Securities Exchange company and the Old Colony Foreign Exchange company. Their names and particulars as to their notes were taken. Many of the visitors were greatly excited and voiced angry demands for the return of the money which they had invested.

Presentation of these notes already has disclosed liabilities on Ponzi's company to the extent of $2,000,000. A large number of notes sent by mail have not yet been examined. The attorney general's office will be kept open tomorrow for further work in this connection.

The possibility of a shakeup in the police department as a result of the bursting of the Ponzi financial bubble was seen in a statement issued by Police Commissioner Edwin U. Curtis.

The commissioner said it had been called to the attention of department officials that members of the department including superior officers,, had invested with Ponzi, and that it was reported that some policemen had even acted as agents and received commissions. An investigation is being conducted.

MYSTERY OVER SHOOTING OF ROBBINS GROWS

Girl Blasts Romantic Train Ride Story.

Romance and not predatory motives led Albert Robbins, 19 years old, assistant librarian at the University of Chicago and the son of Rabbi Joseph Robbins, to board a Michigan Central freight train with Howard Horwith of 1124 Marshfield avenue Friday night, the police think. Yet the woman in the case denies any such state of affairs.

Robbins was shot by Special Policeman Ward Douglas after the train had come to a halt in Kensington. He is recovering from the wound at the Burnside hospital.

Gives Romance as Motive.

Horwith was booked on charges of trespassing last night, but was released on bond. During the morning he told Detective Sergeant John Norton of the homicide squad that he had intended to "beat" his way to Champaign with Robbins to see a girl friend—Louise Harris, a nurse.

"I had heard she was to be married in a few days, and I got Robbins to go with me to see what truth there was in the reports," he said. "We didn't have enough money to pay our fare."

His statement didn't satisfy Sergt. Norton.

"If they wished to go to Champaign, what were they doing on a Michigan Central train?" he commented. Martin Quinn, special agent of the railroad, pointed out the boys were riding on a car containing valuable merchandise. Nearly $60,000 worth of goods has been taken from the company's property near the Indiana state line since the first of the year, he said.

Girl Also Mystified.

Meanwhile in Champaign Miss Harris' mouth assumed a provoked pout as she announced:

"I was acquainted with Mr. Horwith while he was a student at the University of Illinois some time ago, but I have not seen him for a long time. I am at a loss to understand why he should make such statements as he did in Chicago."

She denied she would soon be a bride.

Robbins corroborated Horwith's assertion that he was bound to Champaign to visit a friend. After boarding a freight train, thinking it was going over the Illinois Central, they discovered they were traveling on the Michigan Central tracks, he said. The train stopped. He started to run toward the rear. Some one yelled "Stop!" but he kept on going. Then he felt a sudden pain on the left side. He had been shot.

SOUTHERN MAYOR IS FOR WETS, IRISH, AND M. O.; AGAINST LEAGUE

JOHN PATRICK GRACE.

Mayor John Patrick Grace of Charleston, S. C., owner and editor of the Charleston American, who has recently become nationally known for his successful fight for municipal ownership of the harbor dockage of his city, arrived in Chicago yesterday to address the United Irish Societies at Brand's park tonight.

"The national liberty of America first" will be the burden of his speech.

"I am in favor of the repeal of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution," he said yesterday, "because I believe it to be at variance with the spirit of the constitution, which guarantees the people their liberty of action, but—the national liberty of action comes first, and that means the keeping of America out of the league of nations."

Mayor Grace asserted that, despite the Democratic political policies of his section of the country, the people there will refuse to uphold Mr. Cox in his stand on the league.

The mayor declared that the Irish of America do not wish the United States to go to the length of embroiling itself with any foreign power over the question of Irish independence, but he said he believes it would not harm the United States to recognize the present republican government set up in Ireland.

'NEW DOWIE WILL' FOUND BY WIDOW STIRS ZION CITY

Waukegan, Ill., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Discovery of a new will made by her husband, the late John Alexander Dowie, founder of Zion City, is claimed today by his widow, Mrs. Jane Dowie, who returned recently from Los Angeles to make an attempt to wrest Zion City from the control of Wilbur Glenn Voliva. Voliva, according to the terms of another Dowie will, became Dowie's successor to the Zion church and institutions.

Mrs. Dowie refused to disclose the terms of the new will, stating only that it was "a wonderful literary document" and did not name Voliva as her husband's successor.

She declared that Dowie was the "father of Zion City" and she proposed to be its "mother." She said she had been true to the church her husband founded.

ENGINEERS URGE 'ELBOW ROOM' IN CHICAGO RIVER

Inadequate Now for Big Lake Freighters.

How "utterly inadequate" Chicago's navigable streams are for the handling of large freighters is the burden of the report of a committee of Chicago engineers, headed by C. F. Wiehe, to W. H. Johnson, chairman of the rivers and harbors committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce. The report was made public yesterday.

Some of the recommendations made by the committee on the east canal of the north branch of the Chicago river follow:

"The thirty foot abutments sticking out into the stream at each bridge intersection should come out and no bridges in the future be constructed with abutments projecting into the river, but should be constructed flush with the dock line.

"It is impracticable to build another bridge between Diversey and Halsted streets. Navigation would be greatly hampered.

Seek 200 Foot Channel.

"The Diversey and Halsted street bridges should come out and be reconstructed, giving at least a 140 foot span. The construction of the present bridges as they are now placed in this branch of the river is criminal.

"The canal should be straightened on the west side of the stream and widened from the Armour elevator to the junction of the main river from 140 to 200 feet.

"The four bridges on the east side of the canal at Grand avenue, Kinzie street, the Chicago and Northwestern, and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad lines should come out and be reconstructed with the abutments flush with the dock lines and two leaf bridges be put in in place of the single leaf bridges there now.

Oppose Ogden Avenue Bridge.

"The small strip of land south of the C. & N. W. railroad bridge toward the main river should be cut off and widened to the width of the stream.

"No bridge be put over the canal at Goose island for Ogden avenue; the traffic from that street should be diverted to the Diversey and Halsted street bridges and those widened to accommodate the increased traffic."

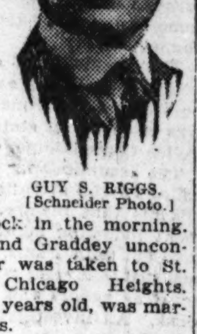
1 DIES, 1 HURT, AS AUTO ROLLS DOWN HIGH BANK



GUY S. RIGGS.
[Schneider Photo.]

Guy S. Riggs of 2430 Prairie avenue, an employé of the Washington Life and Accident Insurance company, was killed early yesterday morning when his automobile rolled down an eighteen foot embankment on the Kankakee road two miles south of Chicago Heights. G. S. Graddey, who was in the car with him, was seriously injured.

The men were found by a farmer, who came upon the overturned machine at 7 o'clock in the morning. Riggs was dead and Graddey unconscious. The latter was taken to St. James' hospital, Chicago Heights. Riggs, who was 24 years old, was married last Christmas.

Roy Holland, 6 years old, of 4573 Elston avenue, died in the Montrose avenue hospital of injuries received when he was struck by an automobile.

An unidentified man about 20 years old was fatally injured last night when his bicycle was struck by an automobile driven by Miss Jane Maloney of 5037 West End avenue, at Monroe street and Laramie avenue. He died at the West Suburban hospital. With Miss Maloney at the time was Grover T. Cook, 111 North La Vergne avenue, owner of the auto.

Robert Tracy, 14 years old, of 1914 Darrow avenue, Evanston, received a scalp wound Friday when he was knocked from his bicycle by an automobile.

M'GRAW HIT WITH BOTTLE AFTER HE HITS THE BOTTLE

New York, Aug. 14.—Manager John J. McGraw of the Giants told Assistant District Attorney Unger today he had no idea how John C. Slavin, actor, came to be found lying on the sidewalk with a fractured skull just after a taxi ride with McGraw and another man early last Sunday. McGraw said his mind was a blank, as far as that episode was concerned.

Unger and Dr. Frank McGuire of the Tombs prison called at McGraw's. No newspaper men were present, but after leaving the apartment Unger said McGraw told him he could remember nothing from the time he was hit over the head at the Lambs club until he woke up in bed the next day at noon.

McGraw said he understood he was hit with a water carafe. He admitted, Unger stated, that he had been drinking.

MOBILIZE NEW STATE MILITIA IN SEPTEMBER

5,800 Volunteers Will Be Sought.

A new state militia is to spring into existence throughout Illinois during September. Plans for a big drive for recruits for the new national guard under federal supervision will be mapped out at a conference to be held this week between Adjt. Gen. Frank S. Dickson and the Chicago national guard commission.

The campaign for citizen volunteers probably will be started before Sept. 1 and the drive will end on Oct. 1. The goal aimed at will be an organization of 5,800 men, based on the ratio of 200 men for each senator and congressman in the state.

On Oct. 1 the present Illinois reserve militia and temporary national guard will all be mustered out. Many of the enlistments already have expired and the units are now barely more than skeleton organizations.

Seek Younger Men.

Most of the members were men either beyond the age for active service in the war or with heavy responsibilities that precluded service overseas. These men must be replaced with younger men. A special effort will be made to enroll young men who have had training in the high school cadet battalions. Inducements also will be offered to world war veterans to serve the state.

The seriousness of the present situation was outlined at a meeting of the national guard commission on Thursday at the Union League club. Among those who attended the meeting were Robert H. Hunter, Frank O. Wetmore, president of the commission; George B. Fairweather, Edgar B. Tolman, and George W. Rossiter.

Retain Old Officers.

The officers are holding the present organizations together until the date for disbanding. The organizations performed effective service during the race riots last summer, the stockyards strike, and at the recent riots in West Frankfort, Ill. The officers will be retained in the new organization.

U. S. Plans to Sell Great Hog Island Yard, Report

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Plans for disposition of the government owned shipyard at Hog island, Philadelphia, are receiving consideration, it was said today at the shipping board, but no decision is expected until the new board has been named by the president.

Just imagine half a cold, sweet, tender lobster for 45 cents. It doesn't seem possible during this period of price-hysteria. But anything is possible when you use Common Sense.

We have a private table for you

When you eat at the North American Restaurant, the table you select is exclusively yours. Nobody else can come there and sit with you unless you want them to. Your desire for privacy is thoroughly respected.

It is true that we ask you to wait on yourself, and it is true that we thus save you the extortionate cost of service, but in all other respects, the North American is just like any other high-class restaurant in Chicago or New York.

We established this wait-on-yourself plan because you were paying more to have some one wait on you than you were paying for the food itself. And it doesn't hurt your pride a bit to help yourself if you are a red-blooded independent American.

Probably not one man out of a thousand had any idea that the service was more expensive than the food he ate, and you ought to see, as we have seen, how quickly the Common Sense of the multitude asserted itself when the fact became known. No one ever gave the subject a thought. Yet everybody was kicking on the high cost of living.

Why is a Packard Always "New"

FROM now until show time, many so-called "new models" will appear.

"New Models" perhaps only in so far as a change in body design is concerned; probably only a few accessories added—or a "new feature" in the motor, transmission or rear axles.

No big worth-while change; nothing vital—yet enough to wipe out overnight 20, 30, even 40% of the market value of older models of the same makes.

But Packard design is fundamental with the car. Even to the experienced eye, it is indeed hard to tell just how old a Packard is.

Ask some of your friends who drive Packards. Many a Packard that you would mentally label as "new" has been in constant use for four, five, six years or even longer.

Packard believes that it is futile to put a temporary dress on a car whose mechanical parts will last for six years or longer.

It believes that lasting good taste is more satisfying than mere novelty—and it is surely a better investment.

When you buy a Packard your investment is free from unreasonable depreciation. As evidence you need only consider the ready market for every used Packard, and the "used car price" is proportionately higher than any other car we know of.

If You Are Much On Your Feet

Try Cantilever Shoes. In them you stand comfortably all day, for you stand correctly. Ordinary shoes throw the weight on the weakest point of the arch. Cantilever Shoes distribute the weight properly over the heel, the ball and the outside of the foot. These shoes encourage easy carriage.

The foot never hurts in Cantilever Shoes, for the lasts are correctly shaped. As you lace the shoe you draw up the flexible shank till it supports the arch at all points. In walking the shank flexes—it does not restrain the muscles as metal appliances do.

Heated by 12 KEWANEE Smokeless Boilers

One of the Biggest Low Pressure Heating Boiler Plants in the World

Stewart-Warner
Speedometer Corporation
CHICAGO

Picture shows Diversey Blvd. and Lincoln St. sides.
L. G. Hallberg & Co., Chicago, Architects.
George A. Henrich Co., Heating Contractors.
12 No. 120 Kewanee Smokeless Boilers, of a total heating capacity of 192,000 square feet of radiation.

The above is a picture of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer Corporation plant on Diversey Parkway, Chicago, which has been using 6 Kewanee Smokeless low-pressure heating boilers for 4 years. They have become so fond of them that they have now ordered 6 more to heat new buildings now being erected. The twelve boilers will heat a radiation surface of 192,000 square feet.

This is one of the biggest low-pressure heating boiler plants in the country and it is just as well to add that the Stewart-Warner concern is the most successful builder of speedometers in the world and does not buy anything that is not absolutely the best. The Kewanee boilers were chosen by the architect with the approval of the mechanical engineer of the Stewart-Warner Corporation.

Several years of practical experience with 6 Kewanee Boilers have given the Stewart-Warner Corporation a mighty keen appetite for more Kewanees to heat their new building. Zowie! That's the kind of unasked testimonial that is worth its weight in gold in an advertising sense. You can't buy it to save your soul.

All through the industrial world where men are practical and cold as Greenland's icy mountains, the fame of Kewanee is spreading like the desire for real liberty and good government. Some of you have thought that we specialized only in heating boilers for apartment buildings. While it is true that we heat most of the best apartment buildings in the country, that line is only an incident to the business we do for big industrial plants, warehouses, office-buildings, school-houses, hospitals, seminaries, universities, hotels, churches and other great structures that want—and must have—steady, reliable and economical heat.

One of the big facts that stands out like a wart on your neck, is that competent engieers who choose the heating boilers for the big plants, invariably want steel boilers, and usually the Kewanee Smokeless boiler is the boiler that they pick. This is another screaming testimonial for Kewanee and it is based on academic learning and practical experience. You can't go behind these returns. Figures don't lie and all that sort of thing.

If you are about to erect an industrial plant or any big building of any description, you'd better build the heating plant on a rock and avoid the shifting sands which are all around you. Consult your own, or some other high-class engineer and ask him about Kewanee the first crack out of the box.

Give us an invitation to send a man to call on you and tell you about the countless plants that have installed Kewanee Smokeless boilers and which are today burning the cheapest grades of soft coat without smoke. Just think of the money they save because they are not obliged to use the haughty, high-grade coals with their aristocratic prices.

Write the Old Man Behind the Boiler and get his dope on the subject. He has been making boilers for thirty years and he knows. Moreover he has an old-fashioned regard for the truth in all its nakedness. Write him.

ROADS SAY RATE RAISE SHOULDN'T INCREASE H. C. L.

Give Figures to Sustain Their Claim.

To protect the consumers against unwarranted increases in prices and themselves against being blamed for such increases the railroads of the United States have issued a statement that aims to tell citizens exactly how much more they should pay for an article than they did before freight rates were increased. The statement shows the increased cost of transporting various articles under the new rates established by the interstate commerce commission.

Some Examples Given.

Following are some of the things demonstrated in it:

Shipping a suit of clothes weighing ten pounds from Chicago to Seattle, Wash., now costs a trifle over 40 cents; under the new rate, increased 33 1-3 per cent, it will cost 53 cents. The haul is 2,190 miles. The additional cost to the consumer should not be more than 13 cents.

Shipping a 100 pound dresser over the same route now costs $1.69; it will cost $2.25. The advance in the cost to the consumer should not be more than 56 cents. Sending a pair of shoes that far now costs 18 cents; it is going to cost 24 cents. Shoes should not advance in price more than 6 cents.

Data on Foodstuffs.

Taking up foodstuffs, the table shows that shipping a pound of sugar from New York to St. Paul, Minn., 1,318 miles, now costs 6-10 of a cent; it will cost 8-10 of a cent. Shipping sugar from New Orleans to Aberdeen, S. D., now costs 6-10 of a cent; it will cost 8-10 of a cent for the 1,518 mile trip.

Shipping canned goods cost 1-5 of a cent per pound can from Chicago to St. Paul, a distance of 410 miles; it will cost 3-10 of a cent. From Chicago to Seattle, Wash., 1 13-100 cents is the tariff; it will be 4 89-100 cents.

Sending coffee from New York to Seattle, 3,100 miles, now costs nearly 2 cents a pound; it will cost 2¼ cents. Shipping cheese the same distance now costs 2½ cents; it will cost 3 1-3 cents a pound.

Freighting other commodities will cost only a few cents more, the statement declares.

View of Railway Age.

"Freight transportation is the cheapest commodity in the United States by far," the Railway Age asserts in compiling the table. "The recent decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission to permit the railroads to increase their freight rates does not change this assertion. Certainly such small additions to the cost of an article should not materially increase the cost of living."

DREADED BY CROOKS, LOVED BY KIDS, COP FOR 30 YEARS QUITS

ANDREW J. SCHULTZ
[Kosciusko Photo.]

Policeman Andrew J. Schultz Friday night opened a patrol box on the north side, took the receiver off the hook and shouted his name. When the operator said "Good night" Schultz closed the box and threw the key away.

He had completed thirty years of police work — mighty good work, too, his commanding officer says—and had resigned.

On a cold, wet morning in April, 1890, Schultz began his duty on the force. Nine years later he was made a plain clothes man. He traveled out of the old Rawson street station for twenty-two years and from Shakespeare avenue for eight. His son, Frank A. Schultz, is now on the force. Schultz lives at 2742 North Central Park avenue.

"He was dreaded by the underworld and loved by the kids," said a police captain when he heard the old timer had resigned.

GUNMAN, ONCE A HERO, IS SHOT AFTER HOLDUP

Edward P. Burgess of 3238 Normal avenue, a gunman with a record, who distinguished himself for heroism when he saved a number of children from a mad dog, was caught in the act of holding up three men at Thirty-first street and Wentworth avenue early yesterday morning. He was shot in the back by Detective Sergeant Walter Evans of the Deering street station when he attempted to escape.

EDWARD P. BURGESS.

Evans and Detective Sergeant Walter Peal noticed three men standing in a doorway. They stepped into another doorway and watched. Presently Burgess appeared, walked up to the three men, drew a revolver and ordered them to throw up their hands. They saw him go through the motions of a robbery and then walk away.

Evans ordered him to halt. He started to run. The policeman fired several shots in the air, and when he failed to stop, shot him in the back. At the hospital it was found the bullet had grazed his spine and paralyzed his legs. He may die. Burgess has a long criminal record, including one trial for murder. Two of the other men also were taken into custody pending an investigation.

ILLINOIS RATES ON FREIGHT UP 40-35 PER CENT

Smaller Boost Applies to Western Points.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—In a supplemental report in the advanced rate case the interstate commerce commission indicated specifically the percentages of increase that should apply to freight rates within Illinois territory, between points in Illinois territory and points in the eastern group, and between points in Illinois territory and points in the western group.

The effect of the supplemental order is that on freight moving from Illinois territory, which includes southern Wisconsin and the eastern edge of Iowa and Missouri, into eastern territory an increase of 40 per cent will apply; that on freight moving between points in Illinois territory an increase of 40 per cent will apply, and that on freight moving from Illinois territory to western territory an increase of 35 per cent will apply.

Part of Two Territories.

"The state of Illinois is so situated that it may be regarded, for transportation purposes, as partly within eastern territory and partly within western territory," the commission said. "Part of the state is embraced within official classification territory, and on traffic to and from the east the rates are usually governed by the official classification. On the other hand, some of the principal western railroads have their eastern termini within the state of Illinois, and on traffic to and from the west it has been the general practice to regard Illinois as being within western territory. Joint rates between that state and points west of the Mississippi river are governed by western classification, because of these considerations, among others, the carriers deemed it advisable to accord to the state of Illinois a basis of rates that partakes in part of the features of the eastern rate structure and in part of the features of the western rate structure.

Illinois Territory.

"Illinois territory embraces somewhat more than the state of Illinois proper, and for the purposes of this report may be defined as follows:

"All points in the state of Illinois, also points in Wisconsin on and south of the C., M. & St. P. railway, Milwaukee to Madison; the C. & N. W. railway, Madison to Dodgeville, and on and east of the Illinois Central, Dodgeville to the Illinois state line; also points in the west bank of the Mississippi river to which point through rates subject to the official classification are now in effect from points in trunk line and central territories.

U. S. RAIL LINES IN CANADA GET RATE ADVANCE

Ottawa, Ont., Aug. 14.—The dominion board of railway commissioners today granted increases, effective Aug. 26, in through rates to United States roads in Canada to conform with those recently approved by the interstate commerce commission at Washington. The increases apply to all commodities except coal and coke.

Continuity of joint through rates between the United States and Canada, in both directions, was deemed desirable and expedient by the commissioners, it was stated.

The order is the first decision on applications of the American Railway association and all Canadian railways for increased rates commensurate with those recently granted by the interstate commerce commission in the United States.

Dunning Patient Makes Will; Then Hangs Self

Charles Beckstrom, 40 years old, a voluntary patient of the Chicago State hospital, was found hanging from a tree in the grounds at the rear of the hospital early yesterday morning. On his coat he had pinned a note. "The accusations against me are more than I can understand or bear," it read. "After paying my funeral expenses distribute the remainder of the $300 which I have saved to the inmates here."

ESSEX MOTOR CARS

ESSEX San Francisco to New York 3347 Miles 4 Days 14 Hours 43 Minutes

Lowers Transcontinental Record by 12 Hours 48 Min. Another Essex Going From New York to San Francisco Broke the Record For That Direction by 22 Hours 13 Min., Completing the Trip In 4 Days 19 Hours 17 Minutes

So Essex Holds the Transcontinental Record Both Ways

Two Essex touring cars, carrying U. S. Mail, each one making the entire trip between San Francisco and New York, have set the time records for their respective directions across the American continent.

And thus comes to Essex another distinction for reliability and endurance.

Except for one airplane record, these two Essex cars have crossed the continent in less time than was ever recorded by any traveling machine. The fastest time possible between San Francisco and New York by train is slightly less than the time taken by the light weight economical Essex. But in the case of the railroad train, many different locomotives are used, each pulling the train only a few hundred miles.

From Cheyenne to Omaha the route taken by the Essex was 43 miles longer than the 550 mile route of the famous Overland Limited, yet the Essex time was but one hour longer than the express train time.

The World's Most Coveted Records

From the days of the Prairie Schooner, the Pony Express and the completion of the railroads, men have sought to establish new transcontinental time records between the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

It has called for the highest development of skill and courage. And it has, as in the case of the motor car, blazed the way to mechanical reliability.

The purpose of this Essex test was to prove its reliability. In the period of 114 hours was crowded more strains, more calls for endurance and mechanical strength than the average owner demands in a life time.

Every requirement of motor car performance was met by these two cars. And the fact that they so consistently met their tasks proves Essex uniformity.

The speeds at which they traveled were not so unusual, for another Essex stock car had on a speedway track gone 3037 miles in 50 hours. But in the transcontinental runs, some 350 cities and towns had to be crossed. Crowded traffic imposed its obstacles to consistent going. Mountain ranges in the East and West with grades such as the average driver never encounters, called for the utmost of hill climbing ability.

Few will ever motor all the way across America and therefore cannot know the extreme varieties of conditions encountered. But let each reader apply to his consideration of what Essex has done every experience he has ever met in his own driving. It will give some appreciation of Essex reliability.

Light Weight Now Establishes Reliability

How gradual have men come to a realization that a light weight car can also offer reliance and performance.

Essex has led the way, for that was its purpose from the very first. Economy is of growing importance. Men want to save in fuel and in first costs. But they want no sacrifice in performance, and they demand unquestioned reliability.

Essex offered itself to the public without claim. Now more than 40,000 owners know and praise its worth.

Owner cars that had been driven upwards of 25,000 miles were used in the recent nation wide Essex week to establish reliability, economy, speed and hill climbing records.

To Essex owners the winning of the transcontinental records is not a surprise. But those who do not know Essex performance and reliability must regard that these two trips across the continent are as important in marking mechanical advancement as any similar event in the history of the motor car.

WARREN G. HARDING.

James M. Cox got to heaven to- w, his first thought would be, It's a fine place but there's a be done," and he would propose mission of prominent angels for preparation of a survey of condi- possibly capable of improvement. rren Harding looks out over the tanding corn around Marion and the broad backed hay wagons, hauling townward its two and a ton load worth $30 a ton; he sees derricks cobwebbing here and a patch of horizon, and the neys of the steam shovel works helped build the Panama canal, es the fifteen schoolhouses and twenty-seven churches, and he aloft at the big, awkward, gray courthouse that says "Fiat tia, Ruat Coelum" over its portal, he notes in the new census the 57 ent population increase.

Harding Is Satisfied.

d seeing and noting all these y things, and valuing with a prac- eye the $200 an acre farms in bottom lands where the soil is as as your hat, he says:

"Isn't this heavenly! What men were that for us prepared such a of many mansions! Let us emu- them."

nd in all the toil, and all the fruit- ss, his people had their part. Yon- to the east and north, ten miles of Mansfield, where John Sherman lie the fat acres Amos Harding his sons began to clear a century —four or five acres the first year, t the second, and so on through bborn decades until they were the e chieftains of whole townships.

Grandfather Brick Mason.

ere in this hamlet of Blooming e, that was the original seat of Ohio Hardings, stands a tiny, de- ed schoolhouse all overgrown with now to the peak of its silent belfry. rren Harding's grandfather Dick- —his mother's father—built it years ago. "He was a good kmason," said Warren Harding's r as he stood at the padlocked "I was teacher here more than years ago and in this building arren spoke his first piece in public. was a piece about 'He had a bonnie e' that his great-grandmother had ght him She thought he was won- ful. I remember it so well! He was en and we were having the rhetor- exercises of closing day, and he s here and made me let him speak little piece about the bonnie horse ause all the scholars spoke."

"Sort of horned in, didn't he, doc- ?"

"Yes, Mr. Eye, sort of horned in, you say. He was sturdy. Bigger most children of his age. He his first little suit with pants at ears, with pockets in the pants, He thought the pockets were derful."

We motored on, faring westward to other side of this Morrow county, in Canaan township at a farm on old Marion-Mansfield state road, ich connects now with the new Lin- highway at Mansfield, I had the stopped abruptly, for the Doctor, ting to a stretch of field and ard, had just said: "There was ren's first stake in the world."

You mean?"

I mean," he said with a dreamy —it was as if pleasant thoughts waving little signals of remem- ce to him—"I mean that just nd the edge of the orchard there half acre I let Warren have wheat. Old Days Pictured.

e old days and the old ways— district school and the "rhetorical cises," and the young father who teaching school the while he was ng medicine with old Dr. McFar- at Blooming Grove; the maternal father, who was "a good brick- n," as his honest work remains r witness after sixty years; the of 14, and his proud ride across an township with the dollar-a- l wheat—these things I have ed in as lightly as may be for oment, because if you do not the life of that Marion-Mor- countryside as it was lived e late '60s and early '70s you t know, and never will know, ren Harding. For he is emphati- the product and epitome of that and that life. Except for the or four trips to Europe and the years in Washington, he has never much of any other life. Marion y, and the three agricultural ties to the west and south of it, his early and—until 1904, when ade himself lieutenant governor e of Mark Hanna and the late Cox—were his sole political train- round. His sturdy kinsmen and ow-speaking, book-reading, hard- g farmers and artisans who neighbors to them, were his first e of inspiration and the stimulant first strivings.

you wonder then that the phrases d simplicity" and "rugged cit- ip" are so often on his lips? was the kind of citizen they t him up to be.

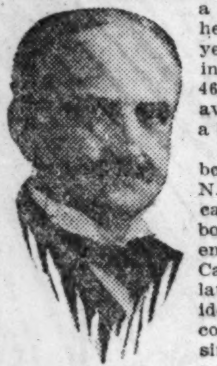
EDWIN F. BAYLEY, VETERAN OF LAW, DIES IN CHICAGO

Edwin F. Bayley, senior member of the law firm of Bayley & Webster and a trustee of Amherst college, died yesterday morning at his home, 4634 Greenwood avenue, following a brief illness.



EDWIN F. BAYLEY.

Mr. Bayley was born in Manlius, N. Y., in 1845 and came west as a boy with his parents. His father, Calvin C. Bayley, later became president of Ripon college, Wisconsin, where the son attended school. Young Bayley left college to go with the Wisconsin troops during the civil war and later entered Amherst, from which he was graduated in 1868. He came to Chicago in the early seventies and was engaged continuously in the practice of law until within three days of his death.

He was a trustee of the Old People's Home and a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity, the Union League, University, City, Indian Hill, and Onwentsia clubs. He is survived by his widow Mrs Kate Ober Bayley, and two daughters, Mrs Charles T. Mordock and Mrs. Edwin H. Clark of Winnetka.

LOWDEN TO HEAR PLEA FOR SPECIAL RENTHOGSESSION

Fixes Tuesday to Meet Council Committee.

Tomorrow the battle being waged by thousands of Chicagoans against profiteering landlords will be temporarily moved to Springfield, where, on Tuesday morning, Gov. Lowden will listen to a plea for a special session of the legislature.

The governor telephoned to Ald. R. J. Mulcahy yesterday that he will meet a subcommittee of the city council on Tuesday and discuss the proposal to call the legislature together to pass laws to prevent rent profiteering.

With the aldermen will go representatives of several civic organizations which have sprung up in various parts of the city as a result of rent profiteering, and they will add their pleas to those of the subcommittee for a special session.

"The signing of the petition to be presented to the governor asking for the special session is going on rapidly," said Ald. Mulcahy "and by the time we leave for Springfield I expect to have more than 2,500 names on it. The tenants' associations on the north side are also circulating a petition which will be presented to the governor."

Meanwhile plans are being laid to take oppressed tenants by the trainload to the capital when the legislature convenes, to work for the passage of the proposed bill. Hundreds have already pledged themselves to go.

And the Rents Still Climb.

But while all these plans are being laid rents continue to climb. Complaint after complaint has come in of increases, amounting in some instances to more than 100 per cent, with the ultimatum to the tenant of paying or getting out.

Thirty-six tenants in an apartment building at 1130 Pratt boulevard held an indignation meeting last night to protest against the third increase in their rents in one year. On Aug. 1 notices were distributed informing tenants of the third increase. When they went to the owner, the Rev. Frederick G Ruff, they were told that he had nothing more to do with it—that he had sold the building.

Now the tenants don't know who their landlord is. All they know is that their rents are going up on Oct. 1 unless something is done, so in all their windows they are displaying this sign:

"Unfair rent being exacted here. Do not rent this apartment unless you want to rent a lawsuit."

Tenants Plan Mass Meeting.

Tomorrow night thousands of tenants will hold a massmeeting at the American Legion hall North Clark street and Greenleaf avenue to lay plans for a city-wide movement against the rent hogs. Members of the state legislature and candidates have been invited and several have expressed their willingness to be present.

After the meeting the subcommittee of the council and representatives of the civic organizations including the Rogers Park Tenants Protective association and the Wilson Avenue Tenants' association, will leave for Springfield.

CHARLES EBERT, LONG LOST SON, IS STILL SOUGHT BY MOTHER

Mrs, Bertha Knapp of Bloomington, Ill., has appealed to THE TRIBUNE to help her find her long lost son. He is Charles Carroll, who prefers to call himself Charles Ebert, his mother's maiden name.

CHARLES CARROLL.

"My boy went to Chicago nine years ago," Mrs. Knapp states, "and I only heard from him once—when he asked me for money. I sent him some, but he never appeared to claim it. Since then I have written all over the United States and have spent a small fortune trying to find him. I know he is not dead, though I couldn't tell you why."

She adds that a friend of hers once found a lost son through THE TRIBUNE and she hopes to have as good fortune.

Carroll is about 5 feet 4 inches tall, has dark brown hair, light gray eyes, and has a scar over his right eyebrow. He is now 39 years old.

Any one knowing anything of him is asked to write the mother or to Mrs. E. Girard, 4043 Colorado avenue.

Postpone Inquest on Body Taken from Lake

The inquest into the death of an unidentified man whose body was found in the lake at the foot of East Eighth street Friday was continued until Aug. 27. Three witnesses testified they had seen a pen knife in the man's hand, but it had fallen into the water when the body was taken out. The victim's throat had been cut. Police incline to a suicide theory.

A Manufacturer reports a part of his conversation with a Minter Salesman, telling why he adopted the Minter System of Fabrication in building better homes for his employees.

"But"—I Said,
"What IS a Fabricated House?"

The Minter Salesman answered me quickly.

"Fabrication" he said, "is a new system of building which we have developed and perfected from our experience in the manufacture and building of more than 25,000 houses, including every known form of construction. It is the principle of reducing a house to certain well defined units, or 'fabricated parts', which comprise 90% of the structure. These parts—instead of separate pieces of lumber—are used to erect the house".

Showing the built-up sill as fabricated in our factories.

"Do you mean, then, that the carpenters building the house have no sawing to do—and that they assemble these parts just as an automobile is assembled?"

"Exactly sir. Up to the point where the house is ready for siding, finish flooring and 'trim'".

"Why don't you fabricate those parts too"? I asked.

"Because they can be handled more efficiently in bulk. These parts are the decorative elements of the house, and require the finishing touches of skilled mechanics."

Completing a fabricated door part.

"Are your fabricated parts difficult to handle?"

"No sir—no parts are so large or heavy but that two men can carry any unit with ease.

"Is there danger of getting these parts in the wrong place?"

"Not a bit" the salesman replied. "Where plans call for a wall part of a certain size, any wall part that size may be used Notches are cut in the built up sills and ridge—so that floor joists and rafters fit perfectly. The parts that are fabricated include sills, floor furring, wall plates, sub flooring, roof parts, wall parts, partition parts, door parts, window parts, gables, cornices, porch parts and pillars. Every unit is stencilled for quick identification—and the erection plans are simple."

"I am frank to admit that this principle amazes me with its possibilities for speed and economy—but are the houses permanent?"

"Far more permanent than those built by usual methods. You see, with skilled workmen and special machinery, these units are more rigidly constructed than when built up by the carpenter on the job—and the finished house is but a combination of these strong units."

"Who provides the plans, and takes the responsibility for the details?"

"We do. The Minter System of Fabrication is sufficiently elastic to allow the construction of practically any type of house—in quantities. You tell us what you want—our Engineering Department submits the plans — and when they have been O. K.'d by you, the job is off your desk. We will ship all materials in one shipment, supervise the erection—guarantee the price, and save three-fourths the usual amount of time."

Mr. Motorist—

Do squeaking springs hurt your pride and take all the joy out of your motoring?

Or, do you lubricate your springs in the old, hard way by wedging the leaves apart and inserting pure graphite?

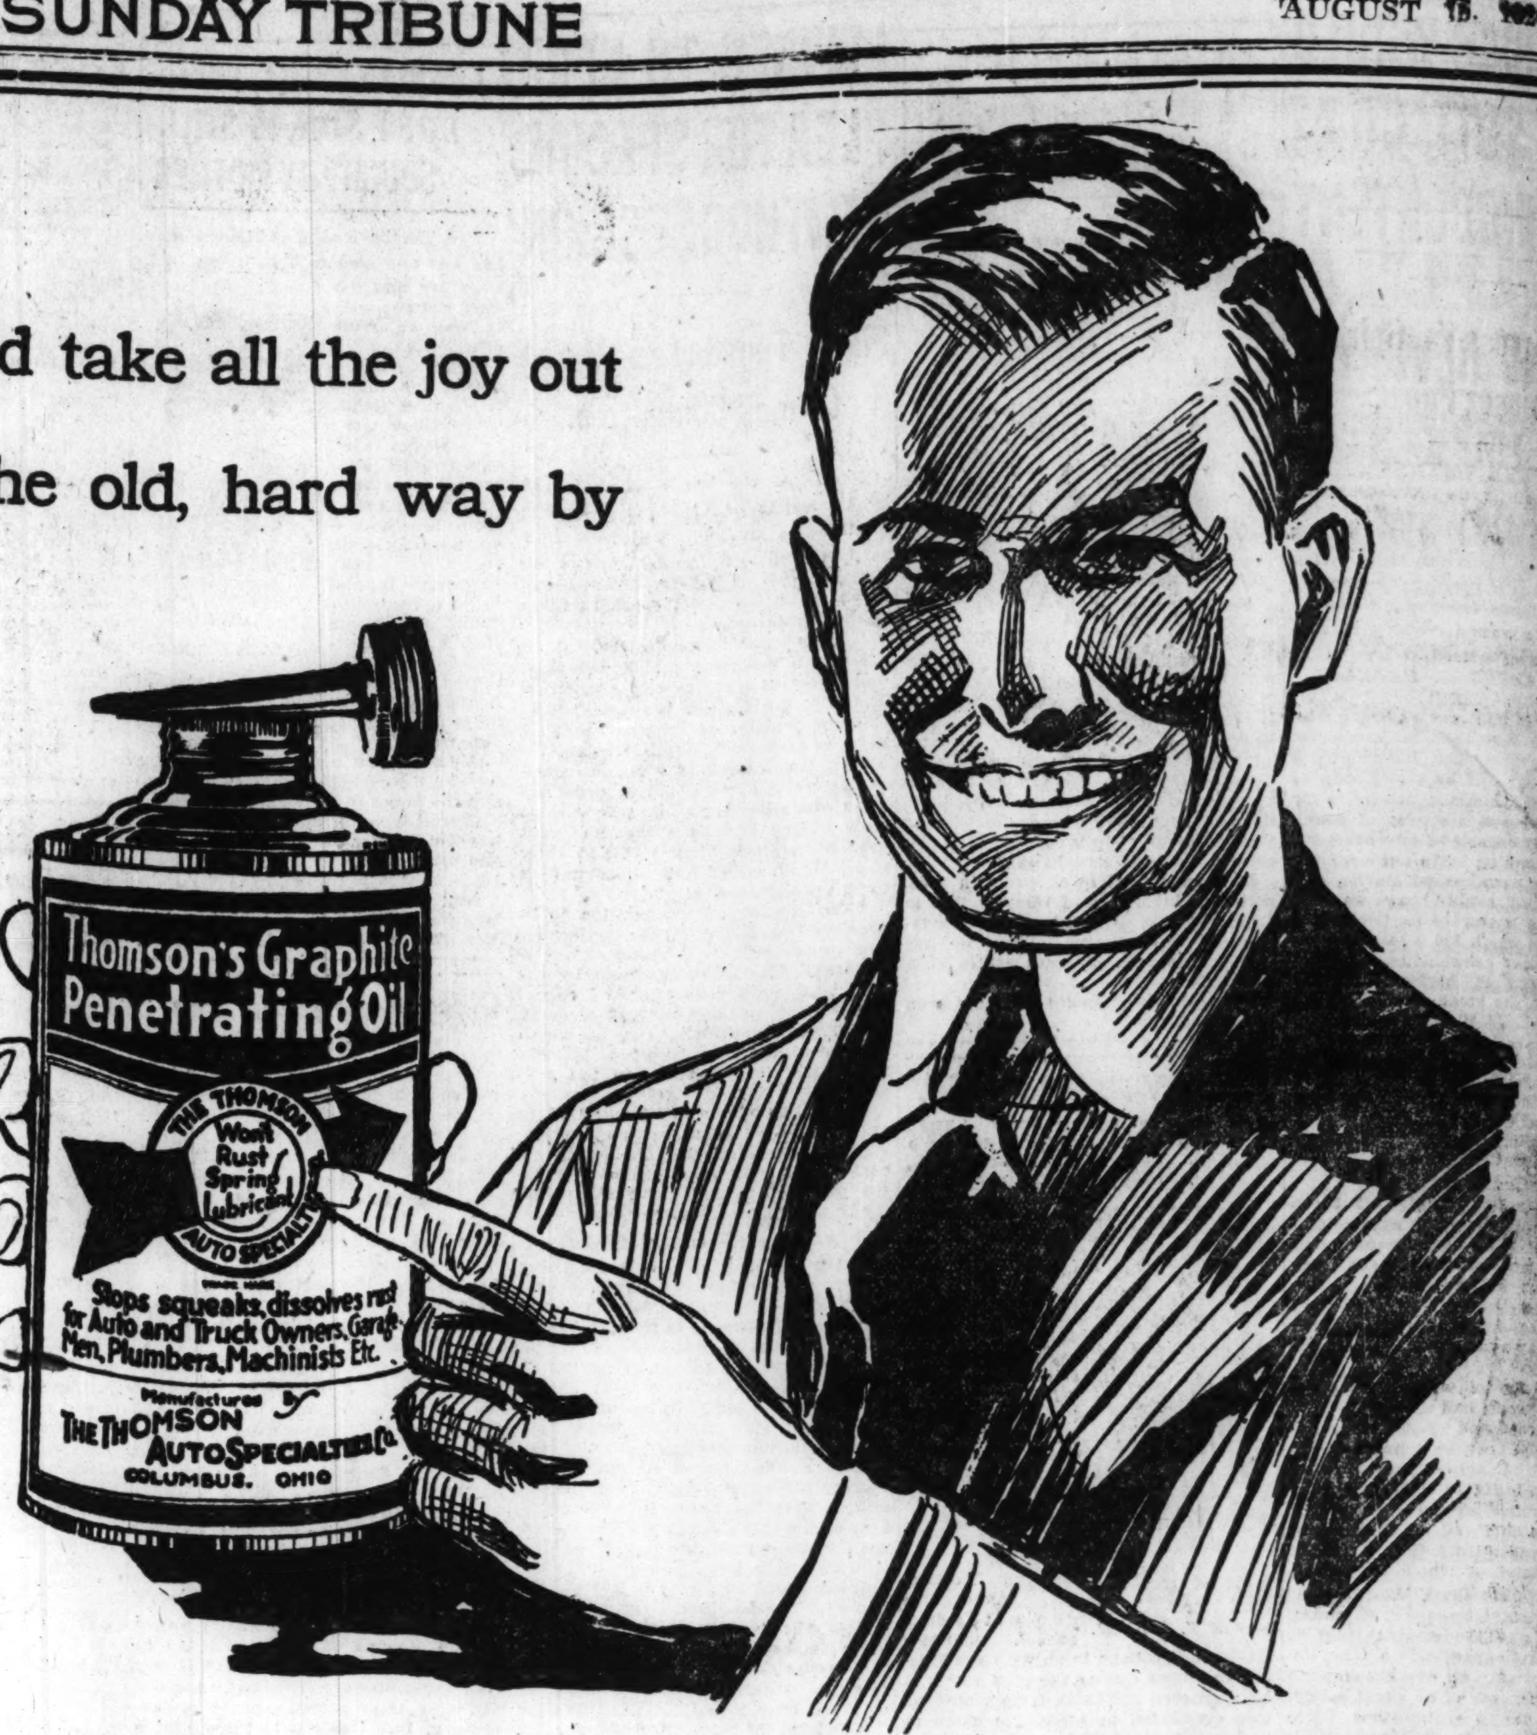
It's hard to say which is the worst—enduring the squeaks or the long, hard job involved in lubrication.

In either case, you'll be glad to know that

You Can Stop Those Squeaks—

stop them easily and quickly—you can save the time and labor of the old way—you can save money by saving unnecessary wear and tear on the springs, the tires and the whole car—if you'll simply use

THOMSON'S Graphite Penetrating OIL



Thomson's Graphite Penetrating Oil
The Thomson West Rust Spring Lubricant Auto Specialt
Stops squeaks, dissolves rust for Auto and Truck Owners, Garage Men, Plumbers, Machinists Etc.
Manufactured by The Thomson Auto Specialties Co. Columbus, Ohio

With this new oil, perfect lubrication of springs is only a matter of minutes.

Simply squirt a little oil along the edge of each leaf of your springs. It will quickly seep through to the other side—and as it goes, it deposits a film of dry graphite which lubricates perfectly and which will not collect dirt.

It penetrates—finds the squeaks—and cures them.

It will make your car ride easier and better.

It will dissolve every particle of rust (the thicker and redder the rust, the faster it works). It will likewise prevent rust from forming.

A few drops of this oil will release rusty bolts, nuts, king-pins, brakes and pipe-fittings.

Sold Under Money-Back Guarantee

It's hard to believe that any oil will do the things that we claim, but seeing is believing. Try this oil. If it is not all that we say it is—if it does not do all we say it will do—your money will be refunded without question.

FREE SERVICE ON YOUR CAR

To demonstrate the effectiveness of this oil and the ease with which it can be used, we have arranged for free service for a limited time from every dealer who is supplied with Thomson's Graphite Penetrating Oil and who is in a position to render such service. Drive your car to any of the addresses below which is marked with the *, and the value of the oil will be demonstrated on your own car. Or, buy a can from any of these dealers and try it yourself. The price is only $1.00 per pint can, but, under our guarantee, it costs you nothing if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

KING REVIEWS OLYMPIC STARS IN OPENING FETE

Americans Go Into Games Today Sure of Victory.

AHEARN RESTORED

ANTWERP, Aug. 14.—The dispute between the Olympic committee and members of the American team over disqualification of Dan Ahearn, world record holder for the hop, step, and jump, was settled today.

Ahearn apologized for breaking the rule that all athletes must retire early, and the committee reinstated him.

KING ALBERT.
[Harris & Ewing (C.)]

ANTWERP, Aug. 14.—Olympic athletes, sportsmen and officials of twenty-seven nations, to the number of 1,612, marched in an impressive, colorful review before King Albert of the Belgians today in the ceremony opening the Olympic stadium, where all was in readiness tonight for the actual competitions beginning tomorrow.

The Americans, as a result of the reinstatement of Dan Ahearn, who had been dismissed from the team on charges of insubordination, went into the parade in fine spirit and full of hope for victory. Their delegation of 299 was the largest in the field with the exception of the Belgian, whose ranks, swelled by scores of officials, numbered 301.

All Ages and Colors.

Under the warm sunshine of a perfect day, the beflagged field was thronged with Olympic competitors, ranging in color from the pale blonde men and women of the northland through all shades of brown of the Japanese, turbaned Hindus and fezzed Egyptians, to the almost jet black of some of the Americans. In age they ranged from little Aileen Riggin, the 11 year old American diver, to a bearded Belgian archer, who might have been Aileen's great grandfather.

The entire Belgian royal family was in the royal box. When King Albert proclaimed the stadium open, after Cardinal Mercier had pronounced the benediction, seven cannon shots boomed and carrier pigeons fluttered over the field. An airplane flying low gave the only twentieth century touch to a colorful pageant such as might have attended a tournament in knighthood days.

Americans in Uniform.

The delegation from the United States, with Pat McDonald carrying the American flag, and Harry J. Hebner bearing the standard, was well applauded. After the flags and officials marched the navy men in uniform, then the seven coaches, the sixteen girl swimmers wearing natty white skirts and blue jackets, and the athletes. An army contingent was at the end of the American group.

Chile's delegation of two athletes and two officials, and those of New Zealand, and Portugal, with four each, were the smallest. Sweden's 180 athletes were loudly cheered.

There were eighty-four women in the parade, forty-two of them representing Sweden. Most of the women are swimmers, but some of them are gymnasts. The group of flaxen haired Danes in their light blue gymnasium bloomers, was the most picturesque in the field.

A great many of the delegations dipped their flags as they passed the royal box; others cheered. The Americans executed "eyes right" and did not dip their flag.

Tomorrow's events at the stadium include the javelin throw finals, the preliminaries in the 300 metres event, the 400 metres hurdles, and the 800 metres run. They will start at 11 o'clock.

The American entrants in these four events are:

Javelin throw—M. S. Angier, Illinois A. C.; J. C. Lincoln, New York A. C.; J. F. Hanner, Leland Stanford university, and A. N. Tuck, Multnomah, Portland, Ore.

100 meters—Loren Murchison, New York A. C.; J. V. Scholz, University of Missouri; Charles W. Paddock, Los Angeles A. C., and M. M. Kirksey, Olympic club, San Francisco.

400 meters hurdles—Frank Loomis, Chicago A. A.; J. K. Norton, Olympic club, San Francisco; A. G. Desch, Notre Dame university, and Charles D. Daggs, Los Angeles A. A.

800 meters—Earl Eby, Chicago A. A.; Lieut. D. M. Scott, U. S. army; Thomas Campbell, Yale university, and A. B. Sprott, Los Angeles A. C.

EXPECTS NO RECORDS

BY JACK MOAKLEY.
[Chief Trainer of the U. S. Olympic Team.]
[Copyright: 1920: Bell Syndicate.]

ANTWERP, Aug. 14.—In view of the general condition of the stadium track, I do not expect any record breaking. The track is slow and I'm afraid it will be cut up considerably in the earlier events. It would have been much better if the management had enlisted the services of Berry, England's foremost track expert, some weeks ago, instead of waiting till almost the eve of the meet to do so.

The jumpers also will be somewhat handicapped by the unfavorable condition of their runways. So the stadium itself is working against record breaking. But it seems to me that the best men are not quite up to the standard of the men who made records at the last Olympic meet. We go into tomorrow's events in fine shape, but I don't believe Eby or Scott, for instance, have reached the form of Meredith or Shepard at their best.

Eby Under Weather.

Eby has been suffering from stomach trouble lately, but will be all right when he meets Rudd of South Africa, and Hill of Great Britain, in the second heat of the 800 meter race. Scott has been drawn with Bolin, the Swed-

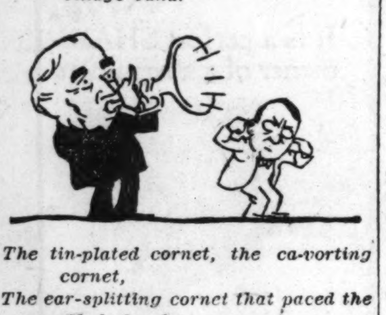
HARDING'S TOOT.

"He (Warren Gamaliel Harding) also played the cornet in the village band and was editor of the college paper."—News note.

When down there in Dayton, the Democrats gather
To groom for the White House their prize candidate,
And spill the old English, with trimmings and blather,
To put G. O. P. hopes in a comatose state;
They can unloose one holler, full blast, to the people,
That'll spread this dire warning throughout our brave land:
"For Humanity's sake, put the kibosh on Harding—
He played the cornet in the home village band."



The tin-plated cornet, the ca-vorting cornet,
The ear-splitting cornet that paced the whole band.

Warren G. Harding, whose name stamps Fame's pennant,
Stands forth revealed by Publicity's hand,
As the bellows-lunged geezer—still unrepentant—
Who played the cornet in the old village band.
But lest his opponents think this charge may beat him,
May we raise a finger, assurance to warn?
Chicago WILL boost him, for e'en as a youngster
He junked the old hammer to toot on a horn. G. C.

A silk mills company has just bought the historic West Point foundry at Cold Springs, N. Y., where the first locomotive used in New York was manufactured. Well, silk hosiery has caused many persons to travel faster than a locomotive could pull them.

Puzzling.

Full 30,000 peaceful fans had journeyed out to see
The brave and daring home team snatch another victo-ree;
A nice-appearing man in blue just waved his arm—no more—
And 30,000 maniacs cried loudly for his gore. H. M. S.

MARKET LETTER.

DESPITE adverse and conflicting news from Poland, stocks recovered in part from Monday's shakeout, which indicates, according to the cognoscenti, that stocks again "are in stronger hands," a euphemism which means the lambs have been shorn.

Until the new wool grows a little longer, precedent would not suggest a violent rally, but rather a "baby" market—creeping, y'know—with most of the bad news discounted.

"Frozen credit" is melting, but cold feet have increased. Call money is easier, but even an alarm clock does not waken easier time money. Selling probably is overdone, but many geese have been cooked, and buying is still rare. It begins to look, however, as if a small stake, medium, might be turned on the bright side.

There is a slowing down in the automobile industry. If the slowing down would only extend to the drivers, there would be some cause for rejoicing.

Dear Wake: Ever hear of old Martin Zimmerman, who claimed that he could tell by the smoke from the brewery chimney whether they were brewing light or dark beer? C. F. L.

Help! Help! This Wake is conducted by Harvey T. Woodruff.

"How do I know?" he softly sighed—
"I'm not a fortune teller."

Yes, thank you, The Wake has cooled out nicely after the Andy Gump golf party. As we look back on Brother Fleig's apology for not hitting it up more than seventy-five miles per hour on the concrete road on the return trip, we wonder why he was dissatisfied. It seemed quite fast enough to Jack O'Connor, Bill Curran, and The Wake, the other occupants of the car.

'WE'LL GET YOU,' SAYS LIPTON AID

New York, Aug. 14.—"We almost got you this time. We'll get you next time. We always get 'em in the end," said Col. Duncan Neill, yachting manager for Sir Thomas Lipton, to the America's cup today.

Neill went to Tiffany's to see the trophy just before sailing for home on the Adriatic. He stood for a moment, looking grimly at the cup for which generation after generation of Shamrocks have contested, then shook his fist at it and addressed it softly.

Sir Thomas was at the pier to see Col. Neill off. Fifteen members of the crews of Shamrock IV. and of the twenty-three meter Shamrock sailed today on the Kroonland.

TURFMAN MORRIS DIES; OWNED A DERBY WINNER

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Green B. Morris, veteran turfman, who was run down by an automobile near the Saratoga race track Thursday evening, died last night in a hospital at Saratoga Springs.

For thirty years and more Morris had been a great figure on the turf and in his time had owned many famous horses. Probably the best of his string was Strathmeath, winner of the Junior champion stakes as a 2 year old and as a 3 year old winner of the American derby of 1891 in Chicago.

At Sandusky, O.—Harry Greb beat Bob Moha [8].

BY RAY PEARSON.

About the toughest job one could pick for himself would be naming a winner of the ten round affair between Sam Langford and Sam McVey at East Chicago yesterday afternoon. There were a lot of people who evidently thought the two colored fellows would put up a rattling battle, full of thrills, with possibly a knockout. So many of them thought so that the show drew something like 10,000 real iron men at the box office.

Hundreds of those fellows who had planked down their jack didn't wait to "spend their money," for they were getting out of their seats as early as the seventh round and hustling along to the motor cars, of which there were nearly a thousand parked outside the arena. Most of them expressed their disgust over the windup attraction, which certainly failed to please.

Why Criticize Old Act?

Langford and McVey were meeting for their steenth time—they have met so often that an actual count of the bouts has been lost—and we claim no authority to criticize their work yesterday, preferring to leave it to the fans who left the arena regretting the trip to Indiana.

Langford and McVey didn't put up a real fight. It was tame and the fans repeatedly called for action, which never materialized. On damage done, which was little, it was an even break, so we'll accordingly have to call the bout a draw. Langford got a cut under his right eye in the first round, and the other Sam was split under his right optic in the fourth session.

Brother Sammy a Rip Snorter.

There was one bout on the card which helped to make up for the unsatisfactory windup. That was the first preliminary between a couple of bantamweights, which promised little when it started but developed into a real contest. Frankie Izzo was billed to meet Joe Mandell, but Joe couldn't perform for some reason and his brother, Sammy Mandell, went on as a substitute.

Izzo, the experienced banty, looked like a cinch against the green Mandell kid, who has only had three bouts. But there was a surprise. The kid simply "knocked off the fans" by his clever display and won off by himself, taking nearly every round of the ten fought. Mandell looks like one of the most promising kids we have looked at in many moons.

Crowd Is "For" Sammy.

When hundreds of fans cheer a prelim scrapper the way they did Mandell in the intermission between the seventh and eighth rounds yesterday it shows what they think of him.

The other bout enlisted the services of a couple of South Chicago lightweights, Tim McCarthy and Eddie Raynor. McCarthy had a very slight shade in ten rounds.

King George Rooting for British to Win Olympic

ANTWERP, Aug. 14.—King George today sent a message to the athletes representing the British empire in the Olympic games here, expressing his best wishes for their success. He said he knew that, whether victorious or defeated, they would exercise an inspiring influence in promoting a chivalrous spirit in the contests, and assured them that their progress would be followed with keenness and interest.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Today's Question.

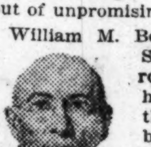
In your opinion, who is the best baseball manager in the two big leagues?

Where Asked.

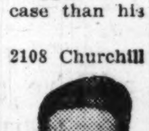
On La Salle street, between Madison and Monroe streets.

The Answers.

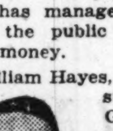
Mrs. Frances Day, 5546 Flournoy street, housewife: I think Mr. Gleason of the Sox is the best manager in the league. I base my opinion on the performance of his team. He is handicapped by some of his men, but he has managed to make a fine team out of unpromising material.



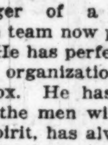
William M. Boyle, 1250 North La Salle street, clerk: I root for Murphy. He has handled his team the best of any of the big leagers. His big point is his ability to manage men. Perhaps this is a bigger factor in his case than his baseball knowledge.



Robert E. Hulsman, 2108 Churchill street, clerk: McGraw is the best. He has been most consistent, has taken the best care of his men, has worked for the best interest of the public and for his players and has managed to give the public the best show for their money.



William Hayes, 1212 West Fifty-first street, deputy: Old Gleason is the best manager of a big league team now playing. He has perfected a fine organization in the Sox. He has infused the men with a fine spirit, has always given the public what they wanted, what they spent their money for.



F. W. Plu[illegible] Sherman street, commercial [illegible] I think Charlie Comiskey. I have always watched his team with interest and I have seen the things he has done with a difficult organization. He is a popular manager, both with the public and with his own men.

DEMPSEY HERE FIT FOR INSTANT ACTION IN RING

Jack Dempsey, not a worry on his mind, and feeling fit for action just as quick as he can get it, dropped off a New York train yesterday to be greeted at the station by a band of local admirers. The world's champion did not permit the train weariness to ruffle his feelings one bit, but is anxious to start training for his match with Billy Miske at Benton Harbor on the afternoon of Labor day.

Dempsey was accompanied by his manager, Jack Kearns, who declared that from now on the champ would be a busy guy if matches can be found for him. Dempsey probably won't start work in his Benton Harbor training camp until Tuesday or Wednesday. His sparring partners, Bill Tate and Panama Joe Gans, are expected here Monday on their way to the Harbor.

The champion is anxious to look over things at the Michigan resort and will go their today, but expects to return to Chicago tomorrow and stay here for a couple of days before settling down to the regular training grind.

OWNIE BUSH.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—The White Sox extended their winning streak to seven straight today by copping the first game of a double header 5 to 2, then Detroit broke the string by grabbing the second game 6 to 1. Victory in the closing encounter would have put the Gleasons in first place. Defeat dropped them to third.

Dick Kerr officiated in the triumph and would have hurled a shutout against the Tigers with a little better luck. The White Sox were successful in bunching their swats off Oldham and Ayers, giving Kerr an easy job at the finish. The Tigers got the jump in the second game and after a brief tie in the first half or the third romped away with it, batting Faber so hard in the sixth that he was relieved in the seventh by Wilkinson. Ehmke had the numbers of the Gleasons all the way and held them to five hits which were so well scattered that no two of them got together.

Play on Heavy Field.

The Tiger field was heavy and slow after the deluge of yesterday without any sunshine to dry it out and the hits that were made had to be line drives or soft bunts which the infielders could not handle.

The Gleasons broke into the lead in the first game with one run out of a rally that threatened a lot. Jackson led with a single in the second inning and went to third on Felsch's single. J. Collins sent Mr. Joe home on a single.

Detroit tied the score in the fourth because Risberg made a wild throw that gave Cobb a life and a sacrifice by Veach and a single by Flagstead sent Ty across the pan. The Tigers gained the lead in the fifth with the aid of an unintentional pass to Oldham after two were out. Singles by Young and Bush scored the pitcher. But the Sox came back with two in the sixth, also after two were out. Jackson drew a pass, Felsch doubled and J. Collins and Risberg singled, putting the Sox one to the good.

From then on Kerr held the Tigers at bay and the Sox made two more off Ayers in the eighth on singles by J. Collins, Risberg and Schalk helped out by a wild chuck by Flagstead.

Tigers Get the Jump.

The Tigers were first to score in the afterpiece. Bush peeled off a triple over Felsch's head with one down in the first and scored on Veach's single.

The Gleasons tied this run up in their third on a double by Schalk followed by Faber's sacrifice bunt and a long fly by Leibold. But the Tigers grouped three hits for a run on Faber in their third and from then on were supreme.

A freak play in the sixth hurt the Sox. Risberg led with a single and Schalk walked. Faber bunted in front of the plate, but as he started for first base the ball hit him on fair ground putting him out and holding the runners on their bases. But for that the Sox would have scored two runs in that inning because Leibold and Eddie Collins mauled terrific flies to the outfield right afterward.

Oldham's double and a pair of bunts put the Tigers in front in the fifth and four solid swats, including a double, cinched the game with three runs in the sixth.

RUTH'S 42D WINS FOR YANKS, 3-2, OVER SENATORS

42

Washington, D. C., Aug. 14.—Ruth's forty-second home run of the season represented the margin by which New York defeated Washington today, their 3 to 2 victory sending the Yankees to virtually even terms with the league leading Clevelands. Ruth hit over the right field wall, with the bases unoccupied in the first inning. The homer was the first made by Ruth in the local park this season, giving him a four base clout in every city this year.

Ruth's single, following a walk to Peck, and Pratt's double gave the visitors their other two runs in the sixth.

Frank Brower, obtained from Reading, played his first game with Washington and was responsible for the second run. Shaw struck out Ruth in the third inning with two men on bases. Score:

RECRUIT BATTERY TO GET SOX TRIAL

Secretary Harry Grabiner of the White Sox announced last night that Pitcher Payne and Catcher George Lees had been sent to the Nashville club of the Southern association to take the place of Pitcher William Hodge and Catcher Clarence Jonnard while they are being given a trial with the Alabaster Hose. Hodge and Jonnard is the star battery combination of the Nashville outfit, and if Manager Gleason finds they can hold up under the heavy fire of the major league sluggers, a permanent trade will probably be made. The Southern association men will join the Sox in Philadelphia.

Giants Recall Kauff and Ryan from Toronto

New York, Aug. 14.—Benny Kauff, outfielder, and Bill Ryan, pitcher, were recalled by the New York Nationals today from Toronto of the International league. They will report at the end of the International league season. Kauff went to the Toronto club in a trade for Vernon Spencer, leading slugger of that organization, but the Giants reserved the option of recalling him. Ryan was farmed last spring.

When Grover Cleveland Alexander is in form, a lot of fellows fade and die when they go to bat, so one should not censure Cincinnati's world's champion Reds for taking a decisive beating yesterday from the Cubs. Aleck was right. The score was 5 to 0. Aleck allowed five scattered hits and never was in danger.

On the other hand, Mitchell's men rather surprised the home folks by knocking the renowned "Dutch" Ruether off the rubber in the second inning when four huskies of the north side club poled four doubles in rapid succession after two men were out. Slim Sallee came forth and handed out some of his loppy curves that stopped further fussing, and Dave Bressler, still another southpaw, appeared at the finish when Sallee gave way to a pinch hitter.

Aleck Always Master.

Aleck's hurling was quite masterful and splendid to look upon. In the second inning there was a sign of distress when Duncan led off with a single and Kopf walked, but Aleck tightened his grip on the ball and set the next three down with admirable ease and dispatch. In the fourth after two were dead, Kopf and Neale singled, the latter swat being a sickly Texas leaguer, but no harm came of it, for the next batter was an easy out.

Ed Roush, famed swatter and fielder of last fall's embroglio with the White Sox, managed to pole a single to start the ninth but no one got as far as second base. Aleck did have some sterling support or there might have been trouble. Max Flack and Dode Paskert each turned out a thrilling catch in the outfield, and Barney Friberg executed a nifty play or two at second base, and all the others handled their chances with perfection, not a mistake being made from start to finish.

Ruether Off Form.

Ruether, though rated as the best of the Pat Moran string this year, was in far from championship form. He experienced more distress in the first two innings than he did in the whole world's series last fall and nearly put one of the Cubs in the hospital because of extreme wildness. After walking Flack in the opening round, he sailed a speedy one against Buck Herzog's dome that knocked the veteran infielder flat. The ball struck just a bit above the temple, just high enough to glance off instead of going right through. Buck took the count of about four minutes, then finished the inning, but had to retire because of the pain in his head.

After Herzog went to first base, Terry bunted him and Flack along, and then Merkle was allowed to walk, filling the sacks. Flack got home when Paskert grounded out, then Deal was allowed to walk, and Herzog got home when Sicking messed Friberg's grounder.

Four Doubles in Row.

Those two tallies would have been plenty for Aleck on this occasion, but in the second came the thunder when with two out, Robertson hammered a red hot one to right field and stretched it to a two bagger. Terry followed with a similar drive to left, so hot that it skipped off Duncan's toe for a double, sending Robertson home.

Merkle followed with a terrific drive that would have made Ted Ray jealous, a corker right down the fairway in left center to the concrete bunker for another double that scored Terry, and Paskert lammed one in a line to right for the fourth successive two bagger, sending Merkle in. Then Ruether skipped and Sallee came forth and the fun was over.

RACES SO CLOSE FIGURES CONFUSE

Although the Yankees lead by one-half a game in the won and lost columns, the peculiarity of figures still gives Cleveland the leadership in the three cornered scrap for the pennant by about a point and a half. Carried to five places the standing is: Cleveland, .63302; New York, .63157. The Sox virtually are tied with the Indians in games won and lost, but trail by about five points.

There is no telling the exact length of the longest hit made in baseball. Out in St. Louis they still tell of a drive Cap Anson made with his Chicago White Stockings about twenty years ago which not only cleared the outer fence of the park but sailed across the street and through the window of a German saloon, where the ball was kept back of the bar for years as a curio.

BABE RUTH.

I don't know whether any of my drives have beaten this one or not, because, as I say, you can't put a foot rule on the flight of a ball. But they gave me a silver cup on the day of the benefit for Tim Murnane's family, Sept. 27, 1917, at Fenway park, Boston.

Hits One 435 Feet.

The Red Sox, with whom I was then playing, went up against a team of American league stars, supposed to have been the greatest ball club ever assembled. We had a fungo contest as a side attraction, and Carl Mays, Duffy Lewis and I went in to see how far we could knock the ball.

When my turn came I tossed up a nice new ball and took a long swing smack at it. I tell you, the ball sang on its way. The distance was measured as accurately as those things can be measured at 435 feet. Remember, I didn't have a pitcher against me to help with the speed of the ball. The ball was practically motionless in the air when I swung into it. It was a dead ball, starting from scratch, with no bounce except what I gave it.

Called Them "Freak" Homers.

They used to say that my home run in Boston were freak blows. Some of the experts had it doped out that I had measured the right field wall with my eye and had developed a knack for putting the ball away on the same line every time. It is true that the right field wall is the home of my homers. Being a left handed batter, I naturally pull them around on my right side by meeting the ball squarely as it comes to me. If I were to play for left field or center I'd have to wait till the ball came nearer to me before plugging it. This would be an unnatural system of batting for any left hander.

But I fooled them last year. I proved that all right field walls look alike to me by pasting homers over every one throughout the American league circuit. Then I banged a few over the center field screens and let them have a few in left field. At first, when my home run total went over ten or twelve some of the fans thought I was a flash and called me a lucky stiff. They were sure that I'd hit a slump before the season ended. Anyhow, they didn't expect twenty-nine home runs and a busted record from a pitcher playing his first year in the outfield.

Some Long Hits.

One day last summer I caught one squarely at the Polo grounds and the feel of the blow was so nice and solid I knew I didn't really have to run to get around. At that time the baseball writers agreed that this was the longest hit ever made in the Brush stadium, as the ball went right over the right field stand, traveling fast. Old timers recalled a hit by Joe Jackson over just about the same spot, but they said his ball wasn't traveling so high or so fast when it disappeared behind the stand.

At Navin field, Detroit, in the summer of 1919, I caught a ball on the hefty part of my bat and slammed it beyond the street wall, and at Sportsman's park, the home of the Browns in St. Louis, one of my hits, which disappeared beyond the Grand avenue bleachers, very close to center field, was said to be longer than the famed hit of Pop Anson, which had become baseball history many years before.

Babe's Longest Clout.

There is one hit of mine which will not stay in the official records, but which I believe to be the longest clout ever made off a major league pitcher. The Yanks were playing an exhibition game with the Brooklyn Nationals at Jacksonville, Fla., in April, 1920. Al Mamaux was pitching for Brooklyn. In the first inning the first ball he sent me was a nice fast one, a little lower than my waist, straight across the heart of the plate. It was the kind I murder, and I swung to kill it. The last time we saw the ball it was swinging its way over the ten-foot outfield fence of Southside park, and going like a shot. That ball cleared the fence by at least seventy-five feet. Let's say the total distance traveled was 500 feet; the fence was 429 feet from the plate. If such a hit had been made at the Polo Grounds, I guess the ball would have come pretty close to the top of the green screen in the center field bleachers.

CARDS WIN AND TIE.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 14.—St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh today in the first game of a double header, 1 to 0, due to the effective pitching of Doak. The second game was called at the end of the eighth with the score a 1 to 1 tie, to enable the players to catch a train for St. Louis. Stock's double and Hornsby's single scored the run in the first game. Score of first game:

DODGERS THROW GIANTS VICTORY BY A WILD PEG

New York Runner Scores in 9th to Win, 7-6.

New York, Aug. 14.—New York defeated Brooklyn today, 7 to 8 in a game replete with exciting situations. Bancroft scored the winning run in the ninth, when Krueger in returning the ball to Mamaux threw it wide of the slab, the pitcher being able just to touch it and deflect it toward the shortstop. Young and Acting Manager Evers of the Giants were put off the field for arguing a decision. Score:

Notes

The Reds will battle the Cubs again today. Tyler or Hendrix is likely to pitch.

Eddie Roush had an unusual day in center field, with nine putouts. Duncan in left got none and Beale in right captured one.

There was a good sized crowd out, even if the fans have rather given up hope of seeing the north siders in the world's series this fall. Perhaps nearly 10,000 was present.

Word regarding the condition of Charley Hollocher yesterday was that he will be out of the hospital in a day or two, but it isn't likely he will get back in the game this season.

Buck Herzog said after the game that the boys had been trying for fourteen years to hit him in the head. He is likely to be back on the job today to start another fourteen years of dodging them.

Bill Killefer had an examination of his broken finger yesterday, and the physician broke it over and set the bone again, as the first setting was not right. That means Bill will be out for a long time yet.

After Herzog retired Friberg moved from left field to second base and Robertson went to left. Young Friberg has five assists and three putouts at the middle corner, and played the position in snappy style. Besides, he poled a couple of driving singles, both right over second base.

NOTES

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Sox at Detroit again tomorrow.

The second game was Ehmke's first win from the White Sox this season.

The weather was cloudy and threatening all day, making it impossible for the grounds to dry, but there was a good, big crowd on hand for the bargain day bill.

Manager Gleason is undecided whether to pitch Cicotte in the final game tomorrow or to come back with Williams, who worked four innings yesterday.

Catcher Manion of the Tigers had his hand split by a foul tip from Weaver's bat in the first inning of the opening game and gave way to Stanage.

Weaver made a great play to retire Cobb on a bunt toward third in the fifth of the second game. Buck scooped the ball on the run and threw it without straightening up, nailing Ty by a step and causing a lot of trouble for Umpire Dineen, because the local fans do not yet realize that Cobb has slowed up.

Rainbow Sails to Victory in Final Lipton Cup Race

Rainbow, flagship of the Chicago Yacht club, owned by Commodore Sheldon Clark and skipped by Hank Rubinkam, yesterday took possession of the Lipton cup in the third and final race of the series. It was no easy victory, however, for Rainbow was given one of the hardest fights ever seen in a Lipton series and crossed the line only twenty-five seconds in the lead of Charles E. Keuhn's Dixie of the South Shore Yacht club of Milwaukee.

Samuel Dauchy's Sari of the Chicago Yacht club, 1919 holder of the trophy, which won Friday's contest, chased Dixie across the line for third place only seventeen seconds astern of the Cream city craft. E. M. Railton's Gossoon of the Chicago Yacht club finished last.

Closest Race of All.

With the three leading boats finishing within forty-two seconds of each other, the final tussle proved to be the closest race ever sailed in the history of the cup, and several hundred spectators who followed the fortunes of the quartet on board all kinds of craft were given keen sport. The final result was in doubt right up to the finishing gun.

The start of the race saw all four bunched at the line, with Dixie over slightly in the lead, Sari on even terms and Rainbow overlapping the pair. The first beat to weather showed Sari a trifle in the lead, with Dixie second, Rainbow third, and Gossoon fourth.

Rainbow Sails to Front.

The order during the second leg, a balloon run, was the same, but on the third side of the quadrangle, a spinnaker run, Rainbow nosed out Sari, while Dixie, bearing down with the right of way, forced Skipper Dauchy to sheer off and let the Milwaukee craft round ahead of him. The order of the boats was maintained during the final leg, a broad reach. Summary:

Yacht.	Finish.	Elapsed.	Points.
Rainbow	4:12:01	2:12:01	275
Dixie	4:12:26	2:12:26	175
Sari	4:12:43	2:12:43	200
Gossoon	4:14:34	2:14:34	100

The series wound up with a banquet given at the Grant park clubhouse to members of the visiting Milwaukee crew.

U. OF C. RUNNERS ARE GOING AFTER TRACK RECORDS

Will Try to Cut 600 Meter and 660 Yard Marks.

Two University of Chicago runners will be sent after world's records on the half mile straightaway trotting track in Lincoln park at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The runners are E. C. (Ted) Curtiss and A. J. Bartky, both of whom missed trials for the Olympic team—Curtiss returning recently from Japan with the Maroon baseball team and Bartky being thrown off speed by an ailment, after making a fine start in the 1920 indoor track season.

Curtiss will try to beat the 500 meter record of 1:07 set last week by Joie Ray at Antwerp, and Bartky will go after the 600 yard mark of 1:20 4-5 held by Homer Baker of New York.

The men are being trained by Tom Eck, who secured sanction from Col. Clinnin, head of the Central A. A. U., and arranged to have five A. A. U. officials as timers, and Charley Dean and Charley Wilson as starters. All runners of the city who would like to test their legs against Curtiss or Bartky are invited to race. They will be given handicaps.

HAYES TO BATTLE VINNY RICHARDS FOR STATE TITLE

Rivals of Old Renew Fight Today for Net Honors.

MATCHES TODAY

State singles final—Hayes vs. Richards, 1 p. m.

State doubles final—Hayes and Burdick vs. Williams and Richards, 3 p. m.

Intercity doubles—Herd and Weber, Chicago, vs. Simmons and Wick, Cleveland, 5 p. m.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Walter Hayes, the local veteran, and Vincent Richards, the sensational blond New York youth, will renew their tennis rivalry in the final match of the Illinois state championship men's singles on the hard courts of Chicago Tennis club this afternoon. Hayes yesterday put out Alex M. Squair, 6—2, 6—3, 6—1, and Richards won from Clifton B. Herd, Chicago, 6—4, 6—4, 6—2.

The rivalry of Hayes and Richards began with the former's upset of the eastern kid in the 1919 national clay court finals in this city, and took on added vigor when Vinny swept Hayes to an unexpected reverse in the 1920 clay court. This will be their third meeting, and, as both are anxious for the prestige of the highest possible position in the season's ranking, each will put forth every effort to win.

Big Crowd Watches Play.

A considerable crowd turned out for yesterday's play, and witnessed Richards and Hayes clinch places opposite each other in the doubles final also. Richards and Lucien E. Williams of this city eliminated Herd and Jerry Weber after a stiff tussle, 4—6, 6—2, 6—4, 6—4. Hayes and Burdick put the skids under Georgie O'Connell and William D. Washburn in the other semifinal, 6—0, 6—2, 6—4.

Richards' generalship and deft stroking featured both singles and doubles. Opposed to a hard hitter and formidable net player in his match against Herd, the New Yorker put over slow balls, which allowed Herd gradually to work his way to the barrier, then either lobbed overhead or shot the ball along the sides of the court. Richards' ability to work his opponents out of position and then shoot a placement ace also piled up points in the doubles.

Local Men Win Intercity Match.

Two singles matches in the intercity series of Chicago vs. Cleveland were played, with local talent taking both. Ralph E. Burdick defeated Kenneth L. Simmons of Cleveland, 6—3, 6—3, and Preston Boyden defeated Henry C. Wick Jr., 6—1, 6—3.

Directly after this afternoon's events Richards, Hayes and Burdick will leave for the east for the national lawn tennis events. Hayes and Burdick will represent the western section in the national doubles at Longwood.

WORLD'S RECORD IS BROKEN IN U. S. RIFLE MATCHES

Camp Perry, O., Aug. 14.—One world's record was smashed today in the national shooting matches when Just W. Hession of the New York Athletic club, with telescopic sights, made a possible score of 50, including an additional string of 32 bullseyes, on the 1,000 yard range in the adjutant general's cup match. This gave him a total of 42 bullseyes. The former record was 27.

The Leech cup match, which was finished on the 1,000 yard range, was won by Sergt. T. B. Crawley of the marine corps, who had a possible score of 105 in addition to 11 bullseyes over the 800 yard, 900 yard, and 1,000 yard stages.

The marine corps team No. 3 won the enlisted men's team match with 589 in 600 over the 200 yard rapid fire and 600 yard slow fire ranges.

The trapshooting events brought out more than 100 shot gun men, many of whom are here awaiting the opening of the Grand American tournament in Cleveland.

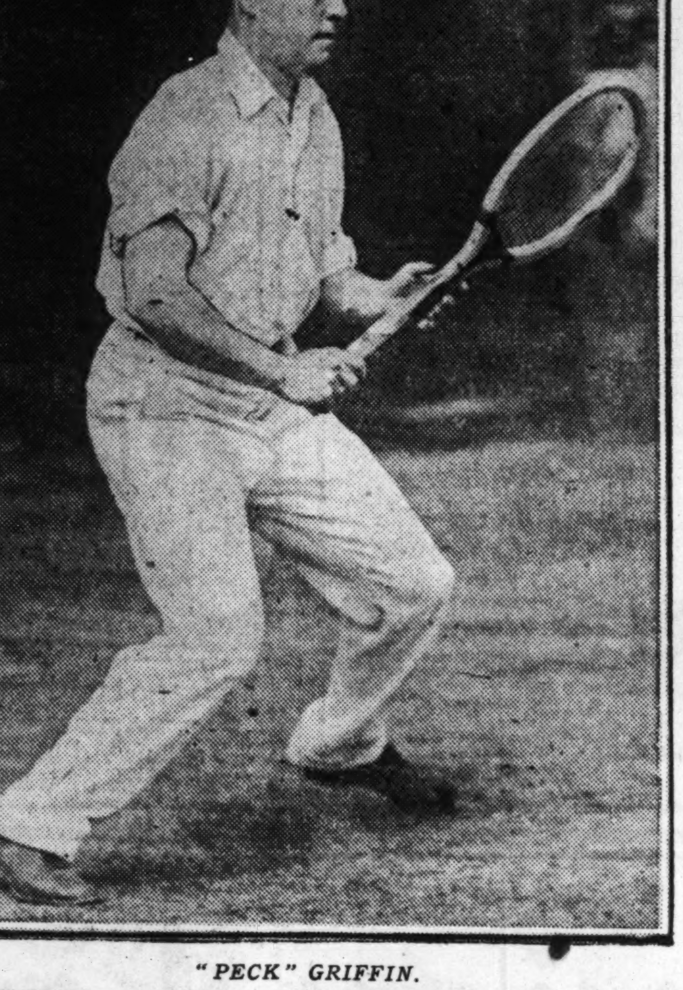
Pacific Coast Player Scores Upset in Newport Tourney by Defeating His Doubles Partner.



"PECK" GRIFFIN.

JOHNSTON BEATEN IN SINGLES FINALS BY DOUBLES MATE

Newport, R. I., Aug. 14.—Clarence J. Griffin of California defeated National Champion William M. Johnston in the final match of the singles play in the Casino tennis tournament today. The score was 6—3, 4—6, 2—6, 6—4, 6—3

It required five sets to decide the victory, Johnston taking the second and third and twice in the final set coming within a point of deucing the match. His back hand failed him both times.

Griffin's victory was the big upset of the tournament for it had been generally expected that Johnston would defeat his doubles team mate. Griffin, however, was steadier than Johnston and at times played exceptionally fast tennis to the champion's deep back hand, which was not working well.

Johnston's tosses were short, which gave Griffin numerous chances to make kills. The outstanding feature of the match was Johnston's erratic play at critical times, the ball repeatedly landing in the net.

HARTMAN KEEPS CITY HONORS IN 39 HOLE MATCH

Beats Roy Patterson in an Overtime Thriller.

George Hartman, the trimly built representative of the Marquette Park Golf club, who won the city championship last year, retained his title by defeating Roy Patterson of Marquette, 1 up in 39 holes. It was one of the toughest finishes in the history of the city championship. They halved the first two of the extra holes and then at the 39th Patterson overran his approach and left himself a hard putt. Hartman landed his ball three feet from the pin and made the putt for a 3.

The gallery, which was large in the morning, grew in size in the afternoon, but was well handled by the south park police.

All Even on 18 Holes.

Hartman led 2 up on nine holes on the out round in the morning, but the play was very close, each turning out occasional birdies, and they went to luncheon after the eighteenth all even. It was the same story going out in the afternoon, when neither could hold an occasional advantage, and they turned toward the clubhouse all square for twenty-seven holes.

Patterson forged to the front at the twenty-eighth, but Hartman played the next hole in par and evened things for the 'steenth time. Halves followed until Hartman annexed the thirty-second. Halving the thirty-third, Patterson squared the match with a birdie at the thirty-fourth.

Par Ties It on Thirty-sixth.

Hope rose again in the breasts of Hartman's friends when he assumed the lead at the thirty-fifth and was dormie one. But Patterson played the home hole in par figures, while Hartman was one over. The climax came at the thirty-ninth, after the two more halves.

Both drove perfectly, but Hartman's approach was dead, and he was down in three. Patterson pitched ten feet short and made a brave effort to sink the putt, but the ball had too much steam and rolled beyond. Cards:

Roelke to the tune of 8 and 6, and Walter Crowdus scored a rather easy victory over P. Cooney, 5 and 4. J. P. PAIGE
THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA

YOUR eyes alone will tell you that our new "Glenbrook" is one of the handsomest five-passenger cars that has ever been designed. But in order to really appreciate this model, you must take an actual demonstration on the road.

Then—and then only—will you understand what our engineers have accomplished in three years of patient experimental work and testing. Then—and then only—will you realize what giant strides have been made in motor and chassis development.

The "Glenbrook," you must remember, is a strictly modern car. It was developed during a period of world wide mechanical research and represents the last word in automotive science. It is actually and literally a motor car developed by the war.

Just what these new standards of engineering have accomplished will be quite evident in a single demonstration. It will prove a liberal education, we believe, if you will permit our dealer to arrange for an appointment.

'NEW' MISKE TO FACE DEMPSEY ON LABOR DAY

Year's Layoff Has Given Improved Form.

BY RAY PEARSON.

Aside from the result of his ten round clash with World's Heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey in Floyd Fitzsimmons' Benton Harbor arena on Labor day afternoon, there will be another thing to watch in the performance of Billy Miske, the St. Paul challenger for the title. That concerns form, an all important thing in all championship contests.

Miske, before Dempsey annexed the crown by stopping Jess Willard in three rounds a little more than a year ago, fought the present champion twice, and it is to his credit that he did something Dempsey's other opponents failed to do. He stuck the scheduled limit and escaped Dempsey's knockout wallop. That accounts for the fact that Miske was picked as the opponent to face the champion on Labor day.

New Miske Now.

It has been hinted a great many times that Dempsey did not put up the whirlwind attack against Miske that he showed in other battles. That is a matter of opinion, and unless those who do the talking were ringsiders at those bouts they would hardly be in a position to judge accurately as to the correctness of these hints. However, everybody does know that Dempsey was able to outscore the St. Paul battler on points.

But there will be a new Dempsey in the ring on Labor day; and, too, there will be a new Miske, if the information at hand is true. Dempsey, as champion, will have to do one thing, and that is fight his hardest, because if he slowed up the chance is always open for two things—his opponent to score one of those surprising knockouts, or to score a victory on points. It is just that sort of reasoning that makes it certain the champion will be installed a one-sided favorite over Miske; and, being installed a topheavy choice, almost everybody will expect Salt Lake Jack to lay his opponent low in the early rounds of the scrap.

Can't Take Chances.

With all due respect to Dempsey and his wonderful ring skill, there is no getting away from the fact that he, no more than any other fighter, can take no chance against Miske. Miske's record shows some brilliant performances, the kind that sparkle, and any one familiar with the ring game knows of the startling upsets that have been sprung. There's always that chance, for many under dogs in the betting have landed on top in the past.

But this is getting away from what we started to write, and that in the main concerns Miske, not Dempsey. Claims, which seem well substantiated, are made that the St. Paul heavyweight is better today than he ever was in his life. That means physical condition, which naturally means form.

Matches Are Canceled.

Nearly a year ago Miske was forced to go under a doctor's care because of a hip condition which threatened to stop his career. Prior to that Miske had been fighting too often. His performances began to show something was wrong, for he couldn't go through a tough set-to in the classy style he had displayed in his earlier bouts.

The halt in boxing that followed—a rest which could not be other than beneficial—and the incidental repairing were just what Miske needed, according to his manager, for Billy today not only shows every evidence of being physically perfect but has taken on considerable weight, which will be needed in a battle with Dempsey.

Will Be on View.

Those who may be skeptics will have a chance to see what Miske looks like in action in plenty of time before the bout to bet whichever way they care to, for Billy is to start work at his Benton Harbor training camp two weeks before the contest.

Woods and Waters

by LARRY ST. JOHN

MORE FLY FISHING GOSSIP.

LARRY ST. JOHN.

The mechanical process of casting a fly is looked upon by most of those who have not tried it as a most difficult art, requiring a great deal of practice. It is hard to convince a bait caster that casting a fly is much easier to learn than thumbing a reel. It can be learned in half the time it takes to master the back lash. The latter requires educating the thumb, a somewhat unruly member, but to cast a fly one has merely to get a principle fixed in his mind, the same being that casting a fly is not a continuous movement but is broken by a pause.

With the fly lying on the water, say ten feet ahead of him, the caster elevates the rod tip enough to take in the slack; then with a smart, snappy motion the rod is lifted, throwing the line over the shoulder. When the rod is pointing a wee bit back of straight up and down, the pause is made; then the forward cast is started.

The object of the pause is not, as most writers claim, simply to prevent snapping off the fly, but to allow the line to straighten enough to exert a pull on the rod tip, the reaction of the tip furnishing the motive power for the forward cast.

If the novice will keep in mind the fact that casting a fly consists of three distinct parts—back cast, pause, and forward cast—he will avoid thrashing.

Then he will discover that the rod, and not the good right arm, throws the line, leader, and fly.

Of the making of flies there is no end. There are now several thousand known patterns of trout flies, to say nothing of countless hundreds of nondescripts or mavericks. New ones are being created every season but still the old patterns hang on and gain, rather than lose, in popularity.

If trout flies were as fascinating to trout as they are to men who fish for trout our streams would be depleted in a season. No matter how many flies you already possess you will buy more every spring—as a springtime tonic buying flies sort of takes the place of the dose of sulphur and molasses we took in days gone by.

Viscount Grey, onetime British ambassador to the United States, in his excellent book, "Fly Fishing," mentions the anglers' willingness to rise to a tray of trout flies at the tackle shop by saying that he buys new ones every time he goes a-fishing and leaves the store torn by conflicting doubts: whether he should have bought more to insure success to his trip or whether he had not plunged to the extent of extravagance. I am glad that a real, sure-enough earl mentioned that: I've felt that way so many times myself!

Most fly fishermen have their own pet patterns of real or imaginary superiority over all others, but it does not pay to play favorites too strongly. Local conditions, the time of day, the season of the year and, most unreliable of all, the mood of the trout, must all be considered. However, certain patterns produce so much better under varying conditions that they become an angler's first choices and in several instances these first choices of individual anglers have been recorded and tabulated for the benefit of the doubtful.

Mary Orvis Marbury, in her "Favorite Flies and Their Histories," published the result of a symposium conducted among the most prominent anglers of the early '90s, with the following score, figures giving the number of times each fly was mentioned: Coachman, 58; Brown Hackle, 44; Professor, 38; Montreal, 28; Black Gnat, 25; White Miller, 24; Grizzly King, 23 Royal Coachman, 19; Queen of Waters, 19; Silver Doctor, 18; Cowdung, 18; Scarlet Ibis, 15.

In 1916 we had a symposium in Woods and Waters on trout flies for middle western waters, our most prominent experts contributing. The result is worth reprinting: Coachman, 9; Professor, 6; Cahill, Queen of Waters, Royal Coachman, Wickham's Fancy, Stone, Cowdung, 5 each; Brown Hackle, McGinty, Brown Palmer, 4 each; Silver Doctor, Hare's Ear, Grizzly King, Grey Hackle, Phil Mitchell, 3 each; March Brown, Montreal, 2 each.

Last year the "American Angler" asked more than 200 expert trout fishermen to give their three favorites and the score was: Royal Coachman, 93; Coachman, 56; Parmachenee Belle, 54; Cahill, 45; Professor, 43; Brown Hackle, 43; Black Gnat, 31; Gray Hackle, 27; Montreal, 26; Cowdung, 21; Silver Doctor, 20; Queen of Waters, 18.

From these records the novice should have no difficulty in stocking his fly box.

LAST DAY OF THE NORTH RANDALL TROTS DROPPED

Cleveland, O., Aug. 14.—Today's Grand circuit races at North Randall were called off after failure of an all morning effort to get the muddy track in condition, following yesterday's heavy rain. Most of the horses were shipped to Philadelphia for the meeting next week.

The money to be raced for in the one heat in the unfinished Leader 2:08 pace, two heats of which were decided yesterday, was split among the five horses eligible.

St. Mary's Training School Holds Field Meet Today

St. Mary's Training school, Desplaines, Ill., will hold its first annual field day this afternoon on the home field. There are more than 200 entries among the boys. The girls are also to take part, one of the features being a basketball game between the Bluebirds and the Robins. The program will open with a dress parade and a military drill by the boys. Col. John V. Clinnin of the Amateur Athletic union is to act as referee of the athletic events.

Pedestrian O'Leary to Race "Unknown" Today

Dan O'Leary, the 80 year old champion pedestrian, has a three mile walk on at Waukegan today with an "unknown." The race is to take place in the Waukegan baseball park at the close of the game between the Waukegan and Gary teams.

KING REVIEWS OLYMPIC STARS IN OPENING FETE

Americans Confident on Eve of Contests.

ish champion, and Bolin is formidable. It must be remembered that he has beaten Ted Meredith several times.

We ought to be satisfied in the preliminaries to get the place and not go all out to win. To get a place, though, means more perhaps, than in previous meets, because of the high average of the competitors. What we are now finding in this Olympic meet is that other countries have been studying and imitating our technique in track and field events in recent years with great profit.

I've noticed how quickly the sprinters get away. And, as I've said before, the Scandinavian countries have assiduously studied American methods, particularly Sweden, and Sweden looms up strongly in this year's meet.

Strong in Sprint.

It looks as if we should have four men in the semi-finals of the 100 meter sprint—Murchison, Scholz, Paddock, and Kirksey. Maybe it will be America fighting it out with Great Britain in the semi-finals, because Hill and Edwards are dangerous. Engdahl of Sweden and Wilson of South Africa are the other two most dangerous men in this event. Both Edwards and Hill are credited with 10 seconds or better for the distance. Loomis and Horton will take a lot of beating in the 400 meter hurdles, and Daggis and Desch are also in good form.

Andre of France and Wilen of Finland are fast men, the latter especially being much touted here.

In the javelin it promises to be a fight between Finland and Sweden, with the former favorite, although Johannsen of Sweden, has thrown the javelin around the 200 foot mark. Angier, Lincoln, Manner, and Tuck are our entries, but although they will do well, it is unlikely that they will be able to come through ahead of the others.

Peace Again Rules.

There has now been a happy solution of the Ahearn incident, resulting in a more friendly relation between the committee and the team. The committee heard the athletes' grievances and the team heard the view point of the committee. It has had a splendid effect on the morale of the whole team, and the incident is now closed.

Everybody realizes he has a world's championship competition before him and the happy solution on the eve of the Olympic games has produced all the greater effect. We are now in the proper atmosphere, in which the committee and the men completely understand one another.

FOR YOUNG MEN AND MEN WHO STAY YOUNG

When a salesman shows you Society Brand Clothes he comments not only on the style leadership of the suit or overcoat he is displaying, but he remarks also on the correct proportions of the garment, the reasons why it fits so satisfactorily.

Another point he almost invariably emphasizes is the hand-tailoring of Society Brand Clothes—which, with the high quality of the fabrics, is responsible for their appearance and their form-retaining merit.

REAL ESTATE NEWS

RENT CURB WILL CHECK BUILDING, KRAMER ASSERTS

Says Legislation Alone Can't Cure Evil.

All apartment building operations will cease and a greater shortage of living quarters than Chicago now faces will result if legislation is enacted limiting the returns on improved real estate, according to Adolph F. Kramer, president of the Chicago real estate board. Mr. Kramer's statement is in answer to the action of the city council on last Thursday afternoon in adopting resolutions asking Gov. Lowden to call a special session of the legislature to consider the rent situation.

"Legislation limiting rentals will only stop contemplated construction of apartment houses," said Mr. Kramer. "The more buildings there are constructed the closer we will be to the solution of the high rent situation.

Must See a Profit.

"Owners must see a profit before they will build. Labor conditions, the cost of building materials and difficulty in getting suitable terms to finance a building program tend to keep apartment building construction at a low ebb.

"If the owners see a reasonable profit they will build. The greater the return on the investment the more building will result, eventually making the supply equal to the demand. Rents will then come down to a point more satisfactory to the tenants.

"I do not advocate profiteering. I have no sympathy for highbinding landlords. I am making a plea that rents be made fairly profitable to the owner. If this is done, building projects will not be frightened away and within a reasonable time conditions will become normal.

"Legislation on rents alone will prove disastrous. If labor, building material, foodstuffs and clothing prices were controlled by legislation, there would be no objection to a check on apartment rentals."

Blames Auto Splurgers.

Mr. Kramer declared that families owning automobiles and living in Lake View, Edgewater and Rogers Park apartments are partly to blame for high rents.

"There are thousands buying automobiles with their capital of $4,000 or $5,000, and then moving into high rent apartment buildings. If these people would buy or build equity in a home with this money, and pay the rest out on what would be their rent, there would be plenty of room in apartments for those without any capital.

"These people could pay the interest on the investment and their taxes for what it costs to run an automobile and still have some left. They willingly pay a 100 per cent increase for garage rental. But it's their automobile—that's different. When it comes to considering a home of their own, they are not interested."

Mr. Kramer said the only immediate solution of the renting problem is reasonable coöperation between tenants and owners.

NORTHWEST SIDE CORNERS TO HAVE $450,000 PLANT

Construction of two modern business plants at an estimated cost of $450,000 at the intersection of Wrightwood and Best avenues is to be started this fall by the H. O. Reno company, commercial publishers, and the Standard Electric Manufacturing company, which at present is located at 216 North Clinton street.

The Reno company has just obtained a lot on the northwest corner, with improvements, having a frontage of 175 feet. The consideration is withheld. The property across the street on the northeast corner was owned by the Reno concern and sold by it to the Standard company for its plant.

Both deals were handled by H. J. Enger & Co.

The Reno plant will be a five story structure of concrete and brick, to cost approximately $200,000. The electric company will build a four story building, 102 by 126 feet, the cost of which will be about $250,000.

The above photograph shows two additions to the big plant of the Stewart-Warner Speedometer corporation, which when completed will give that concern a total floor space of 700,000 square feet. One of the new buildings fronts 240 feet on Diversey parkway and 140 feet on Lincoln street. The general design of the interior is Tudor, with octagonal columns at each corner and at the tower corners. The other building will be 95x175. L. G. RECORD MADE IN BACK OF YARDS FLAT BUILDINGS

Record construction work on the group of two apartment buildings being built by the A. D. Kniskern Construction company as part of the rehabilitation plan for the "back o' the yards" district was achieved yesterday, when the first of the houses was completed. Digging of the foundations was started on June 18.

The building will be open for inspection today. The rest of the houses are scheduled to be completed within six weeks.

First choice for the rental of the upper apartments will be given to employés of neighboring manufacturing plants. The houses will be sold to families on easy terms, the first apartments being reserved for the future owners.

Sears-Roebuck Company Rents Added Quarters

Arrangements to take over the four story and basement structure at 3622 South Iron street, in the Central Manufacturing district, for seven months to facilitate the handling of their fall and pre-holiday business were completed yesterday by Sears, Roebuck & Co. with William Reach, the owner.

The building, which is four years old, contains 16,000 square feet to each floor. It is served by the Chicago Junction railway and has vacant land, 110x130 feet, in the rear.

The principals were put in touch with one another through the Central Manufacturing District association.

PRESERVE AND PICKLE FIRMS MERGE; TO BUILD

Consolidation of two of Chicago's manufacturers of preserves, jellies, pickles, and mustard, together with the purchase of property which is to be improved with an eight story concrete plant, making a total expenditure of approximately $655,000, was announced yesterday.

The firms which have merged their interests are the Lamon-Gohl company, 664 West Randolph street, jellies and preserves, and the Adolph Gohl company, 1249 Belmont avenue, pickles and mustard. Incorporation is to be completed by Sept. 1 for approximately $300,000, according to F. W. Sheppard, secretary.

The new concern, which is to be known as the Gohl Preserve and Pickle company, has obtained from the Wire Hardware company the four story structure and ground 400 by 110 on the southwest corner of Besly court and Cortland street for a reported $95,000. The building is to be vacated before Sept. 1 by the paint shop of Montgomery Ward & Co.

A two story building on part of the new property is now under course of construction at a cost of $60,000. Within a year, building conditions permitting, the eight story structure is to be started. The cost is estimated at $500,000.

The new concern will retain the trade names of the two old firms' products.

Officers of the company will be Adolph Gohl, president; Frederick O. Gohl, vice president, and F. W. Sheppard, secretary and treasurer.

ALL GRAINS DROP SHARPLY, WITH WHEAT IN LEAD

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Buying support, although fair at times, was insufficient to take the grain offerings, which increased on all hard spots. Prices receded irregularly and finished well toward the inside, with a weak and rather distrustful feeling, wheat being off 2½ to 2¾c; corn, ⅜c to 2½c, May leading; oats, ¾c to 1⅛c, the latter on September; rye, 4¾c to 5¼c, and barley, 2½c to 2¾c. Peace news was a weakening factor in the late trading.

Prices have covered a wide range for the week and wheat is 5½@6c higher, while September corn is up 2¼c and December ¼c. September oats lost 1⅝c and December 1c. Rye is 3@4c higher and barley 1½@1¾c lower. In provisions lard is 2½c lower to 7½c higher, short ribs 5@15c lower, and pork 35@50c lower.

Minneapolis Leads Break.

Minneapolis led the break in wheat, dropping 6¼ for *December and 5@10c for cash. This started the selling here after a rally of 3c from the early decline and there was a weak finish. December touched $2.42 at the opening and was down to $2.38 later, with the close nearly at the inside.

Cash premiums were the highest of the season, 20@21c over December for No. 1 hard, but weakened at the last. Cash prices were lower, despite light country offerings. Minneapolis cash wheat broke 5@10c. Exporters bought 500,000 bu at the gulf and 50,000 bu here. The movement is disappointing and is about half of last year's at leading markets.

Corn showed the effect of light outside buying, although it had support from strong interests on the early break. After a good rally the market ran into selling presure from Clement-Curtis, Bartlett-Frazier, Stein Alstrin, and Thomson-McKinnon, and Livermore, the New York trader, and also into stop selling, which carried prices down more than ¾c for September and 2⅜c for December, with the close at nearly the lowest. On the break Clement-Curtis were large buyers and other houses took hold freely.

Cash premiums were 19@20c over September for yellow, with 15c over September bid for No. 2 yellow in store. The high cash premiums, although regarded as a bull argument, failed to check the late selling and weakness. Cash prices were unchanged to 2c lower here and 5c off in St. Louis. Cancellations of contract corn in store for the week were 278,000 bu out of total of 464,000 bu.

Hedge Sales in Oats.

Oats had a heavy tone all day, with only limited buying support and enough hedging sales to satisfy the bulk of the buyers. Prices dropped into the bids and the buying against them furnished the late support. There was selling of December and buying of May at 2½c difference. Receipts showed a good increase and the cash trade was indifferent.

Rye in Minneapolis broke 7c for September and Duluth 5c, while Chicago declined nearly 6c from the previous day's close and finished within ½c of the low point. Export business was 200,000 bu, but it had only a temporary check.

British Buy Hams.

It was said the British bought 5,000,000 lbs of hams here late Friday and Saturday in addition to the same quantity of lard. This had little effect, as trade was light, with the main support to September lard coming from the Armour interest. Prices had a narrow range and lard closed 2½c higher to 2½c lower, short ribs 2½@5c lower, while pork was neglected. January lard sold at $19.50. Shipments of lard and meats for the week were 15,675,000 lbs, against 17,285,000 lbs the previous week and 24,666,000 lbs last year. Packing at Chicago since March 1 aggregates 2,584,000 hogs, or 948,000 less than last year. Prices follow:

WORLD'S·GRAIN MARKET·NEWS

The grain trade was a little bearish last night and the markets were regarded as acting tired. Peace news was used as an excuse for the late selling, and there was a disposition on the part of the average trader to go slow on the buying side. It was noticeable that grains disappeared on weak spots, the absorption being attributed to the same interest that has been on the buying side all week, when the market needed support.

Weakness in the northwestern grain markets was a disturbing factor, and the trade is looking for a larger movement in that direction. There is always a fair run of grain after harvest, and it is expected to show in the near future.

One of the arguments against selling December corn is that there is already a large short interest, and it is 24½c under December, which is regarded as too great a discount. Last year it was 38c under.

Oats have not acted well for the holders for several days, the outside trade is light and the disposition is to sell whenever corn shows decided weakness.

The weekly weather forecast for the upper Mississippi and lower Misouri valleys is for generally fair and warmer.

Liberal selling of December wheat and corn during the last hour by Clement Curtis and of corn by Stein Alstrin, Thomson McKinnon, and Bartlett Frazier was the main depressing factor in corn.

NEWS OF THE CROPS

Corn in the northern third of Iowa has made rapid progress, but is two weeks behind normal in development, wired crop expert B. W. Snow to Bartlett Frazier company. Aside from this lateness, the prospect is unusually good. Earing is very heavy and are hanging down. The crop is a question of length of the season.

The Bank of Montreal's crop report says harvesting of wheat is under way and will be general around Saskatoon, Sask., next week. Estimated yield around Regina are 15 to 17 bu wheat and 55 to 60 bu oats. Some other sections are estimated at 20 to 25 bu wheat. In the Brandon district there is the lowest yield in ten years.

On the closing day of the week only 4,000 hogs arrived and prices ruled steady to 15c higher, with packing grades showing most advance. The day's top was $15.90 and the average $15.00, standing 40c lower and 5c higher, espectively, than the previous Saturday.

The week's receipts of hogs at 107,100, barring the strike period last April, were the smallest since September, 1919, and the week's estimated average weight at 253 lbs was the heaviest in nearly a year, against 248 lbs the previous week and 250 lbs a year ago. Traders are expecting continued small receipts, with indications of heavier weights.

Best grades of cattle closed at the highest prices since last January, with fancy beeves quotable at $17.50. Other cattle closed steady to 50c lower for the week. Sheep and lambs during the week declined 75c@$2.00, with lambs off most, best being worth around $13.00 at the close.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 17,000 cattle, 29,000 hogs, and 25,000 sheep, against 18,851 cattle, 20,399 hogs, and 28,185 sheep corresponding Monday a year ago.

Next week's receipts are estimated at 53,000 cattle, 110,000 hogs, and 90,000 sheep, against 57,399 cattle, 67,829 hogs, and 123,418 sheep a year ago.

INTEGRITY

WITHOUT INTEGRITY there can be no such thing as confidence. No man cares to invest his money through those whose integrity is not above reproach.

Integrity is one of those undefinable qualities which either exists or doesn't, but whose presence is vital to satisfactory financial transaction.

For more than a third of a century the house of H. O. Stone & Co. has built upon a conservative foundation of financial integrity, with the knowledge that only upon such a base could it erect a structure of time-resisting merit.

Today, due to the confidence of the people in H. O. Stone & Co., thousands are placing their funds and surplus savings in the First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Bonds offered by this Company, secure in the knowledge that never in the course of its business history has any client had reason to regret accepting the advice of H. O. Stone & Co. in regard to his investments.

Amply protected by a large margin of security over and above the amount of the mortgage—further protected by the high class of structures themselves and the liberal earnings of the properties—all H. O. Stone & Co.'s First Mortgage Real Estate Serial Bonds are conservative, sound, stable investments, paying the highest interest return consistent with safety.

BULK OF NATIONS' CREDIT DEMAND SHIFTS TO EAST

That the largest demand for credit shifted, at least temporarily, from west to the east is evidenced in weekly bank statements issued yesterday. This situation reflects the present uncertain industrial situation, ordinarily at about this time of year demand for funds shifts to the east in preparation for crop moving. The present condition also tends to confirm banking opinion that the need of funds for crop moving this year may not be as urgent as has been anticipated and may come later than usual.

The statements of the New York and Chicago federal reserve banks are almost diametrically opposite in their essentials. In general the eastern institution showed a less favorable position in regard to reserves, while the western bank continued to improve its position.

New York Borowings Up.

The New York clearing house banks improved their position, but only to the disadvantage of the New York federal reserve bank, from which the member banks increased their borrowings by more than $60,000,000. The poor showing of the central institution also was due to the fact that other federal reserve banks reduced their borrowings more than half during the week.

The principal features in the report of the New York reserve bank were a sharp increase in loans, a considerable drop in gold reserves, and a moderate gain in deposits. Total loans increased $43,-[illegible], those secured by government obligations expanding $2,645,923 and those secured by commercial bills increasing $41,314,457. As other federal reserve banks decreased their borrowings $16,892,678, this means that the member banks increased their rediscounting $60,554,058. Bills bought in the market receded $25,132,384, so that total bills on hand increased $18,827,997.

Total gold reserves declined $20,553,-[illegible] and total reserves receded $16,085,-[illegible]. Total deposits increased $16,894,-[illegible], although the government lowered its balance by $6,886,678. Total earning assets increased $16,201,497. Circulation increased $326,085. The ratio of total reserves to deposit and note liabilities combined fell to 38.8 from 39.8 per cent the preceding week.

Chicago Credit Easier.

The statement of the Chicago federal reserve bank revealed an easing of the credit strain in its district. Total loans to member banks receded $6,653,995, those on war paper declining $4,399,658 and those on commercial bills dropping $[illegible]. Because of this easing the bank increased its purchases of bills in the market by $3,425,581, but total bills still showed a recession of $3,228,-[illegible]. Despite the drop in loans, the member banks increased their reserve account by $7,390,483.

Total deposits increased $13,969,257, although government deposits declined slightly. Total gold reserves increased $[illegible]. The ratio of reserves to deposit and note liabilities combined rose to 42.61 from 41.17 in the preceding week, while the ratio of reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposits, rose to 46.04 from 43.78 per cent in the preceding week.

Summary of 12 Banks

…considerable increase in deposits and …ate expansion in loans and note circulation were the features of the consolidated statement of the twelve federal reserve banks. Total deposits increased $[illegible], although government deposits declined $8,990,000. Loans expanded $39,175,000, those on war paper …ing $11,583,000 and those on commercial bills increasing $27,592,000. Partly offsetting these increases was a decline in bills bought in the market of $18,772,000, so that total bills increased only $20,401,000. With the increase in loans the member banks increased their reserve account by $17,744,000. Total earning assets increased $26,747,000.

Federal reserve note circulation expanded $27,320,000. Holdings of treasury certificates increased $6,346,000. Total gold reserves receded $3,247,000, but total reserves increased $1,141,000 through an addition of $4,388,000 in legal tender notes, silver, etc. The ratio of total reserves to net deposit and note liabilities combined was 43.9, compared with 44 per cent the preceding week, while the ratio of gold reserves to note circulation, after setting aside 35 per cent against net deposit liabilities, was 48.6 compared with 48.9 per cent in the preceding week.

The New York Times.

New York, Aug. 14.—[Special.]—In a dull session stocks today recorded nothing except the usual weekend readjustment of speculative positions. Price changes were fractional and, in cases of upturns running in excess of a point, relatively inactive stocks were the subject of buying.

Industrial shares which had rallied earlier in the week were sold down as profits were realized by purchasers at recent low levels. There were no signs of renewed short selling.

Bears Drive at Prices.

The week started off with a sharp drive at prices by bear traders, emboldened by their success last week. Last Monday was the only day, however, to show price weaknesses, and professional pressure thereafter ran constantly against a steady flow of short covering purchases and a fair amount of scale buying by persons who look ahead for weeks or months for their profits.

In the more conservative market quarters it was noticed as the week ended that haste in buying stocks on margin was considered unwise. The credit outlook, it was pointed out, is not headed toward a plethora of money at New York.

Market More Cheerful.

It was maintained that the liquidation of stocks in the last fortnight had accounted for much of the call loan easement, a condition which might quickly be undone if large scale buying appeared. In all stock market environs it was realized that, while the Polish and Russian representatives were reported engaged in armistice negotiations, the outcome could not be considered favorable in advance by reason of the fact Russian forces were pressing their advantage around Warsaw.

So the end of the week found the stock market following more cheerful than at the week's beginning, yet cautious withal in respect to new ventures.

FINANCIAL NOTES

The report of the General Motors corporation for the six months ended June 30 shows a balance, after charges, federal taxes, and preferred and debenture dividends, of $32,504,664, equivalent to $1.66 a share on the 19,518,895 shares of nonpar common stock. This compares with a balance of $29,125,942, or $19.72 a share, on the 147,647,700 shares of common stock for the first half of 1919.

Stockholders of the Manhattan Electric Supply company have ratified the recapitalization plan proposed by the directors. The company will have 250,000 shares of nonpar stock authorized, with 70,000 shares outstanding. Part of this 70,000 shares will be exchanged for the present preferred and common stocks, and the balance will be sold to obtain additional working capital.

The Certain-teed Products corporation has purchased the capital stock of the Thomas Potter Sons company, Inc., of Philadelphia. The transaction involves approximately $3,000,000. William Potter, president, and Joseph W. Wear, treasurer of the Potter company, will become a director and a vice president respectively of the Certain-teed company.

R. G. Dun & Co. report 156 commercial failures in the United States last week, compared with 152 in the preceding week and 115 in the corresponding week in 1919.

How to Avoid Unsalable Bonds.

The people who are saving all the money they can and investing it now while bonds are cheap may further their interests by trying to select securities that will always have a ready market.

There probably is not an old investor in the country who does not hold a considerable amount of so-called "dead" bonds bought years ago. Presumably they are just as sound now as ever, but for some reason they have no more market than a farm mortgage. They can be sold, of course, but only at a price that seems absurdly low. If the holder of such bonds is one of the numerous persons who "go to sleep on their investments" he may be perfectly satisfied, but if he is awake to opportunities he often regrets his inability to sell and reinvest to better advantage.

There is no mark by which a bond destined to have a good market many years hence can be identified with certainly, but there are indications by which one that will have only a narrow market can be known. If an investor wants one of the latter sort he can usually get it at a slightly lower price. If he wants to keep his investments liquid he should select bonds, which are parts of large issues, the obligations of well known companies of high financial standing. Those conditions do not insure a good market, but they make it probable. Their absence makes a narrow market fairly certain.

These considerations, of course, do not have any direct bearing on the safety of an investment. They refer merely to its marketability.

United Railways Investment.

E. J. O., Elgin, Ill.—The United Railways Investment company is a holding corporation, some of whose subsidiaries are prosperous and some are not. It has outstanding $17,292,000 of notes and collateral trust bonds. Its income covers interest charges about one and one-half times, but for several years all the surplus has been applied to writing off losses on securities owned. The published reports do not show how much more must be charged off. Evidently the stock is purely speculative for the present.

Brief Answers.

J. M., Fisher, Ill.—The Falls Motors corporation reported earning only 4 1-3 per cent on its $982,500 of preferred stock in the year ended Sept. 30 last. It is overcapitalized. Preferred shares are offered in the market at $5.62½.

Z. T., Crystal Lake, Ill.—The Texas company has $85,000,000 of stock outstanding and $35,000,000 of notes. It is now paying dividends at the rate of 12 per cent a year. Net earnings in 1919 figure out at 2 2per cent on the present capital.

"Our Best Salesman"

Frankly, it has come to be a matter of comment throughout the entire Louis Geyler Company that the best salesman in the organization is the Dort chassis.

Any word of ours would add but little weight to the silent but impressive testimony of that clean, simple design; that sturdy, carefully-built running gear; that thoroughly balanced, accessible engineering.

Even to those of you without expert knowledge the mechanical superiority in point after point of Dort construction is apparent at a glance.

In casting up the advantages of the Dort we urge you to examine the chassis minutely.

Note how strongly it is assembled. Observe the over-size and over-strength at points where strain must be met.

The stalwart crank shaft, for instance, weighs 47 pounds and is $2\frac{1}{8}$ inches in diameter.

It is forged from the highest quality carbon steel and then heat treated to give added strength.

The main bearings are notably large. The forward measuring $2\frac{9}{64}$ by $3\frac{13}{16}$ inches. The rear bearing is $2\frac{1}{8}$ by $3\frac{9}{16}$ inches.

You will observe that the rugged connecting rod bearings are 2 inches in diameter and $2\frac{1}{8}$ inches long.

The connecting rods are forged from .30-.45 carbon open hearth steel.

Now observe the clutch. It is a light cone made from top-quality pressed steel and faced with fine leather.

The transmission is of the selective sliding gear type with three forward and one reverse speed.

All gears and shafts are of $3\frac{1}{2}$% nickel steel, hardened and ground.

The front axle, I-beam construction, is drop forged with integral yokes and spring-pads from .30-.40 carbon open hearth steel.

The forging receives double heat treatment which gives added toughness.

The frame, as you doubtless have remarked already, is extra heavy pressed steel channel, narrowed in front to permit of short turning radius.

It is this strength that gives the Dort its noted "stay-put" quality.

You can count upon your Dort needing mechanical attention very infrequently.

Added to this is the very marked thrift in the Dort in use of gas and oil and of tire wear.

The evidence of 60,000 owners shows it to be an exceptionally economical car to operate.

If you will let us know a time convenient to you we will be glad to arrange a trial trip for you.

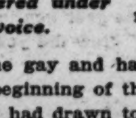
The Story of a Man in Debt for His Life, and How He Paid the Reckoning



"Hush, sonny!" Peter ordered under his voice.

SISTER PERDITA was fond of bringing her convalescents about the county. She declared it was good for them. Perhaps she also thought it added to her own importance. Certainly she shone on these visits in a kind of reflected glory; for nearly all her boys—as she called them—had some wonderful story of achievement to account for wounds; and even those who were merely recovering from a crash or illness had the glamour of heroic romance about them; were they not airmen?

Many nationalities were in the gay and halting company, for from the beginning of the war the imperial air service had drawn to itself adventurous spirits from all parts of the globe.

Sister Perdita was a favorite. She was elderly and foolish, but she was the soul of good nature. The "boys" called her a jolly old bird; and if they laughed at her, if they were even wearied by or irritated with her irrepressible vitality when their own was at a low ebb, they were always ready to recognize her kind intention.

When, therefore, on this bitter November day, with an east wind blowing like fine knives and a death cold mist gathering across the moor, she came to Peter Montayne as he sat cowering over the fire in the smoking room and bid him "hustle," because she was going to motor him out to tea, deeply as he deprecated the suggestion, he knew she was bent upon his good.

She said "hustle" to him because he was an American and she was arch. He was the only American who had come the way of the hospital, and they thought a great deal of him.

He was a silent, dark faced youth, with a profile like that on a classic coin and a sweep of black hair brushed straight back which gave him a kind of eagle look. He had enlisted in the imperial air service before his country had joined in the great struggle for right. Most of his life had been spent in Honolulu and he had curious tropical experiences to add to the incredible adventures of the war. Little was known about him in the hospital—little, that is to say, of his life and inner thoughts, of his home, or kin, or friendships. But a great deal had become apparent of his serenity of temper and of a certain deep rooted courtesy which struck him somehow apart from the rest.

He sprang up now and fixed pleading brown eyes upon Sister Perdita:

"It's awfully good of you, but I'm feeling just about cheap. I think I'll stay in the warmth, if you don't mind."

The Irish boy who was grinning and jerking his limbs in a sort of pantomime mockery from the other side of the billiard table where he was practicing cunning strokes by himself would not have troubled, had he been in Montayne's shoes, to drag himself out of this armchair, would not have troubled even to remove the cigaret from between his lips. "O, stow it, Perdita, dear!" he would have said. "You don't annex me today if I know it!"

This was substantially what he did say when she now turned to him:

"Come, Capt. O'Flaherty, you're not going to stew all day indoors, not if I know it. As for you, Capt. Montayne, you've simply got to drive with me, for I have arranged it all entirely for you. I'm going to bring you to the most heavenly little manor house in England, a perfect Queen Anne gem. It belongs to a Mrs. Clavering, a widow. She used to be a friend of mine. I only heard a few days ago that we were within a motor drive, and I wrote to tell her I'd bring you over. What's that you say? Ah, that's right."

Peter Montayne was murmuring, with his invariable deference where the other sex was concerned, that Sister Perdita was always kindness itself. Of course, if she had thought about him like that, why, he would be very ungrateful not to be altogether at her disposal. He did feel shivery, headachy, unlike himself. But no doubt the fresh air would blow it all away.

"Be ready in half an hour then," commanded the sister in charge triumphantly to both; and, veil flying, hurried forth to beat up further victims.

"You're a pretty ass!" said Desmond O'Flaherty, playfully threatening Montayne with his cue. For some not clearly defined reason he seemed to consider his own consent involved by that of his comrade.

Peter Montayne smiled on him rather ruefully as he stood with his back to the fire.

Though he put on his fur lined leather flying coat and pulled down his cap over his ears and sat in front over the cylinders, never, he thought, had he felt so frozen—he who had known what it is to fly through the hailstorm, the snow cloud.

He was ashamed to find himself unable to control his shivering as he followed Sister Perdita through the dark paneled hall into the pleasant drawing room of Clavering Manor. Here he had but a confused impression of warmth and flower scents; of deep toned pictures on white walls; of a small, slender lady in black, and of a soft voice, speaking to him as from a great distance.

Presently he found himself on a chair, with a cup of tea in his hand, and the cup and saucer rattled because of these ridiculous shudderings. He thought he must have made some false movement or have been sitting awkwardly, for he had, too, a strangely paralyzing pain in his side; it seemed to him as if all the nightmare sensations of cold had concentrated into that pain.

"I must have given myself a rick," he decided.

His teeth clicked against the rim of his cup, then he saw that a dish was being held before him by an arm that appeared to him to wander away, like the voices, to extraordinary distances.

"Have a bun, old chap," said some one from the sky.

A bun! He had to press back an explosion of anger. That was O'Flaherty. Only an Irish fool would think of holding an object so revolting within scent of his nostrils!

Mrs. Clavering interrupted her undertone conversation with Sister Perdita; her gaze had wandered several times from her visitor to the young airman on the other side of the hearth. She now put out her hand:

"One moment—I don't think he is well."

"He? Who? Which of them?" Sister Perdita's eyes rolled wildly round her contingent of invalids. "They all get a bit green now and then. It don't do to pay any attention—I see, Capt. Montayne. What's the matter, Master Peter? Got a stitch?"

Her voice was strident. Peter Montayne, his hand on his side, looked round vaguely; tried to pull himself together and laughed, and was caught with such a stab that involuntarily he doubled up over the cushions of the sofa. And now that he had his head down on the cushion he did not feel as if he could ever lift it again.

He shut his eyes and descended suddenly, but not altogether uncomfortably, into vast depths. Singular billowy substances, like clouds turned to feather beds, rose up all round him. As he fought through them and fell back again he got confused impressions of a gentle touch upon his wrist and brow and of other touches which he resented and from which he strove to draw himself away.

Then there was, it seemed, a curious conflict over his head. Sister Perdita was talking very loud, and insisting, as if she were quite angry, about "military regulations" and an ambulance, and what was "really unnecessary fuss" and "really her absolute duty as sister in charge." And to this argument and clamor somebody else, with a voice as soft as a dove and hardly any words, was opposing a barrier of invincible denial.

Emerging momentarily from his feather beds, Peter Montayne, without in the least connecting the idea of the ambulance with himself, was glad to find that Sister Perdita was worsted. Then he went back into those muffling, enveloping, devouring clouds in which it was increasingly hard to breathe, to find that they were lifting him up and walking away with him.

Hereafter followed a time of strange confusion for Peter Montayne, thought and sensation so curiously intermixed that he scarcely knew which was which. The pain in his side became as some huge problem which he had to solve or die. The wandering of his wits was inextricably connected with an absurd want of control over his breathing. Into this nightmare world faces and voices floated, and he very often floated, too—which, as an airman, did not surprise him.

He was much disturbed by the constant reappearance of Sister Perdita's smile. Her teeth—they were always prominent—had uncannily grown; and really at times when he could sufficiently lay hold of that panting machine that had got into his brain it seemed to him that they were reprehensibly large for any one in charge of invalids. This fact should be represented at the British war office.

He was glad when suddenly she vanished and only one face remained. A very sweet and tender, pretty face, with which he presently associated a quiet, calming hand touch and a voice that never hurt his head or his chest; that seemed, on the contrary, somehow to calm them.

Peter Montayne had not known what it was to have a mother since he was 5 years old. There had remained a dim vision on his mind of a dark, lovely face and brooding eyes; of pale colored muslin and arms that held him close; a breast against which a little boy found comfort. This delicate jumble of memories he had always called Mamma; and even to manhood it had given him a swelling heart and a tightening throat when some turn of the wheel of sensation brought this treasure of lost childhood back upon him. Now it came to him with certainty that this touch, this voice, this face were essential parts of motherhood—a motherhood miraculously for him.

It was an infinite soothing. He let himself rest upon it, went to sleep upon it, and woke up as from a double dream, agony passing to peace.

His heavy eyes roamed. He saw, as through veils of mist, the firelight gleam upon dark panels that gave back the reflection as with a rich glow of their own. He saw the pillars of a four post bed rise in spirals between him and space, and they, too, gleamed.

By a languid movement of the eyes he could just see the lining of the curtains about his head; it was a delicate lilac, made of infinitesimal rings interlacing. A fold turned back gave him also a glimpse of the outside. He saw a fairy glade of oak trees, squirrels on the branches, deer beneath—the stag no larger than the squirrel—and the oak tree mysteriously grew apples of pumpkin size. He felt as enchanted as a child. It was not worth while to move just now. But some day he would stretch out an arm, turn the curtain round, and see more of that wondrous forest. . . .

There was a fragrance in his nostrils. He wondered if it came from the oak wood. He was sure it was, anyhow, a scent from far distant years. He would not be surprised if the woods had smelt like that in Robin Hood's days—or perhaps when Shakespeare wrote of "luscious woodbines and sweet musk roses and the eglantine where slept Titania."

It was, he knew, intensely English; of the rich, strong, proud English tree before it had sent so many branches and offshoots about the world. Yes, it was a smell of wood and of old roses and deep hearted things. . . .

His glance shifted again; a watching face; the gaze of thoughtful, tender, steady eyes, violet blue, set in shadow upon ivory pallor; dark banded hair, gray streaked. . . . Nothing in the least like that young, laughing, fruit tinted countenance that had blessed his childhood. Nevertheless, he was aware that she who sat at the end of his bed was there as a mother.

Everything that grew upon his mind, as strength returned, charmed him; but nothing more subtly nor more exquisitely than the maternal presence.

From the glare and heat of the exotic lands he had most known, from the oddly contrasted existence, half intense business activity—diamond cut diamond for keenness, serpent outleap serpent for subtlety—and half basking relaxation, even to cessation of thought, he had brought a sensitive, fastidious soul. Here for the first time it felt at home. It was not because of her goodness to him, not because she had opened her doors to the stranger, nursed and comforted and healed, not because he owed his life to her—the bond between them was far subtler, compounded of elements beyond analysis, not burdened by the weight of facts.

The doctor and Mrs. Clavering stood, one on each side of the bed, and both smiled at him. The doctor was a broad, elderly man, rough and countrified, and yet, as he had proved himself, able.

"You've had an uncommon narrow shave, young sir," said he. "But you're out of the wood now."

The patient smiled in his turn. With the weakness of a child about him he thought, in innocent childish pleasure, that he was still in his enchanted old English oak wood, out of which no doctor could draw him yet.

"If it had not been for her"—the doctor nodded across the bed at the slender figure in black—"you'd not be above ground. If your fine army sister had had her own way and carted you off in her ambulance, Lord! Don't I know them, chanky, drafty things, rattling over the roads, full of men's groans, at forty miles an hour! There wouldn't have been much left of you."

"Any one with a grain of common sense," said Mrs. Clavering, straightening as she spoke a crumple in the blanket, "would have done as I did."

"Well, and begging your pardon"—the doctor began to button up his greatcoat and feel about its pockets for his gloves—"there is not one in a thousand would have had the cleverness and the pluck. She fought for you, young man." He laughed suddenly. "That Sister Miranda, Lucinda, or whatever her silly name may be, she thought she'd terrify you, Mrs. Clavering, with her bogeys of military discipline. She thought she had a kind of gentle dove to deal with! Pooh! There's no wind strong enough to drive a sitting bird from the nest. Aye, she fought for you, young man! And fought more than flesh and blood; a pretty dread enemy it was she fought, she alone!"

The boy in the bed had no words. He merely looked at her who had been mother to him. How could any one put into the grossness of speech what he was feeling?

"Yes, night and day she never left you, that little woman. Last night was the first she slept; and then it was on that sofa there at the foot of your bed. Come, now, you know that's true, Mrs. Clavering. She has the strength of twenty when it comes to carrying out her will. She wouldn't let any one else in to you. A pretty bad infectious type of influenza it was, my young friend. They're dropping down all over the camp with it, I hear, like flies. But you're lucky. You'll be potting Huns again before the month is out."

He went to the door, still laughing; but Peter had marked a glint in his little shrewd eyes that looked uncommonly like an unshed tear. He wondered. And when she came back and took her own chair he saw that on the worn, delicate face, for all its serenity, there was the stamp of an immense sorrow.

"I hope," she said as she took up her knitting, "you do not mind his free and easy ways. He has known me since childhood and has helped me through many a dark valley."

"Why," said Peter, "it seems he has helped to pull me out of the Valley of the Shadow. It would be strange if I wanted to complain of the roughness of his grasp, though"—he paused, hesitated; his eyes became charged with what he found it so impossible to say—"there was another hand——" He broke off. His glance sought the ivory fingers now laid on the counterpane as if to impose silence. "That hand," he went on, "was ever gentle, and yet it held me. It alone. How did you do it?"

She answered him steadily:

"You were as a son to me. There was no other way." She rose and bent over him. "Do not speak of that; do not thank me. Have you a mother?"

"No. She died when I was a tiny kid. I never knew, I never had"—here he blushed to the roots of his hair, and added shyly—"till now."

"I had one son," she said.

She sat down again and began to knit. There was not a quiver upon the cameo purity of her face. Her brows were serene; her eyes unwet; her lips folded into perfect sweetness; and yet Peter knew he was looking upon the face of a woman whose heart was broken. After a long pause she answered the question he dared not put.

"I do not know if he is alive or dead."

"Missing?"

"Wounded and missing. It is nine months since the news came." Again there was a pause—full of tragedy, as the wind beating against the casement was full of bleak winter. "He was not yet 19," she said. "And we two had only each other."

Peter's illness had been as short as it was violent. He had narrowly escaped the worst features of that deadly form of seizure still dubbed influenza for want of better knowledge, although in suddenness and virulence it closely resembled the "plague" of olden days.

On the afternoon which first saw him stretched on the sofa in the upstairs sitting room Mrs. Clavering had an air of triumph which in the circumstances was to him more touching even than her unremitting devotion in the hours of danger.

The room was next door to his own. A single look around sufficed to show him that it was her sanctuary. Here, as in an overfull cup, the wine of her sorrow brimmed, steeped with fragrant and bitter herbs of memory. The same face looked at him from every table and shelf. Even out of the mellow canvas that held the chief panel, the young cavalier with the lovelocks falling about his lace collar, seemed to gaze with the eyes of the young soldier all in his new khaki from the last photograph. Both Rupert Clavering, she told him. The cavalier had lost his life on Worcester field.

"He was just my boy's age. Strange, was it not, that I should have called him Rupert?"

Peter contemplated the picture. It was a noble head, instinct with youthful life, and joy, and energy, and yet indescribably stamped with the melancholy of the foredoomed.

"It's one of our best pictures, our Vandyck. But I had it brought up here, to keep for myself—afterward—it's so strangely like."

"I guessed that," said Peter under his breath.

The same face everywhere. Round and soft as a cherub's, adorably mischievous in babyhood; the sturdy child, rather defiant, as if daring any one to keep him in the nursery; thinner, more serious, a little shy, of schoolboy days; and, later, with a something ardent in the brow and a tilt of the lip that spoke of development both in humor and virility; and then the soldier. . . .

Peter turned his thoughts to her who sat here in the shrine of her bereavement, with her torn mother's heart rejoicing in the life that was saved—the life of the passing stranger! She lifted her eyes and gave him one of those little smiles which always struck him as so piteous.

She had a way of guessing his thoughts:

"You wonder why I don't cry. Kind people, like my good old doctor, can't look at me without a tear springing. But I—O, no!" She shook her head. "It is far beyond that."

"Hasn't it made it worse for you," he said rather timidly, "my being here, I mean? O, I can't help thinking it is enough to drive you mad."

She got up from the tea table and came round to him, drawing a chair close.

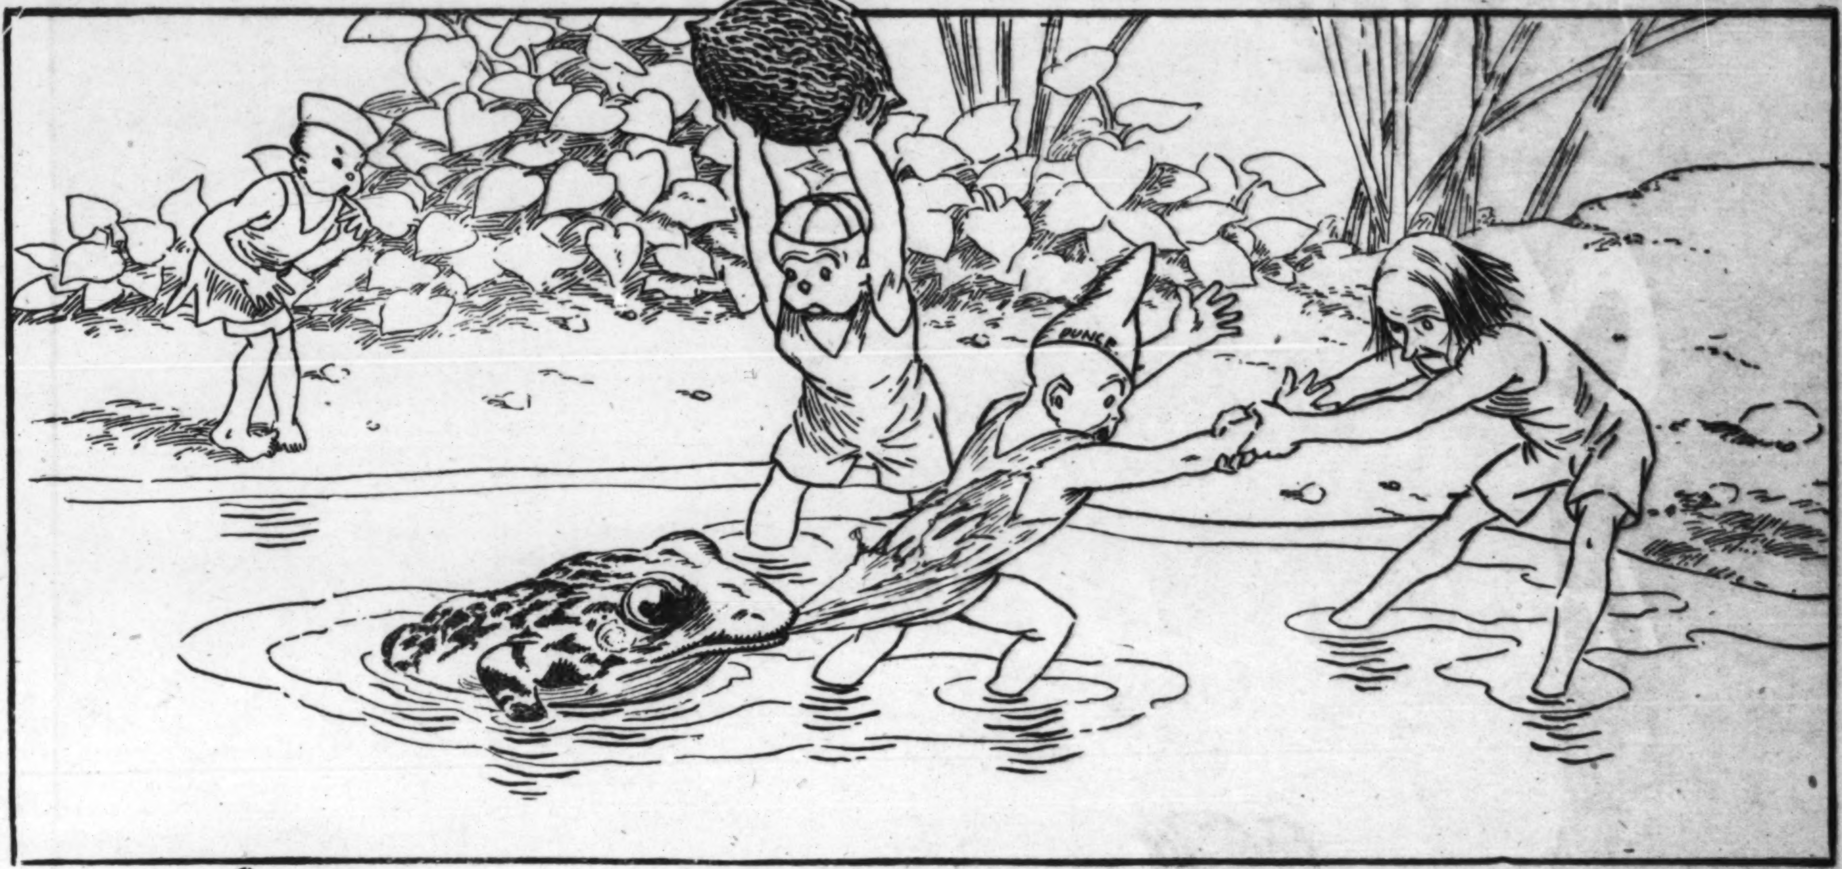
"I'm glad you touched on that," she said "I've wanted to make you understand. You owe me no thanks, no gratitude. When you came that afternoon I was a woman turned to stone; dead, frozen like that garden over there. Withered. People said I was plucky; they little knew! I just went on—an iron sky over my head and frost in my soul. And then when I saw you fall against the cushions something awoke." She paused. "Something like a bird flying into my dead world. A pulse of life. I said to myself: 'There's death upon him—him at least I will save.' I put you in my son's room. The doctor was right; I did fight for you, as a mother fights for her son. It seemed to me—O, without reason—that somehow my boy's life was woven in with yours; that in saving one I was saving the other."

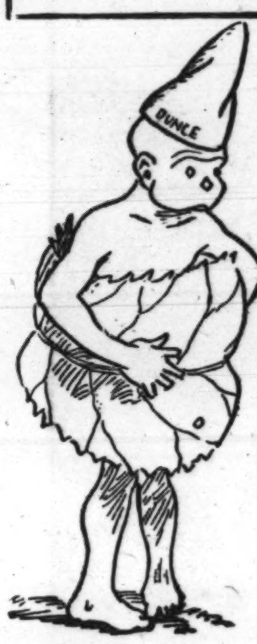
A flush came into her pale face, like the glow of a flame leaping in an alabaster lamp. Under the close waves of her raven hair, gray streaked, her countenance was fired with an extraordinary beauty—a beauty that had nothing of youth in it but the majesty of her motherhood, her long suffering, and her passion.

"You think me mad."

THE TEENIE WEENIES.

FOUR OF THE LITTLE PEOPLE HAVE AN EXCITING TIME. by Wm. DONAHEY.





THE weather had been so warm that most of the Teenie Weenies loafed around the little camp in their tiny bathing suits.

The suits were cool, and, besides, the little folks were always ready to take a plunge in the creek at any time.

"Let's do somethin'," suggested the Dunce, who always wanted to be on the move.

"All right," answered the Turk. "Let's go to sleep."

"Ah, j-j-j-j-jimminie f-f-f-f-fishhooks!" exploded the Dunce. "I mean let's go somewhere. Let's do somethin'."

"How about a swim?" said Paddy Pinn.

"That suits me all right," cried the Dunce.

"I'd like a dip, too," said Gogo, who was lying stretched out on a soft dock leaf.

"Allie same me likkie go," cried the Chinaman.

"Come on, everybody!" shouted the Dunce, and he ran off through the tall grass towards the creek, followed by the Chinaman, Paddy Pinn and Gogo.

The four little fellows dove into the creek and played in the cool water for some time, but they soon grew tired, and Gogo suggested they wade up the stream.

The four Teenie Weenies wandered along the shore of the creek, sometimes walking on the sandy beach and again wading in the clear water.

Flowers overhung the banks and in places soft ferns arched the creek like a green tent.

"Jinks!" exclaimed the Dunce, who was wading ahead of his companions, "Here's a nice sandy beach."

"OH! OH!" screamed the Chinaman, pointing towards the middle of the creek. "LOOKIE LOOK! BLIG CLOW FLOG."

"Quick, Dunce," shouted Paddy Pinn, "get out, quick, there's a bull frog in the creek."

From the middle of the stream a huge bull frog swam slowly towards the Dunce, and just as that young man plunged for the shore the frog leaped at him and caught the frightened fellow by the seat of his bathing suit.

At the same time Paddy Pinn caught one of the Dunce's waving arms, and a tug of war began.

"I'll fix him. I'll fix him!" shouted Gogo, who dashed into the water with a big peach seed lifted high in his strong arms. "I'll knock his bloomin' head off," and the little chap hurled the seed with all his might at the frog's head.

The seed landed squarely between the frog's eyes, and with one mighty jerk the big fellow ripped the bathing suit clean off the howling Dunce and disappeared under the water.

"G-g-g-g-great c-c-c-cherry s-s-s-seed," stuttered the Dunce when he stood safely on the shore. "How in the name of g-g-ginger am I g-g-g-going to get home without a suit?"

"That's easy," laughed Paddy Pinn as he pulled a leaf off the branch of a bush, "wrap yourself up in this."

The Dunce wrapped the leaf about his body and made off for camp, where he soon dressed himself, none the worse for his experience except for a little scare and the loss of a perfectly good bright red bathing suit.

TEENIE WEENIE GOSSIP.

There was quite a stampede last night among the mice which pull the camping wagons for the Teenie Weenies. The mice had been stabled in an old lard bucket, and about 10 o'clock the Teenie Weenie camp was awakened by the loud squealing of the mice. Several of the Teenie Weenie men hurried to the stable and found the mice in great fear of a cat. The mice said they could smell the cat, but on investigation it was found to be only a pole-cat.

The Lady of Fashion has purchased three lovely feathers from a Humming-bird with which she expects to trim one of her dainty hats.

Zip threw the camp into quite a scare yesterday noon. The little chap choked on a blackberry seed, and it took considerable thumping on his Teenie Weenie back to make him cough it up.

* * *

While hunting frogs in a big swamp, one day last week, the Cowboy and the Indian were attacked by a flock of eight mosquitoes. Five of the mosquitoes were brought down by the hunters' tiny rifles and two were wounded. One of the wounded mosquitoes was a huge fellow, and after he had been shot through the back he flew onto the Indian, who finished him with his hunting knife.

* * *

The Sailor was bruised painfully several days ago. He was pulling an angle-worm out of the ground when the worm parted in the middle and the little chap fell, striking his head against a hickory nut shell.

A few days ago the Cook found two crabapples which he made into jelly. The little folks will have enough jelly to last them for a couple of weeks.

The drawing can be colored by yourself with either water color or crayons. The sky can be either blue or yellow and the weeds in the background green. The ground can be a light tan, the water light blue and the frog dark green.

The Dunce and Paddy Pinn have pink arms, legs and faces, while the Chinaman's color is tan. Gogo's complexion is dark brown.

The Teenie Weenie bathing suits and hats can be filled in with the colors you like best.

[Copyright: 1920: By Wm. Donahey.]

"O, no," he cried. "You're great!"

"Well, I saved you. I pulled you out of the jaws of death with these hands, as it were by that black hair of yours." She gave a faint, whimsical laugh. "Even if—well, even if it never was to mean anything but just you—I shall have given life again. You will be always son of mine."

She leaned forward, put her two hands on his shoulders, and kissed his forehead.

Never had any one been so lonely as he. He had been like one wandering in the outer circles of the world; in shadowy, nebulous, inhuman places. Now he was drawn in to warmth and love and sorrow; he was companioned, in a mother's heart, to its best beloved. He had a brother—in a gallant English boy—and he had a mother! With all the chivalry of his nature he dedicated himself to her in the silence that followed.

It was only when the hour of parting came that he felt able to whisper one word of all he felt toward her.

"O, whatever happens to me, now I have been blessed."

And it was indeed with her blessing that he went forth to buckle on again that armor, blood and fire and terror proof, in which the airman's soul must be clad to front the battle line.

Peter Montayne came out of his shell hole in the oak wood and shook himself like a dog. He could still smell the fumes of petrol from the holocaust of his machine down in the turnip field yonder below the wood. The drone of the inquisitive Fokkers that had come to investigate the conflagration, only to find ruins and one dead body, was still circling in the clouds.

"Poor old Pip!" Peter was glad to have waited to drag his comrade's body away from the blaze and lay him decently along a furrow. How peaceful he had looked! To die flying was a fine death, to die for your country was a clean one.

He had it in his heart to envy him. One thing he had determined on from the beginning—he would not be taken prisoner. That was why he had run from the swooping Fokkers and taken shelter in the oak wood, hidden in the shell hole, and lain low till a party of listless "field grays" had straggled in perfunctory search through the copse. It had been perfunctory. He smiled rather grimly: the superlative war machine of the all highest was growing slack!

Now he stood, whistling softly between his teeth, taking his bearings. Four o'clock after noon of a perfect October day. The sky was ridden with those pure white, sunshot clouds which were the joy of German airmen; nevertheless, during this fifth autumn of the war, if a man wanted a stunt with the Hun he had to wing it over their lines to get it.

He looked about him, marking ground features. From straight in front of him came recurrent splashes of sound and light; yonder lay the trenches. To his right, beyond where the wood clothed a sharp rise in the ground, there hung high in the air a faint vapor of wood smoke; there arose an occasional sound of traffic, a clamor of voices, and ever and anon the long shriek and crash of a shell: the town under the hill. To the left the turnip fields. Behind him the indefinite, ruined country.

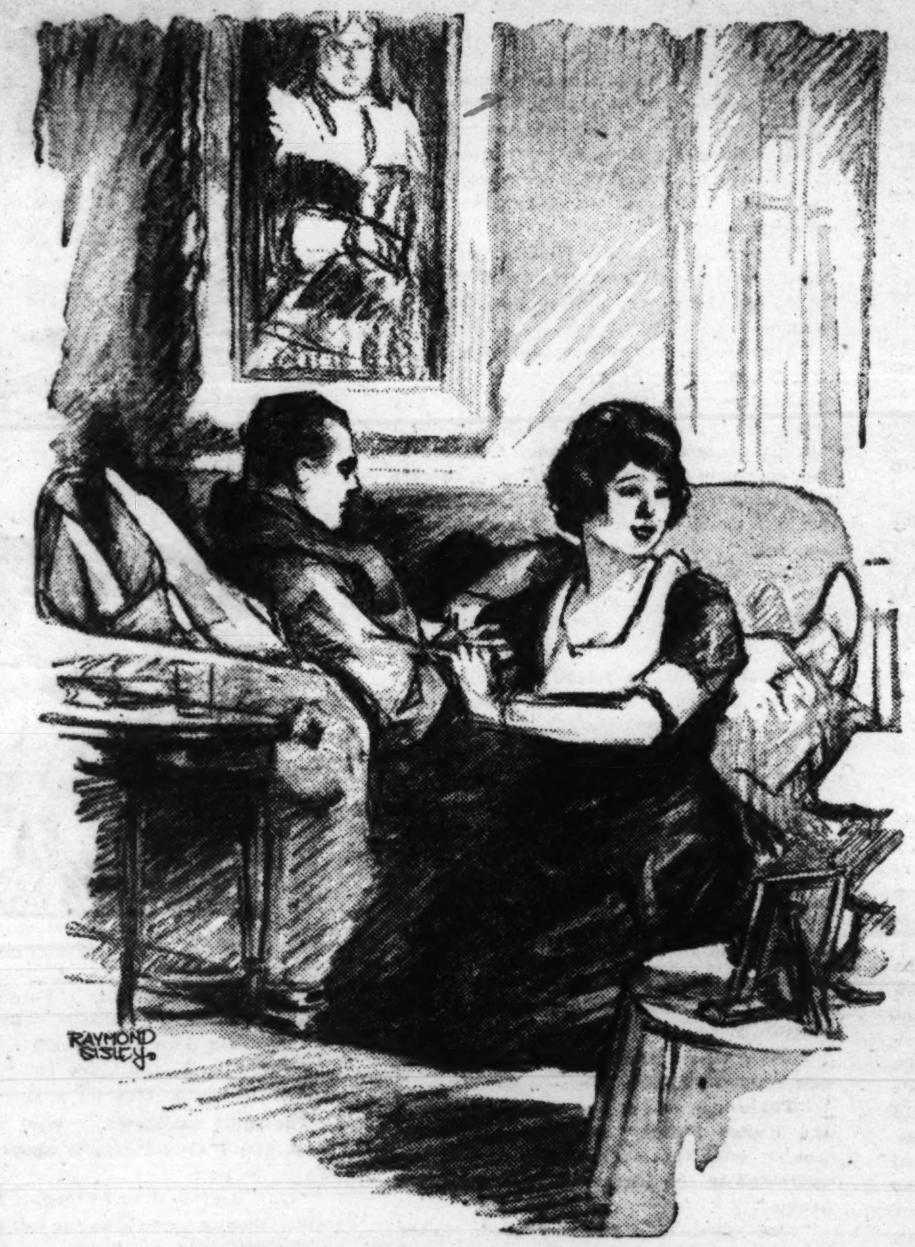
He sat down on the stump of an uprooted tree and thoughtfully smoked a cigaret. After a bit when these fellows over there were tired of circling round like the hawk looking for the bird—the bird that was himself—he would make for the town. Among houses and ruins there are a hundred more chances for him who wants to escape notice than in the open waste. The Fokker fellows would certainly try and add him to their bag, which had been singularly meager of late. A two seater and but one dead body; deduction, one run away. A simple sum in arithmetic.

Strange place, this oak wood! An army of mutilated trees, more grotesque than the visions of a dream. The twisted trunks like torsos writhing; the outflung branches, like imploring arms. At every few yards, it seemed, a shell hole gaped; some half full of water, reflecting the vivid sky. A place of death and destruction, yet permeated with indomitable life. From the torn boughs the October leafage hung golden but still thick. And there was an immense movement and flutter of birds, a flurry of wings, a gathering together of feathered clans; in a corner of the copse sang a robin. . . .

Above the dreadful stench of war rose to his nostrils the delicate scent of the turning oak, mingling with some aroma of log fires. His mind flew back. Once again he awoke to the ancient pondering mystery of the bed chamber in distant Clavering Manor. . . . He saw the faint mauve of the curtain lining; he wandered into the fairy wood of the tapestry where squirrels were as big as stags and apples and roses bloomed on branches which in a duller world would only bear acorns. He saw again the gentle ivory colored face, the earnest purple-gray eyes watching him. . . . Dear little English mother!

He unbuttoned his leather coat to draw out the leather case from the inner pocket. He always took her last letter about with him; it kept a warmth over his heart. She never failed to write to him every week, nor he to her. "My dear son," she would begin; to end with "your devoted mother."

Now he reread just these two lines, for the comfort of them; then thrust back his quiet treasure and gave himself again to the present. He was in a remarkably dangerous situation. Between himself and fate he had a piece of chocolate, some twenty cigarets, and his loaded Browning. His life he could sell dearly; his liberty was not in the market at all. That little English mother, she would be praying for him, now and again, through the day. He knew that. He knew, too, with some strange, intimate conviction that he had yet to live for her.



"It was he! O, it was he! Something told me!"

The drone had gone from the sky. The big guns on the horizon seemed to be tired, too. Only the more distant splashes of sound and light told of struggle unrelaxed.

Peter Montayne started to climb the hill to his right. It grew very steep, and he advanced ever more cautiously till at last he found himself on the lip of a ridge overlooking a sunken road. Beyond the road the ground fell away further and so abruptly that the roofs and chimneys and the broken arches of the devastated abbey town showed on a level with the causeway.

Again he whistled under his breath. He could see right into the town—one of those fairly substantial bourgs that have grown about some ancient monastery. So far it had not suffered as much as most French towns, save for the destruction of the church and of its neighboring district where certain streets lay like card houses beaten flat. Before the Hun had, according to custom, wreaked his fury on the sacred edifice the abbey church had been a wonderful remnant of mediæval beauty and strength. Even now remaining turrets and pinnacles, springing arches and buttresses rose, testifying, to the sky. Just beyond the church ruins stood a large square building surmounted by a Red Cross flag—the white folds with their warning emblem of red floating in the lazy breeze.

Peter resolved that his next stage should be yonder church. There must be cover for ten such hunted creatures as he among those fantastically tossed and piled ruins. He let himself drop into the road, paused a moment, reconnoitering right and left, then made a dash across. He fancied he heard a shout afar, and his next plunge he took headlong—landed on a low shelving cottage roof; clung, panting, a moment, and then slid down into a small back yard.

The dire misfortune of a whole community was here salvation to one: the cottage had been burnt out, windows gaped like open chimneys. He saw that this was only one of a row of houses, all similarly derelict; the "punitive company" had duly passed here—"God with us" on each man's helmet and petrol sprayer on his shoulders!

At the end of the blackened road an arch of the abbey soared into the blue. He made toward it, leaping from one little back yard to another; clambered over a mountain of fallen masonry; and, through a jagged breach, crawled into the church. There he halted, staring.

The scene of utter catastrophe had a terrible beauty of its own. Half the noble edifice still stood, roofed and columned, fragments of marvelously tinted glass clinging to the window tracery; the sanctuary still loomed, darkly golden and mysterious—yet all had been laid waste. Not a niche but gaped bereft, not an altar but had been stripped; the great garment of Art and Worship, which had been this church, hung as it were in rags.

The aisle in which Peter Montyne found himself was open to the sky; its outer wall had collapsed, half in, half outwards. The head of a broken stone angel smiled with closed eyes at his feet; a pair of folded hands still prayed, in the dust, a few yards away. Out of the wreckage sprang—oft repeated miracle of the war!—a great crucifix, the life-size figure of the Crucified untouched. It stood with its back to him, arms outstretched, in the full sunlight. Some one—a nun—was kneeling in front of this crucifix. Suddenly he found her eyes upon him. She immediately rose and came towards him. By the great white wings of her coif, a Sister of Charity; square and squat, not young; and, as she advanced, decision rather than fear was in her haste.

She took him by the hand. It was a warm, kindly grasp; and the face she turned upon him was warm with kindness, too.

"Come behind this pillar," she whispered. "Do not speak; there is a sentry near. Do you want to give yourself up?"

He shook his head.

"Escaping?"

He nodded. Thereupon, without another word, she drew him towards a yawning stone tomb and thrust him into its recesses. It had been rifled for its lead. Splinters of desecrated coffins, bones and nameless rags of cerements, were strewn within and without. The noble effigy that had once crowned the monument lay in three fragments, one of these still half covering the top.

He went under this and crouched in the grim hiding place. He heard her steps retreat and then come back; pass him and then retreat again. Soon he became aware that she was pacing up and down in front of his place of concealment, praying half aloud. Each time the slow tread passed by there was the clicking of her rosary; whisperings, and then, gradually, more audible murmurs.

Presently, a couple of words, in French amid the Latin, made him prick his ears.

"Ave Maria—listen, English airman—gratia plena—I mean to save you—Dominus tecum."

Yes, he had caught that. She was past now. Now she was coming back.

"Sancta Maria—you are in great danger. Things are going badly for them; they know it; they are savages. Ora pro nobis."

The flat beat of her shoes faded, then returned.

"Ora pro nobis. They cannot hold this town much longer. But they mean to wreak their vengeance first — peccatoribus, nunc et in hora mortis nostrae."

The tag of prayer fitted ominously. The next murmurs, however, began far otherwise:

"Gloria Patri et Filio et Spiritui Sancto. —I mean to save you. Listen! Listen well! And do as I tell you."

It took her half a decade of her rosary to give him her plan.

"When it is quite dark, creep out by the right. To the left there is danger. Keep to the right, skirting the church. Some forty paces will bring you to our convent. It has the Red Cross flag. You will see it against the sky—keep round close to the wall, always to the right. All is dark that side. Feel with your hands till you come to the third door. Remember, the third door. It will be open. Push and walk in. We shall be ready for you."

She went over it twice, and, murmuring again, louder and with a note of confidence, "Gloria Patri et Filio et Spiritui Sancto," slowly made her way out.

Though thankfulness, hope, and wonder were all strong in his soul together, he felt a curious sense of abandonment as the sound of her footfalls died in the distance, leaving him alone in the tomb.

From where he crouched he could see the shadow of the cross lengthen, and a shaft of light grow mellow. Besides the distant clangor of guns, never altogether silent, he could hear, in this inner stillness, a hundred significant sounds; the flight of birds across the ruins; now and again the ring of tramping feet along the far aisle; the bark of a savage German voice; the sudden patter of falling stones, groans of settling timber, and whispering of crumbled mortar in its down slide; and, by and by, as dusk gathered, a renewed roar of guns from both sides.

He stepped out at last from among the bones of the mediaeval knight into the gloom of the ruined church. The cross now stood a black shadow against a starry sky.

It was the "brown hour," as the French have it, when men are to each other as shadows upon shadow. Peter Montayne, nevertheless, thought the advice to creep had been wise. He began to draw his young length along the ground, coiling himself over the stones and fragments; keeping always to the right, as the nun had bidden him.

Out now through a breach he glided like some fairy tale dragon from his hole. There was grass to his touch, and a rush of cold air to his lungs. Yonder away the guns clamored and there were high glares in the heavens.

He crawled some twenty yards, and felt more protected when he got beneath that part of the church wall which still stood. He curled round a buttress—and then brought himself short. A patch of light lay yellow, as if painted on the grass just in front of him. It came from a small round window level with the ground.

An impulse stronger than reason drew him forward. He looked in. And, when he had seen, regardless of risk, he remained staring. The chapel of the crypt, a place of immense strength and antiquity, with the round arches and the squat pillars of early Norman days, turned into quarters for some high German official, and now illuminated as for a ceremony!

All over the occupied country, the conqueror surrounded himself with blazing light the whole night through, for fear of treachery. This Peter knew; and it did not surprise him either that this underground retreat should have been chosen for its safe-black horizon, exhausted, red eyed, gasping men struggled up from the drenched, smothering interior of the ship, and hurled themselves, not into the sea, but prone upon the decks! They had conquered! The scattered, vagrant fires, attacked in their infancy, while still in the creeping age, had been subdued.

Darkness fell. A chill night air stole out of the east, stealthily trailing the sun. Will o' the wisp lights bespecked the sea, surrounding the black hulk that lay motionless in the center of the circle. Lanterns in a score or more of small boats bobbed fitfully in the gentle swell. Presently lights appeared on board the Doraine, one here, one there, then others in twos and three, some of them stationary, others moving slowly from place to place. The lifeboats crept closer, still closer. Then, out from the silent hulk, came the voice of man. It was the voice of the first officer, hoarse and unrecognizable, but sharp with authority. Other voices repeated the commands from various parts of the ship—commands to the encircling will o' the wisps.

The word came down to the scores who filled the boats that they were to lie by until sunrise, keeping in close contact with each other and at no great distance from the ship. The most thorough, careful examination of the steamer was in progress. If it was found that she was in no danger of foundering—and the word was most reassuring—all of them would be taken aboard in the morning. Nothing could be done at present. A few hours more would tell the tale

And then, for the first time since the disaster, the note of the croaker was heard. Each and every boat contained at least one individual who knew exactly what ought to be done in a crisis like this.

Mr. Landover addressed the benumbed, unresisting occupants of the boat into which he had climbed with commendable reluctance as one of the last persons to leave the ship.

"Why don't they begin sending out S. O. S. calls? What's the wireless for, if not to be used at a time like this? Say, you! Yell up there to some of those damned muddle headed idiots and tell them what to do. Tell them that I say for them to send out calls for help. What's that? What did you say?"

The steward in charge of the boat repeated his remark and Mr. Landover at once said he would report him to Capt. Trigger.

"But it won't do any good," complained the banker despairingly. "Capt. Trigger hasn't the backbone of a fishworm. He'd let you tell him to go to hell and never think of jacking you up for it. No wonder we're in the fix we're in now. If he'd had the sense of a jelly-fish, he'd have—— Here! Sit still! You'll upset the boat, you fool! What—what are you going to do with that oar?"

"I'm going to crack you over the bean with it if you don't take back what you said about Capt. Trigger," said the steward, earnestly. "Take it back, do you hear me?"

"My God, would you murder me for a little thing like that?"

Mr. Nicklestick aroused himself from the torpor of despair.

"Take it back, Mr. Landover—please do. If he misses you, he'll get me sure, it's so dark, and so help me God I got nothing but the deepest respect for Capt. Trigger. He's a vonderful man, steward. Don't make any mistake. You hear me say he is a vonderful man? Vell——"

"Oh, shut up, Nicklestick," grated Landover, crouching down behind the gentleman addressed.

The steward sat down. "I'd do it in a minute if it wasn't for the women an' children in this boat."

"I intend to have every officer on that steamer arrested for criminal negligence the instant I set foot in New York," boomed the banker. "I call upon every one of you, my fellow passengers, to testify to the utter lack of precaution taken by the men in charge of that ship. And what efforts are they making to bring help to us now? By gad, if I was in command of that vessel I'd be shooting wireless calls to every—— Great Scot! What's that?"

"That's a rocket, you blamed old fool!" roared the steward.

"Good God!" gasped the exasperated banker. "Are we having a celebration with fireworks?"

The dull, hapless occupants of the lifeboat watched with fascinated eyes the first of the giant rockets that whizzed and roared its way from the deck of the ship, an endless arrow of fire piercing the night. A loud report, the scattering of a hundred stars, and then—denser blackness than before.

Morning came. Up out of the east stole a sickly gray. It turned slowly into pink, and then suddenly the sea once more was blue and smiling. In the heart of the dancing cordon lay the weirdly camouflaged Doraine, inert, sinister, as still and cold as death. No smoke issued from her stacks to cheer the wretched watchers; no foam, no spray leaped from her mighty bow. She was a great, lifeless thing. Waves lapped gently against her sides and fell away only to come back again in playful scorn for the vast object that had rent and baffled them so long. On high fluttered the Stars and Stripes, gay in the presence of death, a sprightly harbinger of hope flaunting defiance in the face of despair.

Men, stripped to the waist, grimy and shining with the sweat of hours, moving about in knots of three and four—always in knots of three or four as if afraid to disintegrate—leaned upon the rail and watched the approach of the crowded boats, looked down into pallid, anguished faces with their eager, hungry eyes, eyes that devoured the groups along the rail. Now and then a glad shout of joy went up from one of the boats, and a figure in the huddled mass was transformed into a responsive thing of life.

In each of the square, black openings in the hull of the ship stood men with ropes and ladders. The great steel doors lay flat against the sides, swung wide to admit this time a human cargo. From the interior of the vessel came the brisk, incessant clatter of hammers against wood and steel; from the decks broke the loud, commanding voices of men calling out directions; from the gliding, slapping boats went up the hearty shouts of understanding and obedience, the rattling of boat-hooks, the grinding of oars in the locks, the murmur of voices revived.

"Women and children first!" was the shrill, oft-repeated exhortation from one of the boats.

And up in the center of another sprang a fine, imposing figure, from whose lips rolled these thrilling words:

"By God, they're great! They're great, after all! God bless Capt. Trigger and every man-jack of them!"

"Get down!" roared his still unpacified critic, the steward. "You'll fall overboard, you dam' fool!"

ty. Nor did the vision, strange and varied as it was, of the church treasure, accumulated there, under his gaze, cause him to wonder. Sacred vessels of gold and silver, glinting with gems; vestments, brocade and tapestry, heavy with gold embroideries, encrusted with precious stones; reliquaries, monstrances, censers, crozier heads, shrines, caskets, crowns, chains, ivories, enamels—a medley and a fire—the vast treasuries of centuries of faith, of ecstasies, of worship, of riches poured out before the altar as Magdalen poured her spikenard! This loot of glory was partly tumbled into packing cases.

Knowing that the Hun had held the town for over a year; knowing, too, his habits of instant appropriation, Peter guessed that the hiding place of these marvels could only just have been discovered, and that they were being packed against the time of coming departure.

Upon a camp bed, sprawling over a rose-colored satin eiderdown, lay a huge, obese, elderly man in uniform, sunk in drunken lethargy. Champagne bottles were tossed amid the sacred treasure—a lurid contrast; sordid, yet appalling. But the eyes of Peter rested on none of these things. They were drawn, fascinated, to the figure bound to the middle pillar—to the young man with head sunk over his breast, and limbs relaxed against the ropes that held them as one fainting.

Peter instinctively thrust his hand into his side pocket and felt for his knife, then he moved away from the window; and, once outside the shaft of light, lay, his elbows on the grass, chin on his palms, reflecting. He no longer thought of the convent door behind which lay his security. There was just one thing before him now; to get into the crypt, somehow, and cut the captive free.

He crept round the ruins till he came to the broken main porch. Somewhere, he thought, just within the church, he would find one of the entrances to the crypt.

He was not mistaken. Here were steps; and, at the foot of them, a door ajar; a glimmer of light behind it. It was more than rash; but Peter, blessing the gun duel that covered lesser noises, ventured to descend and reconnoiter. A lantern stood on the flags, a rifle was propped against the wall—a sentry post deserted, a colonel dead drunk! Here was demoralization, indeed. The nun had been right; it spelled defeat! He had a great sense of victory about him as he strode down the narrow vaulted passage and pushed open the door at the end of it.

The chapel of the crypt, bed-chamber and prison house, fantastically bright; the drunken sleeper; the youthful victim, half fainting against his bonds—if the wheel of Time had turned back, here might well be a picture out of the dark ages: the Barbarian and the Martyr! Peter's clasp knife was already open in his hand; not a moment could he give to question or reply.

The boy—he was little more—raised his drawn face with its sunken eyes, and stared wildly. Then, with a convulsive movement, he thrust out his chest and raised his head.

"I am quite ready," he said hoarsely in German. "Take me out and shoot me. I am not afraid."

"Hush, sonny!" Peter ordered under his voice. But the other went on; he was in a delirium:

"You have not broken my spirit. Two years' torture, and you could not break the spirit of an English soldier! Look at me, I am not afraid. I would do it again. Shoot me, and put on my grave: 'Rupert Clavering, Lieutenant Coldstream Guards, who slapped the face of the colonel commandant——'"

The knife in Peter's hand was suspended for one second as the name struck his ear. Rupert Clavering! He laughed out loud. Now he knew why he was not to die yet!

One after the other the bonds fell.

"Now, sonny, pull yourself together!" urged Peter. The moments were too propitious to last. The boy stared. Into his fever haunted eyes came a starting wonder, a flash of joy.

"English!" he cried and made a sudden movement forward. One leg doubled up under him and he fell, unconscious, at Peter's feet.

"The knee, is it? Stooping, Peter passed his hand testingly down the limb. "Aye, those brutes! Tied you up to gloat on your pain, and your death vigil! But you slapped his face. You got the best of it, Rupert Clavering." These thoughts were floating through the airman's mind as he lifted the inert figure. "It's as well as it is, my brother, for I should be hurting you damnably, with that broken knee cap. Now your arm over my shoulder—round my neck. Up with you! Now a good clutch with the left hand, the right free for the Browning, in case master sentry——"

In moments of intense strain men will speak to themselves thus—the spirit issuing orders to the flesh.

The Browning was not needed. There was no one to bar the way for Peter and his burden. Not that Peter cared. He knew that nothing, that nobody, would have power to stop him; knew that he was accomplishing a foredestined deed; that a prayer had been answered—that a great debt was about to be paid.

As the wind struck his face, and what he could see of the sky stretched above him pierced with innumerable stars; as he saw the flag fill like a sail against it and fall again, he laughed once more in the deeps of his soul. "And there are people," he said to himself, "who think there is no God!"

Certainly some great movement was expected on the morrow. King George's guns were thundering over there as if they meant to bring down the world!

The old nun was keeping her word. The door gave under his touch, without a sound. He stepped into a tiled passage lit by a small oil lamp; instantly, three white coiffed figures appeared on noiseless feet, and the door was closed behind him. The old kind face looked at him; there was consternation on it. The old kind hand fell about his wrist peremptorily. One nun went forward, holding a light; and Peter, carrying his English mother's son, was conducted without an instant's pause, down steep stairs, into a great cellar. Here he laid his burden gently on the ground—and the consternation on the old nun's face found voice:

"I can save only one!"

"That's all right, ma sœur," said Peter, straightening himself, "so long as you save that one."

She hesitated.

"But he looks like death!" she exclaimed; and added, practically, "Is it worth while?"

Her eyes went back and lingered on the splendor of youth and strength that smiled at her.

"It is only his knee. He will not die of it! Besides, he cannot, he must not."

One of the nuns knelt by the unconscious boy and felt his pulse.

"It is true. There is good life here," she said.

"Ah, mon Dieu!" cried the old nun and began to explain, very quickly: "You see, it is like this. We have the hospital upstairs. Soldiers, wounded and sick, mostly Germans. One was brought in yesterday, badly hurt in the head. I knew he could not live the day. He is dead. We can dispose of the body and put another in his bed, all bandaged as he was, round the face. No one will know the difference. Besides, they do not trouble, now, about the wounded any more. No one will guess—and, in two days, the English will be here."

"It is perfect," said Peter.

"But, you?"

"Ah, ma sœur, what a question!"

She heaved an immense sigh.

"Allons, mon enfant! We can put you into the garden, through this passage—but, after that?"

Peter smiled again.

"As God wills it."

A week later, it was officially announced that Lieut. Rupert Clavering, Coldstream Guards, reported wounded and missing in March, 1917, had been found in hospital at Dangeville l'Abbaye, when the advancing British troops retook possession of that town on Oct. 18.

On the same day, among the lists of casualties, appeared the statement that Capt. P. A. Montayne and Lieut. P. Whiteside, R. F. C., were missing, believed killed.

They are together in the white boudoir. Her hand clasps the hand of her son, as if she must assure herself by the touch that he is really there.

It is just a year since Peter Montayne lay on that sofa where now Rupert sits, his injured leg outstretched, rigid in plaster of Paris. Many times he has told her the story of his incredible experiences; how, in punishment for some heroic insolence, he was cast from the very beginning of captivity among those unfortunates set to work under the fire of their own comrades. His spirit was to be broken by order of the commandant—a favorite ambition of the Hun, to break the spirit of an Englishman! Yet, after nearly two years' torture, it had leaped up, in fiercer blaze than ever, and he had slapped that same commandant's face.

The mother can listen to this. She had even a fine, cold smile, to think of the German tyrant defied by this boy not yet of age. But she cannot bear to hear of the night in the crypt when her son was tied up in agony for the beast to gloat upon his prey. Yet one question she must ask:

"Tell me, when the ropes fell away from you, and you knew it was deliverance—not dawn and the hour of execution—try to remember—yes, I know, it all became blank then, you fainted. But that flash, that impression? An airman, you think?"

Rupert, sitting under the Vandyck Cavalier, his serious boy's comeliness so extraordinarily repeating that of the picture, ponders, his chin upon his hand.

"I am sure, an airman. He was bareheaded. His face—how shall I describe it? O, yes, I can see it quite clearly. No need to try after that memory, mother darling; it's stamped into me."

"Describe it to me, then." Her voice deepens.

"How shall I describe it? A kind of eagle face. Radiant. Yes, radiant! With a sweep of black hair, like a crest——"

"It was he! O, it was he! Something told me! O, I wonder, did he know? It would have been just as grand if he had not. But my heart tells me he knew!"

And, holding the hand of him who is given back to her from the dead, the mother, who could not weep for her son in the flesh, cries all the tears of her heart for the son of her adoption.

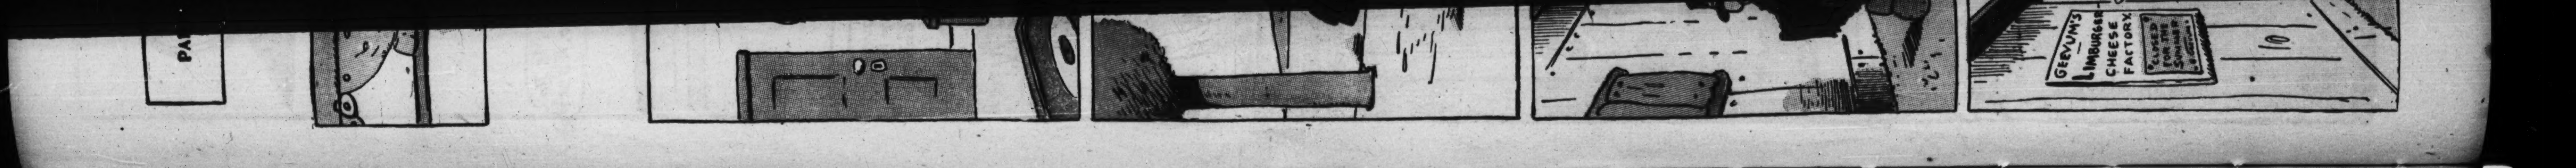
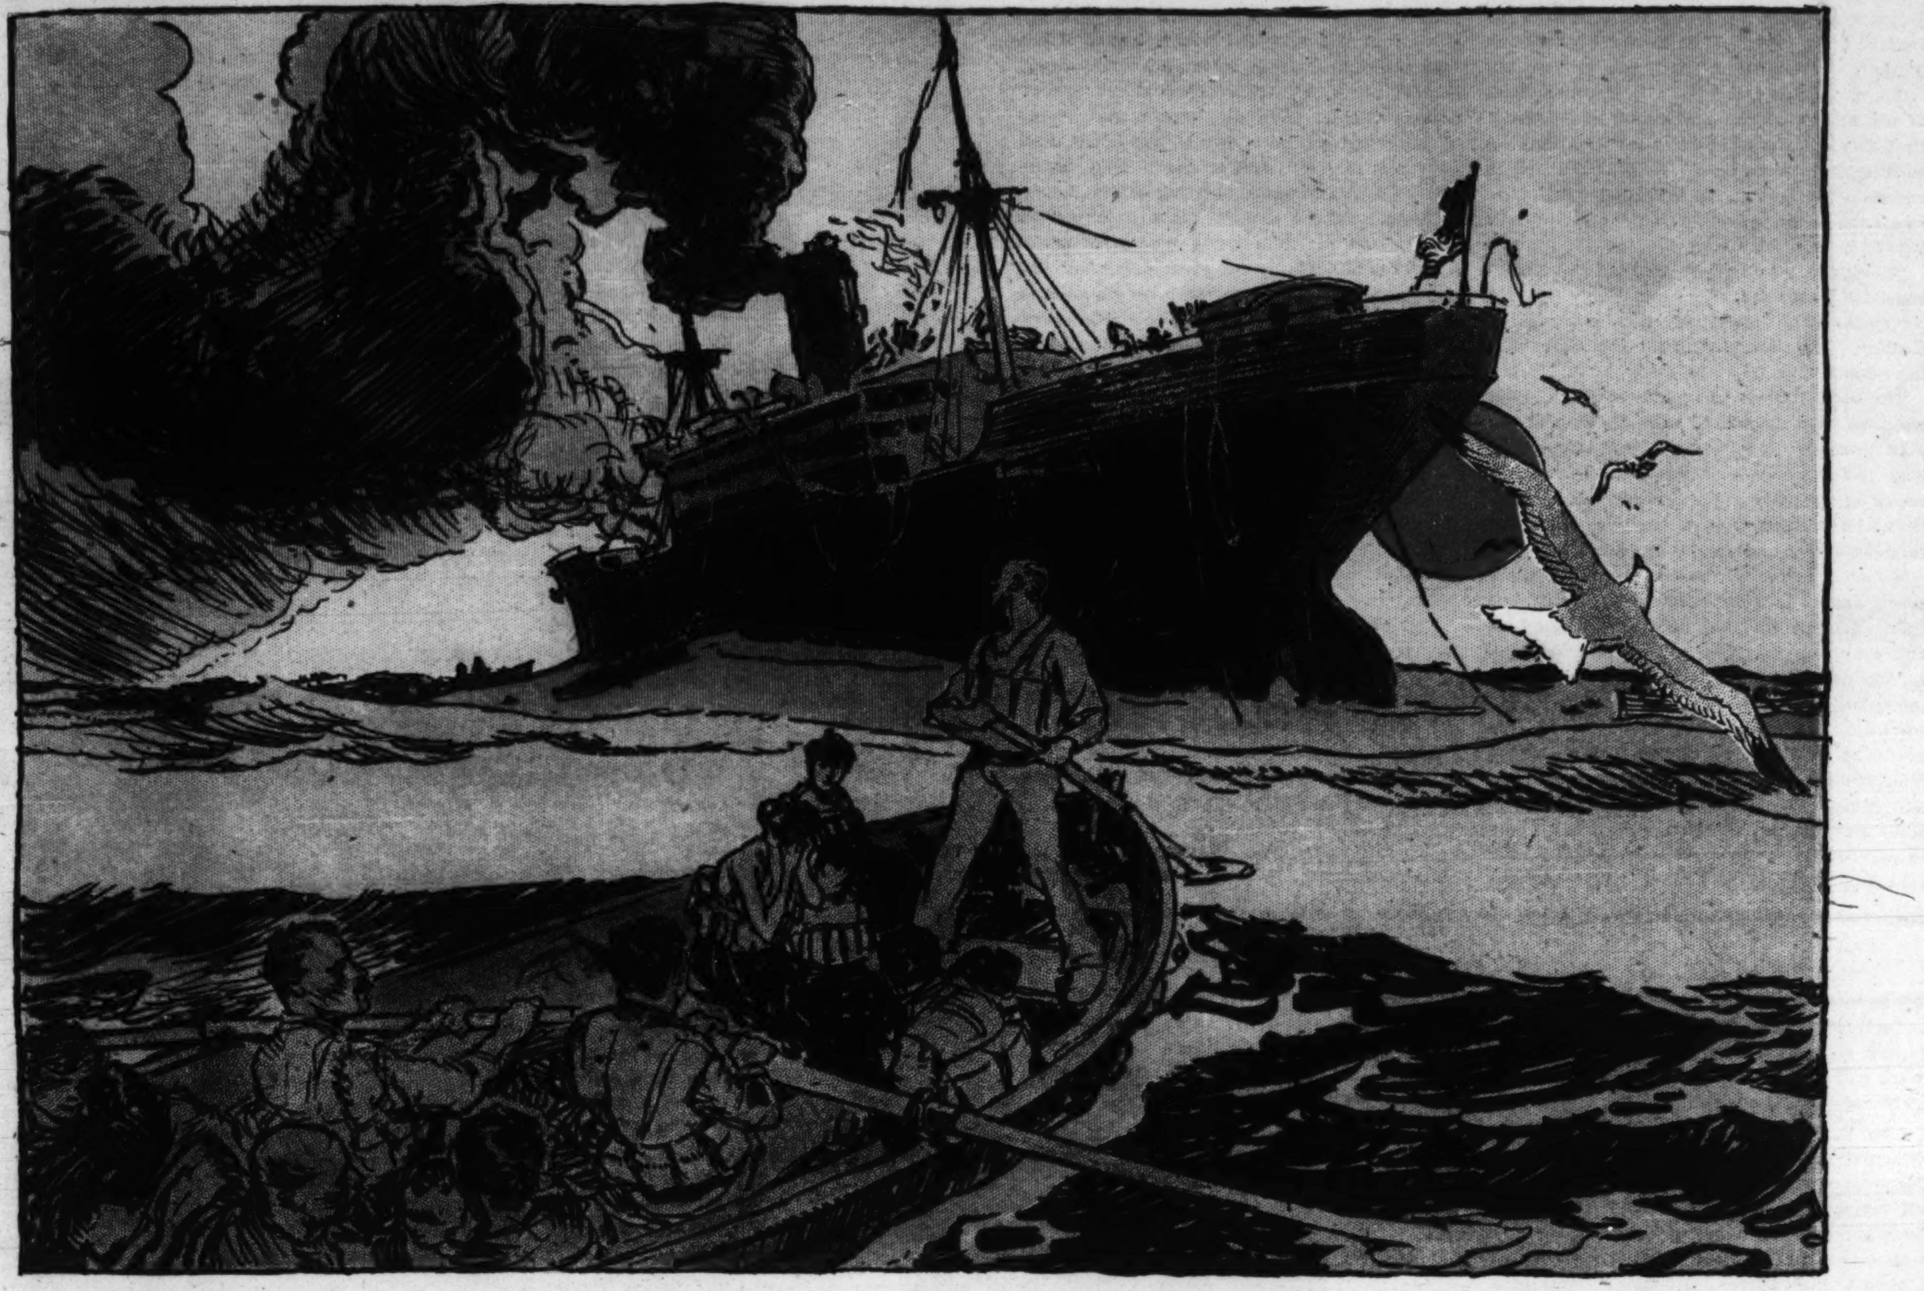
Next week an original story entitled "Out of the Hand of the Terrible," by Arthur Train, will appear in this section.



West Wind Drift

by George Barr McCutcheon



Small white craft bobbed in the gleaming sunlight, waiting to pick up those who inevitably would be driven overboard by the resistless flames.

THE STORY is that of an ocean liner and its passengers and crew, bound from South America for a port in the United States. On the second day of the voyage a stowaway appears, announcing himself as Algernon Adonis Percival, an American mining engineer, whose money has been stolen and who wants to get home to join the American forces in the great war. He proposes that he work his passage by taking the place of one of two deck hands whom he saw jump overboard the night before. His casual reference to the deserters causes consternation among the officers, who immediately set about searching the ship.

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

The Wings of Death.

AND so it was that while Algernon Adonis Percival, under the watchful eye of a burly seaman, fell to work scraping the scuppers on the boat deck, the stern business of searching the ship went forward with a thoroughness that left no room for doubt as to the fears and apprehensions of the men who had her in charge. Despite the fact that intensive, anxious hours of delving revealed no hidden, sinister agent of destruction, there was no relaxation on the part of the officers and crew. One by one the passengers were examined; their rooms and their luggage were systematically overhauled. No one resented these drastic operations, for by midday the whole ship's company knew what had transpired during the night. Eagerly they answered the questions, cheerfully they submitted to the examination of their effects, and then fell silent and subdued, oppressed by the suspense that hung over the ship like a cloud. Crew and passengers alike underwent the most rigid questioning, the high and the low, the rich and the poor, the young and the old.

Early that morning—in fact, some time prior to the time that Percival told his story—the wireless operator reported that his transmitter was out of order. While he was satisfied that the apparatus had not been tampered with, he was plainly affected by the rather grim coincidence. He was an old and trusted man in the service, competent, efficient, and loyal.

His assistant, the night operator, however, had made less than half a dozen voyages on the Doraine. He was an Englishman, a cripple; twice he had been rescued after vessels on which he sailed were sent to the bottom by German submarines. His credentials were flawless. He was on duty during the night just past, and had picked up several indistinct, incomplete radio messages. There was nothing wrong with the receiving or transmitting apparatus when he went off duty at 6 in the morning; and as his superior came on at the same hour—they exchanged greetings at the door of the wireless house—it was absolutely impossible for any one to have entered the well guarded room without attracting attention. Cruise, the chief radio man, had his assistant routed out of bed, and together they worked like beavers over the disabled mechanism.

Hour after hour the nervous, uneasy passengers paced the decks. Few remained indoors, and few possessed the calmness to loll in deck chairs.

Percival toiled cheerfully, but with eye and ear alert for the first inkling of definite peril. With commendable thoughtfulness he had shed the clean white shirt and collar so generously supplied by his fellow townsman, and had donned a commodious sea jacket.

He could not help observing the dark, suspicious glances cast upon him by the deck walkers, nor were his ears proof against audible comments. Mothers nudged their children and said in slightly lowered but distinctly impressive tones:

"That's the man. He's a stowaway."

"See, Wilfred, see the man? No, no! The one with the mop, dear. Don't go near him."

"What a dreadful looking creature he is!"

"The captain captured him this morning away down in the bottom of the ship. He was stealing a ride."

"Poor fellow! He doesn't look like a bad man, does he?"

And so on and so forth as the day went along.

Masculine strollers had very decided opinions about him. Mr. Landover, the banker, stopped to discuss the toiling menial with Mr. Nicklestick, Mr. Block, and Mr. Fitts.

"He ought to be in irons," said Mr. Landover, glowering at Percival. "That's what I told the captain a little while ago. He's a bad egg, that fellow is. I'm a pretty good judge of men, gentlemen, and I don't often make mistakes. That fellow is a fugitive from justice, if he isn't something worse. Observe the cut of his mouth—ah! see that? What did I tell you? Did you ever see a more evil grin?"

"Take it from me," said Mr. Nicklestick, "that guy knows a good deal more about what's going on aboard this ship than he lets on. He ain't as simple as he looks. I told Capt. Trigger just now that he ought to give him a dose of the third degree. That's the way to get to the bottom of this business. String him up by the thumbs till he squeals. What say, Mr. Fitts?"

Mr. Fitts, the architect, was a mild man.

"He strikes me as a rather honest looking sort of chap," he said, and was promptly glared at by his companions. "Of course," he hastened to add, "I am not saying that he is all right. He may be as crooked as the deuce. I'm only saying he's got a rather pleasing sort of face."

"The most innocent, open-faced young fellow we ever had in the bank," said Mr. Landover, "turned out to be the damnedest rascal I've ever encountered."

"How did you happen to have him in the bank if you are such a good judge of men?" inquired Mr. Fitts, utterly without malice.

Mr. Landover reddened. "My dear sir, I do not come in contact with every employé of the bank. You forget that it is quite an immense institution."

"It sure is," said Mr. Nicklestick. "I'm thinking of transferring our account to your bank, Mr. Landover. We've been banking with——"

"I vas telling my vife at lunch," broke in Mr. Block, twitching his Hebraic nose emphatically—"not that we could eat any lunch, by gracious, no!—I vas telling her I bet my boots dere ain't enough lifeboats to get as much as half of us off safe in case something happens. I counted up all the lifeboats I could see, and ven I estimate the number of peoples on board, w'y, by gracious, the loss of life vould be frightful, gentlemen. The only chance ve would haf would be for approximately 50 per cent of the peoples on board to be killed outright by the explosion."

"I hear there is a detective from Chicago on board, with a prisoner," ventured Mr. Fitts. "Why doesn't the captain ask him to have a look at this stowaway fellow?"

"What would be the good of that?" demanded Mr. Landover. "I never saw a detective in my life that knew what to do in an emergency. Soon as you get one of them where he can't telephone in to headquarters for instructions he's as helpless as a baby. Don't talk to me about detectives. Why, this fellow would simply laugh in his face."

"Just as he is laughing in yours at this moment, Mr. Landover," pursued Mr. Fitts pleasantly.

"The damned rascal!" said Mr. Landover, and stalked away.

"There goes one of the biggest figures in the United States," said Mr. Nicklestick, looking after the banker. His remark was addressed to Mr. Fitts. "I wish I had his brains."

"Dey vouldn't do you any good, Nicklestick," said Mr. Block, "unless you had his money, too, also."

"If I had his brains," said Mr. Nicklestick, "he wouldn't have his money, so what's the difference?"

Mr. Block looked uneasily out over the tumbling ocean, focusing his gaze on a section of the horizon that, for want of something more definite than mere hope, lay in a direct line with the city of New York.

"And ven you stop to think," said he wistfully, "that ve are still something like six thousand miles from home—O, vell! Vat's the use? I bet you I never go so far avay from my business again. Vat a fool I vas to make this trip ven the whole ocean is full of submarines and German agents and plotters and—yes, vat a fool ven I had so many high priced men vorking for me who vas crazy to come. But my vife, she vould do it. Paris and London every year it used to be, so she must haf a little holiday or she vill die, she say. Vell, here ve are. And ven I think vat a long holiday it is going to be, maybe, by gracious, I could kick myself for not giving in to my brother-in-law ven he begged so hard to be allowed to make the trip because he needed the change from not being avay from the office for five years, and his vife and children, too. His vife, she needed a change as much as he, vat with not being able to get into any good hotels in the summertime and not being able to keep out of them in the vintertime, she vas nearly distracted. No, I vas selfish. My vife, she vas selfish, too—and him her own brother. Vy shouldn't he haf a vacation vonce in a while?"

He turned abruptly to the sailor who lounged near the perspiring Percival.

"How far is it to land, my frient?" he inquired.

The sailor touched his cap. "Which way, sir?" he asked solemnly. "Fore or aft?"

(Percival said to himself: "By golly, I'll bet that man is an American.")

"Vat? Land—you know vat I mean—the end of the ocean. How far avay is it?"

The sailor calculated. "Well, the nearest land, sir, I should say, is about 300 miles away, to port."

"How deep is it here?" asked Mr. Nicklestick, moving away from the rail suddenly.

The sailor glanced down at the water, squinted an eye, and then spoke reassuringly.

"It ain't half as deep here as it is a little furder on," he said. "It's only a shade over three miles where we are now, sir. We're comin' to the deepest part of the ocean—ought to be there inside of a couple of hours. Here, you! On the job, on the job!"

"You ought to search that man carefully," advised Mr. Nicklestick.

"I have," growled the sailor. "He says he never uses it in that form. I guess he's tellin' the truth."

"Never uses what?"

"Tobacco, sir."

"O!" said Mr. Nicklestick, and, catching a glimpse of Mme. Obosky emerging upon the deck, unceremoniously deserted his companions and hurried off to join her, his speed being suddenly accelerated by the spectacle of Mr. Shine, the motion picture magnate, who approached the lady from an equidistant station and with similar haste. Mr. Block, being a trifle nearsighted and in some doubt as to the whereabouts of his wife, peered here and there intently, and then bore down upon the celebrated Russian dancer, who, it would seem, was in dire need of consolation.

Mr. Fitts followed them with a glance over his glasses and then turned to the sailor man.

"I suppose it's against orders for me to speak to this man," he said.

"Yes, sir."

The architect sighed and walked away.

The parade became more interesting as the lack of news from the investigators restored a sort of hopeful optimism to the breasts of the anxious company. Those who had maintained a stubborn air of bravado now became almost offensively jaunty. Others, frankly terrified at the outset, sauntered timidly away from the lifeboats to which they were assigned. Every one was glad that the captain had ordered a lifeboat drill on the first afternoon out, and every one was glad that he had ignored the demand of Mr. Landover that the boats be lowered the instant he discovered that his passengers were in peril. No news was good news, argued the majority, and jesting was in order.

Peter Snipe, the novelist, got out a pad of paper and began jotting down impressions. Mme. Careni-Amori and Sig. Joseppi exchanged the first friendly words they had spoken to each other in weeks, and, in full view of an entranced audience, linked arms and strode bravely to and fro, the former clasping a huge jewel case to her ample bosom, the latter chafing perceptibly under the weight of an invisible belt stuffed to its capacity with bank notes and gold.

Chilean ladies and Chilean gentlemen, dazzling Brazilian ladies and pompous Brazilian gentlemen, smug Argentinians, lordly Castilians, garrulous Portuguese, lofty English gentlemen and supercilious English ladies, friendly and irrepressible Americans—all of them swinging their sea legs with new found abandon—clattered solidly around the wind swept circuit. New faces appeared in the procession, new voices were raised with energy, new figures sprang into existence with marvelous rapidity.

It seemed to Percival that the population doubled and tripled and quadrupled with every throb of the powerful engines. He saw his "bunkie" of the night before—the man who was trying so hard to die and couldn't—he saw him plunging along with the throng, pale but valiant, ferociously glaring at every one who smoked.

A small group of American nurses, some young and pretty, others young and homely, but all of them sprightly and clear eyed—nine of them, in fact—tramped by in "columns of three."

Percival's guardian jerked his head in their direction after they had passed, and volunteered this bit of information:

"Hornswoggled, them girls was. Come all the way down from New York six months ago. Promised double pay and plenty of work in the American colony. Sore as crabs, all of 'em. They got double pay, all right, all right, but there was some misunderstandin' as to what single pay was to be to start off with. Single pay turned out to be just whatever suited the people that employed 'em, seein's they were nearly 7,000 miles away from God and up against it, so they're beatin' it back home to volunteer for service in France. I heard one of 'em say she could save more money workin' for nothin' in France than she could earn in a year down here at double pay. What'd you say your name was, young feller?"

"Percival."

"I mean your last name."

"That's it."

"Come off! Nobody ever had a last name like that."

"You ought to hear what my first name is—and my middle one, too. You said a little while ago you'd never seen any one of my size with bigger and harder muscles. Well, if you knew what my full name is, old man, you'd understand why I began developing them—I've got a lot more, too, that you can't see—when I first began going to school."

"What is your other names?" inquired the sailor curiously.

"Algernon Adonis," said Percival.

The sailor was silent for a moment, thinking of the proper thing to say. Then he said:

"You're dead right. It takes a heap of muscle to protect a name like that."

Three women stopped in front of the two men. Percival kept his eyes lowered.

"Why—why, aunties—I know him," fell from the lips of one of the trio. There was not only surprise in her voice but a trace of awe as well.

The swabber looked up quickly. He found himself gazing straight into the eyes of the speaker. Her lips were parted, her head was bent slightly forward, her eyes expressed utter incredulity and bewilderment. Her companions, an elderly lady and a bespectacled young woman who carried an arm load of steamer rugs, stared not at him but at the girl who had delivered this startling announcement.

"I mean I—that is, I may be mistaken," stammered the latter, suddenly averting her eyes. A wave of crimson swept over her face.

"Undoubtedly," exclaimed the elderly lady with great positiveness. Turning to inspect the object under discussion, she sustained a shock that caused her to stiffen and draw in her breath quickly.

Percival was smiling in a most friendly and encouraging manner. He went farther and lifted his disreputable white canvas hat.

"O, goodness!" exclaimed the young lady in a sort of panic. "Are you—is it really you, Mr. Percival?"

Mr. Percival glanced inquiringly at his guard.

"That's his name, miss," said that worthy. "And that's one of the three reasons why he's got them muscular arms you're lookin' at. Sorry, though, but my orders are not to allow any one to speak to him."

"Are you crazy, Ruth?" cried the older lady aghast. "It's the stowaway every one is talking about. The one who tried to blow up the ship."

The young lady returned Percival's smile—rather a diffident, uncertain effort, to be sure, but still a smile—and murmured something about night before last at the Alcazar Grand.

"What are you saying, Ruth? Do you mean to say you met this man at the Alcazar Grand?"

"Yes, Aunt Julia," said the other, wrinkling her pretty forehead in perplexity. "He—he danced with me."

"He—you danced with him?" gasped the horrified Aunt Julia.

"Don't you remember? Phil Morton introduced him to us. I—I can't believe my eyes."

"I can't believe mine," snapped the elder woman. "I never saw this fellow before in my life. The idea! Phil Morton having a friend like you. You are mistaken. And people are staring at us."

"Just the same," said her niece, stubbornly, "I did dance with him, and, what's more, I danced more than once with him. Didn't I, Mr. Percival?"

Mr. Percival, still beaming, again looked at the sailor appealingly.

"You can tell it to me," said the latter, furtively glancing to the right and left before making the concession.

Looking straight into the sailor's eyes, Percival said:

"Yes, Miss Clinton. I had four dances with you—and a lemon squash."

"Wait a moment, Aunt Julia," protested the young lady, holding back. "Would you mind telling me, Mr. Percival, how you happen to be here and in this plight? You didn't mention sailing on the Doraine."

Mr. Percival, to the sailor: "Neither did you, Miss Clinton. You certainly are no more surprised than I am."

"Why are you on board as a stowaway? Phil Morton told me you belong to an old Baltimore family and had all kinds of—that is, you were quite well off."

Mr. Percival, to the sailor: "Please don't blush, Miss Clinton. I'm not the least bit sensitive. Money isn't everything. I seem to be able to get along without it. Later on, I hope to have the opportunity to explain just why——"

"That'll do," interrupted the sailor. "Here comes the captain."

Capt. Trigger hove in sight around the corner of the deck building with Chief Engineer Gray and the second officer.

"I don't know what to make of you," said Miss Clinton, sorely puzzled. Her aunt was clutching her arm. "You seemed so awfully jolly the other night. And—and just look at you now."

She moved away, followed by the bespectacled young woman and the steamer rugs, graceful despite the sudden yank with which her aunt set her in motion. Percival managed to keep an eye on her till she turned the corner. Then he sighed.

The captain halted in front of him.

"Are you acquainted with Mrs. Spofford and her niece, Percival?" he inquired.

"Miss Clinton has done me the honor to remember meeting me night before last at the Alcazar Grand, sir. Mrs. Spofford is not so generous."

"I see," said Capt. Trigger reflectively. "You will report at once to Mr. Gray. He will give you a less public job, as you call it." A twinkle came into his eyes. "He doesn't like the hat you're wearing. Nor the shirt. Nor the boots."

"Thank you, sir."

"And by the way, Percival, as soon as you are slightly refurbished I want you to stroll through the second cabin and, if possible, identify the two stewards who came to No. 22. Let me see, was it during the day or at night?"

"Some time during the night, sir. Eleven or half past, I should say."

"Very well."

An hour later he reported to Capt. Trigger. "I have seen all of the stewards, sir, according to Mr. Codge, and I do not recognize any of them as the men who came to No. 22. I had a fairly good view of them, too, from beneath the lower berth. They spoke in a language I did not understand——"

"Do you understand German?"

"No, sir. I know it when I hear it, however. They were not speaking German. I may have been wrong, but I came to the conclusion that they were transferring some one to No. 22. They brought in two suitcases and left them when they went out. I——"

Capt. Trigger brought his clinched fist down on the table with a resounding, emphatic bang.

"Now we have it! That Chicago detective is right, by gad!"

He turned to the small group of officers clustered behind him. Fresh alarm, real consternation, had leaped into the eyes of every man of them.

"Then—then, that means our search isn't over?" cried Mr. Mott, starting up.

"It does! Every inch of this ship, every damned inch of it, from stem to stern. Overlook nothing, Mr. Mott. Don't delay a second."

Percival was alone with the agitated captain an instant later. Trigger's eyes were rather wild and bloodshot. The younger man's face blanched. He knew now that the danger was real. He waited for the captain to speak.

"Percival, the two men you saw in 22 were not stewards. They were the men who jumped overboard. You tell me they left two bags there when they went out of the room. Well, they were not there this morning when the regular steward went into the room. They have disappeared. But the contents of those bags are still somewhere on board this ship. And if they are not found in time, by gad, sir, we will all be in kingdom come before we know it."

The first explosion occurred at eleven minutes past 6. The chart house and part of the bridge were blown to pieces. Three dull, splintering crashes ensued in rapid succession, proving beyond question that the bombs were set to explode automatically at a given time. One of them wrecked the engine room; another blew a great hole in the stern of the ship, above the water line; the third destroyed the wireless house and carried away a portion of the deck with it.

There were eight in all of these devilish machines in the heart of the Doraine. Some time prior to the first explosion the feverish searchers had uncovered four of them, cunningly planted in the most vital parts of the ship. Two were taken from the lower hold, one at each end of the vessel, and two more were found close to the carefully protected section of the vessel in which a rather insignificant but deadly shipment of high explosives was stored.

The discovery of the four bombs and their immediate consignment to the sea saved the ship from being blown to bits.

With another hour to spare, it is more than probable the remaining four would have been found, notwithstanding the amazing cleverness with which they were hidden, so thorough and so dogged was the search.

Confusion, terror, stupefaction, and finally panic, followed the successive blasts. The decks were strewn with people prostrated by the violent upheavals, and many there were who never got up again. Stunned, dazed, bewildered, those who were able to do so scrambled to their feet only to be hurled down again and again. Shrieks, groans, prayers, and curses filled the brief, ghastly silences between the muffled detonations. The great vessel surged and rolled and plunged like a tortured animal.

The splintering of wood, the rending of plates, the shattering of glass, and above all this horrid turmoil the mighty roaring and hissing of steam! And the wild, gurgling cries of the frantic unfortunates who had leaped into the sea.

Out of the chaos with incredible swiftness came the paralysis of despair, and out of that slowly but surely groped the never failing courage of the men who go down to the sea in ships. Hoarse commands lifted above the groans and prayers, and strong but shaken figures sprang with mechanical precision to the posts allotted them. Life boat after life boat went down into a sea that glistened with the slanting rays of an untroubled sun, low lying at the end of the day.

Fire broke out in several places. Down into the bowels of the ship plunged the resolute heroes who remained behind, the chosen complement reserved for just such an emergency by the farseeing master.

Above the hissing of steam and the first feeble cracklings of flame rose the stentorian voice of the captain from his post at the base of the demolished bridge.

"Fight, men! Fight! Fight! There are dying men below! Stand by! Fight for them."

He was bloody and almost unrecognizable as he stood there clutching a stanchion for support. His legs were rigid, his body swayed, but his spirit was as stanch as the star that had guided him for fifty years through the trackless waste.

And while these doughty, desperate spirits fought the fire and smoke with every means at their command, down in the suffocating depths of the ship, braving not only the peril visible and at hand but the prospect of annihilation in the event that a belated bomb projected its hideous force into the nest of high explosives, while these men fought, the smiling, placid sea was alive with small white craft that bobbed in the gleaming sunlight, lifeboats crowded to the gunwales with shuddering, bleak-eyed men, women, and children waiting to pick up those who stayed behind, and who inevitably would be driven overboard by the resistless, conquering flames.

Cruising about at a safe distance from the menacing hull, these boats managed to rescue a few of the beings who had leaped overboard in the first mad panic of fear, but many there were who went down, never to be seen again. No boat was without its wounded—and its dead; no boat was without its stricken, anxious eyed survivors who watched and prayed for the salvation of loved ones left behind. With straining eyes they searched the surface of the sea, peered at the occupants of near and distant boats, stared at the scurrying figures on the decks of the smoking steamer, hoping, always hoping, and always sobbing out the endless prayer.

At last, as the sun sank below the blue of Tricotine, Poiret Twill, Serge, Satin, including Chinchilla Satin, and knitted fabrics of wool and fibre silk, including Deluxknit

TO a greater extent than ever before, with more brilliant representation than ever of the ideas of Paris, translated in Paris into terms of fashion acceptable to America, Crown creations form the feature-note of the first Fall dress displays already being presented throughout the country by America's fine stores.

The extension of Crown Parisian creation from the leading materials to all fashionable fabrics; the broadening of the Crown price-range from the more exclusive to the very moderate for dresses authentically Parisian in source—these are two strong factors behind the increased presence of the Parisian influence in the important dress fashion displays this Fall.

And a veritable Parisian promenade at our New York showrooms, constantly augmented by new adoptions speeded over by our designing staff in Paris, is serving as an ever-fresh and inspiring source for maintaining and heightening this Parisian note, which the broadening of Crown creation has helped to strike at the outset of the season in representative stores.

THE LAST CORN

When you end your corn with Blue-jay, it will be the last corn you let grow.

You will know how to stop the pain. And how to quickly and completely end all corns.

There are millions who use Blue-jay now, and they never let a corn remain.

The new-day way

Blue-jay is the new-day way, the scientific method.

It was perfected in a laboratory world-famed for its surgical dressings.

It is supplanting the many treatments which are harsh and inefficient.

It has made paring as ridiculous as it is unsafe, for paring doesn't end corns.

Do this tonight:

Apply to a corn a Blue-jay plaster or liquid Blue-jay—whichever you prefer.

Mark how the pain stops. Then wait a little and the corn will loosen and come out.

What that corn does all corns will do. Some 20 million corns a year are ended in this way.

Don't suffer corns. Don't have your feet disfigured. They can be ended almost as easily as a dirt-spot on your face. They are just as inexcusable.

Don't forget this. It means too much to you.

Ask your druggist for Blue-jay.

"OUCH! That CORN!"

Poor girl! If she only knew how ridiculously e-a-s-y it is to stop corn pain and to remove the corn itself! Not with knives, salves, plasters or irritating liquids, but simply by applying two or three drops of "GETS-IT" to stop the hurting instantly and shrivel the corn so it can be peeled right off with the fingers.

"Gets-It" for Corns

Bear in mind there is only one original and genuine "GETS-IT," guaranteed absolutely harmless. To avoid disappointment, refuse substitutes. Others may copy the "GETS-IT" method of application, but "GETS-IT" results —instant, sure and painless—are produced by the exclusive "GETS-IT" formula.

Costs but a trifle, everywhere. Your money back on request.

War's Wonder Healing Agent

The new antiseptic, discovered for war wounds, now used for gargle, mouth-wash, gum infections, skin eruptions, dandruff, etc.

The high death rate among the wounded, early in the war, was a serious Allied problem. Thousands died from blood-poison and lock-jaw, due to infected wounds. American scientists came to the rescue with a new chlorine antiseptic which conquered infection and healed wounds often in one-fourth the usual time. Over 50,000 physicians and dentists are now using it.

Every home and factory may now use this wonderful healing agent in the form of Kloria Tablets, easily used by dissolving in ordinary water, and very inexpensive.

Kloria doesn't smart, is soothing, harmless and not poisonous. Yet it destroys germs more rapidly, more efficiently than any antiseptic ever known before. That is why it heals so quickly.

In tender, bleeding, shrinking gums, Kloria attacks the germ cause, with amazing results. All gum soreness and bleeding usually disappear in one week. It also makes the most effective mouth-wash for preventing tooth-decay, gum infections, tonsilitis and contagious diseases.

Kloria takes the place of all old-time healing salves and antiseptics. Cuts, sores, boils and burns often heal in one-fourth the usual time. Skin eruptions and itching, eczema, dandruff, ivy poison, etc., promptly fade away. Kloria also destroys all offensive body odors instantly.

Sold by druggists or mailed prepaid for 50 cents. Money refunded if not entirely satisfied.

Package gives directions for making proper strength solutions for all uses. The liquid keeps perfectly in a bottle, ready for use.

For Beautiful Hair

Take the Advice of Highest Medical Authorities

There have been many conflicting claims as to the proper treatment and care for the hair. There has been much confusion and ignorance. Now the confusion is ended. The way is known definitely—safely.

Every one, men, women and children, should have healthy hair. Nature provided it in the beginning. Proper treatment will preserve it through life.

The most eminent authorities have prescribed the way to prevent the loss of the hair's life and luxuriance.

Highest Authorities

The Council of the American Medical Association (the highest authority known) has recognized Resorcinol Monoacetate for the treatment of dandruff (seborrheal eczema) and baldness (alopecia-areata)—the common foes of beautiful hair. Resorcinol Monoacetate is the principal ingredient of "La Creole" Hair Tonic. Thus science approves this wonderful preparation. Abundant, vigorous hair is now easily attained.

Simple Directions

Two or three times a week apply "La Creole" Hair Tonic to the scalp. Moisten the hair and scalp thoroughly—massaging the scalp with a rotary motion of the finger tips. Scalp circulation is then stimulated, the hair roots supplied with needed nourishment, and dandruff is quickly eliminated. You will notice an immediate improvement in the loveliness of your hair.

Proper Shampooing

Absolute cleanliness is essential for beautiful, healthy hair. The scalp is constantly throwing off old skin and extraneous substances. If the pores and hair tubes are clogged with dirt and perspiration, a healthy condition of the hair is impossible. Regularly every ten days or two weeks shampoo the hair thoroughly with "La Creole" Liquid Shampoo.

Mademoiselle "La Creole"

Do not be confused by the word "Creole." The wonderful hair of the Creoles is a mark of their pure French-Spanish blood as well as of the care given it. "La Creole" preparations are their favorites.

"La Creole" Liquid Shampoo is made from an exclusive Menthol formula of purest cocoanut and cochin oils. You will instantly notice the delightful, cooling effect from its use. The hair becomes soft and lustrous—dries quickly—and the scalp and pores glow with clean health and vigor.

Always apply "La Creole" Hair Tonic after shampooing. Follow these rules faithfully and notice the improvement in the loveliness of your hair.

When purchasing "La Creole" Liquid Shampoo be sure to get "La Creole" Hair Tonic also, because the formula of each is designed to aid the other.

"La Creole" Hair Dressing

is a treatment for the gradual restoration of the Natural Dark color to hair that has grown gray, gray-streaked, or faded. It must not be confused with common dyes. Refinement approves its use.

If you cannot obtain these preparations at advertised pric es—write us direct and we will see that you are supplied

No other woman in the Metropolitan Opera Company has Geraldine Farrar's pulling power with audiences. She fills the Metropolitan twice a week throughout the entire opera season.

Her biggest achievements are built on moments of rest

THE wear and tear of countless rehearsals—the strain, week after week, of performing before great audiences—th exhausting travel of long tours—these are son of the reasons why not one woman in a thousand has the necessary physique to be a successful singer of grand opera.

And perhaps not one singer in a thousand has Geraldine Farrar's capacity for sheer hard work. Her thirty or more operatic rôles, her concert repertoires, her phonograph records, her miles of films, which are shown in over 9,000 moving picture houses in the country, represent an amount of energy and driving power that few men possess.

"I have never heard Miss Farrar say that she was tired," one of her assistants reported. "When she was making films, she would often begin at seven in the morning and work straight on until evening. Now and then she would take a few minutes off and rest by sitting down and playing at her piano."

These "few minutes off," with which Farrar has learned to minimize the strain of work, represent one of the most important secrets of successful achievement.

The leaders in world achievement recognize that a moment or two of relaxation, breaking at frequent intervals the drive of a hard day, are worth more than an hour of recreation after one is exhausted.

Harriman, the great railroad builder, even at the most critical moments, could drop all business problems and in an instant become absorbed in his favorite author. Roosevelt, when he was making campaign tours in his private car, could put himself to sleep in the midst of noise and argument, and wake after a few minutes completely refreshed.

There are a dozen simple ways of getting this momentary relaxation.

One simple way of securing momentary relaxation

Most of us have noticed, for example, that merely washing the face and hands is restful. The next time you wash, use Jergens Violet Soap and see what an instant sense of refreshment you can get from this simple act.

Jergens Violet Soap is especially made to refresh as well as cleanse. It contains an ingredient so cooling, so refreshing, that physicians often recommend this ingredient for its effect on the skin.

The moment you use Jergens Violet you will feel its refreshing quality. Your skin will feel smooth, clean and cool.

The fragrance of Jergens Violet Soap, like that of fresh dewy violets—its cool transparence and visible purity—add to this wonderful effect of refreshment. The same qualities that give Jergens Violet Soap its refreshing value make it delightful for general use.

Jergens Violet Soap is sold wherever soap is sold—15 cents a cake.

Send 6 cents and learn its instant refreshment

For 6 cents we will send you a refreshing little cake of Jergens Violet Soap. Address The Andrew Jergens Co., 6537 Spring Grove Avenue, Cincinnati, Ohio. If you live in Canada, address The Andrew Jergens Co., Limited, 6537 Sherbrooke St., Perth, Ontario.

PIKE'S PEAK OR BUST doesn't mean so much these days as it did 100 years ago last month, when Dr. Frank James astonished the world by climbing to its summit, 14,109 feet above sea level. On the serpentine automobile highway shown in the picture, it takes less than half a day to reach the top from Colorado Springs or Manitou. The road is 18 miles long and 50 feet wide, and the new slogan is, " Pike's Peak if I don't bust a tire."

FOOT TROUBLES CAUSE BAD HEALTH

Foot troubles affect the body in many different ways. A partial diagnosis of foot trouble symptoms as experienced by most people are —the feet burn, swell, ache and have sharp pains under the heel, the ball of the foot is sore and feels as if walking on marbles; ankles become weak and swollen, legs cramp, knees stiffen, pains are produced in the hips, small of back, shoulders and neck, poor circulation and extreme nervousness.

Dr. Pinkston, the eminent Foot Specialist, has a Foot and Shoe Institution the World has long needed. A place where you can have all of your foot troubles relieved and 90 per cent of them cured, regardless of the nature or condition of the ailment. Dr. Pinkston has a shoe appliance or a preparation for the prevention, correction and cure of every known foot and leg ailment and can absolutely relieve all foot troubles.

Dr. Pinkston conducts in connection with his foot specialty work one of the most up-to-date "READY-TO-WEAR" Shoe Departments in the World, for men, women and grown girls, featuring exclusively "Dr. Pinkston's Combination Last" shoes, oxfords and pumps for perfect and imperfect feet, for street and dress wear.

Dr. Pinkston's Combination Last shoes, oxfords and pumps FIT BETTER, FEEL BETTER, AND LOOK BETTER than other shoes because they are two widths narrower in the heel, one width narrower in the arch and two widths wider through the ball of the foot than any shoes that have ever been made. The narrow heel keeps the foot from slipping up and down, the narrow arch keeps the foot from sliding forward, the broad ball gives perfect freedom to the toes. THE ENTIRE COMFORT AND GRACE OF WALKING DEPENDS ENTIRELY UPON THE PROPER ARTICULATION OF THE BALL OF THE FOOT. Manufactured and sold exclusively by Dr. Pinkston. Prices $12 to $30.

"THERE IS A HAPPY LAND," but, as in the song, it's far, far away. It is amid such surroundings as these that residents of certain small towns near Berlin take their outings on the Locknitz. Peddlers of thirst quenchers go right along with them, tie up to the banks at intervals, and sell their wares. Germany has experienced many things, but prohibition is not one of them.

Never cut the cuticle. Cutting makes rough, ragged edges and causes hangnails a few days after manicuring.

With a bit of cotton wrapped around an orange stick and dipped in Cutex work around the base of the nail, gently pushing back the cuticle. Wipe off the dead surplus cuticle, and wash the hands.

Apply Cutex Nail White underneath the nails directly from tube.

Cutex Cake Polish gives the nails a brilliant finish.

Every day your nails can look well kept

It is not difficult to have your nails look exquisitely well groomed all the time. It is simply a matter of knowing how.

Remember not to cut the cuticle. When the cuticle is trimmed or cut, the skin around the base of the nail soon becomes dry and ragged. It roughs up, forms hangnails and makes your whole hand unattractive.

You can have shapely, symmetrical nails without clipping or cutting. Cutex was scientifically prepared to meet the need for a harmless cuticle remover. It is absolutely harmless.

People who have been cutting the cuticle find that no matter how much they have abused it, Cutex soon smooths away the rough skin around the base of the nails and quickly makes it even and firm. Follow the directions given under the illustrations.

A few minutes once or twice a week will make and keep your nails always in the most perfect condition. Do this regularly as you file or cut your nails, and you will always in future be proud of your hands.

Cutex, the cuticle remover, comes in 35c and 65c bottles. Cutex Nail White, Cold Cream and Cutex Nail Polish, in cake, paste, powder, liquid or stick form, are also each 35c.

BACK TO ANOTHER WAR ZONE—If Floyd Gibbons, European director of The Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service, lives through a month without a thrill, he gets lonesome. He left Paris recently for the Polish front in an airplane chartered by The Tribune for covering the retreat of the Poles. It crashed to the earth near Belfort, but neither Mr. Gibbons nor his A. E. F. aviator, Charles Foster, was seriously hurt. Another plane was dispatched to the spot and they hurried to Warsaw.

NEW ROUMANIAN MINISTER TO U. S.—The London Times announced recently the appointment of Prince Antoine Bibesco, who married Elizabeth Asquith in London last year, as Roumanian minister to the United States. Prince Bibesco has been the first secretary of the Roumanian legation in London. He was born in Paris in 1878. He is a Knight Commander of Isabelle the Catholic, and a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor.

IN MEMORY OF WILBUR WRIGHT—France is among the first to honor the American inventor of the airplane. This monument was dedicated recently at Mons, France. Hugh Wallace, United States ambassador in Paris, made the speech of the day.

HER PAL IS A BABY SEAL—There is nothing like a baby seal for a playmate if you live near the ocean. This little girl, whose family has a summer cottage on the Jersey coast at Ocean City, has formed a considerable affection for her pet, who follows her along the beach and into the water like a dog.

CHENEY SILKS

WHEN LEAVES BEGIN TO FALL

IN the Autumn, feminine fancy is quite sure to turn to thoughts of frocks, and pleasant thoughts will undoubtedly centre upon new frocks of Cheney Silks.

There is Crêpe Chenette for sheer daintiness, Satin Barré, high of lustre, to accentuate each clever line; Satin Panne of clinging grace; and Crêpe Jersey of subtle richness.

Nor are the lining silks of less engaging loveliness: luxurious Illuminated Satin Panne, Cinderella, Foulard and Sweetbriar, in many new patterns and exquisite color combinations, including the Iridescent Prints, which are exclusive with Cheney Brothers.

Stores with a reputation for fine merchandise will be quite sure to sell Cheney Silks, either by the yard or in garments ready to wear.

BESSIE LOVE is one of the stars whom fans always refer to as being "darling," "too sweet for anything," etc.

From the time she started her screen career with Triangle-Fine Arts, in "A Sister of Six," she has appeared in clean, charming little pictures, the most notable of which to my mind was "Nina, the Flower Girl." For the past year she has been with Vitagraph, but now heads her own company.

Her home is in Hollywood. —Mae Tinee.

LILA LEE has had her biography printed here before. But just in case you thought she never did anything but pose for the motion picture camera, here's proof that she does have idle moments, and that she employs them well. —Mae Tinee.

HUGH HUNTLEY is a "juvenile," educated in Paris and Shrewsbury school, England. He had a stage career, during which time he played juvenile leads with George Edwards' company, Daly theater, London, with Marie Tempest and with J. C. Williamson, Ltd.

His screen work started with the Australian Famous Players company, in "The Monk and the Woman." Later he worked for Vitagraph and with Famous Players company here.

Mr. Huntley is a dashing chap, 5 feet 10 inches tall, weight 160. He has dark brown hair and brown eyes. (Those who say they know tell me that he's a card with the ladies!) —Mae Tinee.

SEENA OWEN, unlike many of the screen stars, apparently dreads a visit to the photographer. A new photograph of her is such an event that I saved the above for your delectation. Miss Owen used to sign her name "Signe Auen." Can't blame her for changing it, can we? Names at best are hard for most people to remember, and Signe Auen is certainly a cognomen to reckon with!

The lady's biography has appeared before. Just wanted to hand you the picture. —Mae Tinee.

GENUINE ASPIRIN

"BAYER" introduced Aspirin to physicians in 1900.

To get the true, world-famous Aspirin, used for over twenty years, ask for genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin," plainly stamped with the "Bayer Cross."

Accept only an unbroken "Bayer Package," which contains proper directions.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer Packages."

Beautify Your Hair with "DANDERINE"

35c a bottle! Freshen your scalp! Stop falling hair! Remove dandruff! Have lots of wavy, glossy, beautiful hair! You can!

IF YOU care for heavy hair, that glistens with beauty and is radiant with life; has an incomparable softness and is fluffy and lustrous, try Danderine.

Just one application doubles the beauty of your hair; besides, it eradicates every particle of dandruff; you cannot have nice, heavy, healthy hair if you have dandruff. This destructive scurf robs the hair of its luster, its strength, and its very life, and if not overcome it produces a feverishness and itching of the scalp, the hair roots famish, loosen and die; then the hair falls out fast.

If your hair has been neglected and is thin, faded, dry, scraggy, or too oily, get a bottle of Knowlton's Danderine, apply a little as directed, and ten minutes after you will say this was the best investment you ever made.

We sincerely believe, regardless of everything else advertised, that if you desire soft, lustrous, beautiful hair and lots of it—no dandruff—no itching scalp and no more falling hair—you must use Knowlton's Danderine. If eventually, why not now?

A PRETTIER shade of blue for your sun-faded georgette.

A more delicate pink for your yellowed crêpe de Chine.

For blouses, for underwear, or the children's dresses, lovelier shades than you have ever been able to wash into a garment before.

You get these lovelier shades with Twink, the new colored flakes.

Twink is made by a wonderful new method for producing colors, that makes it possible to get more exquisite shades than have ever before been obtained.

The gay flakes dissolve instantly in boiling hot water. You whip them into a bright lather and put in your yellowed blouse or your faded camisole. Swish it about in the rich suds for a few minutes, squeeze the suds gently through the fabric, then rinse in cold waters.

In a twinkling you have a charming pink blouse in place of your yellowed one, a dainty flesh colored camisole that looks as if it had never been worn.

The Twink colors turn out right every time, clear and even and so fast you can wash your blouse several times before its next Twinking. Twink will not injure any fabric that water alone will not harm.

Although the men refused to attempt to put out the fire, they stood by to prevent a spread of the flames to other railway property. The fire preceded a raid in which the military guard on the munitions train was overpowered and rifles and ammunition captured.

When you can play in the sun with safety—

WHEN you want to have the very best time of your life—do you find your face in the way? All rough and sunburned and hurt? It's unfortunate that many outdoor girls do. And most unnecessary.

For the whole secret of a clear, radiant skin lies in using a soap that thoroughly agrees with your skin.

Even some soaps which you go on using for years don't agree. You are mystified. It is chiefly because they are half-raw. They haven't been put through a further process called Heat-Toning.

Half-raw soaps don't agree with the skin

If the soap you use doesn't agree with your skin—if it doesn't improve a lifeless complexion—then you know something must be wrong.

Most soaps which dry the skin too much—steal away the natural oil that keeps us young looking and fresh—are half-raw.

A soap carefully mellowed by heat is safe. That is why Pears' doesn't injure all the delicate, underneath life of the skin—all those nerves and tissues, tiny pores and blood capillaries which are trying to work for your skin-beauty.

Pears' helps them to do their work because Pears' is a Heat-Toned soap.

The old secret never before told

Heat-Toning is the great discovery which that master soap-maker, Andrew Pears, made in 1789. He wanted his soap in absolute harmony with the sensitive skins of women and children.

One day he took some of his "finished" soap, and putting it in clean, closed retorts he used a quick-heating liquid, and under additional heat, he cooked that soap again.

Heat-Toning makes soap agree with the skin

Heat-Toning alters soap entirely. Even the color changes, for when really finished, it isn't the ordinary soap color at all, but the rich, soft wine tone which we know is Pears'.

Best of all is the change inside Pears which Heat-Toning gives soap. All the soap particles are broken into even smaller, softer molecules. This changes Pears' lather—makes it soft and gentle, unlike the very sudsy lather which so often penetrates too strongly into the inner life of the skin.

Heat-Toning makes Pears' soothe the skin. Makes it agree with every tiny part. So you can use it with absolute safety because it works naturally for your skin-beauty. Pears' is awaiting you at your favorite druggist's, department store or fancy grocer's.

A Great WOMAN EDITOR—

who receives thousands of letters from women asking how to improve their Complexions and their Hands, gives this simple prescription as the "great secret"—

"Find the soap that agrees with your skin."

If he should step off—

Yet the total impact of your 8,000 steps a day is greater

IF he should step off the top of this 16-story building, he would hit the pavement below with an impact of 600 tons.

Yet the impact would not be as great as the total impact of the 8,000 steps you take on the average every day.

This startling comparison reveals one of the greatest sources of fatigue in modern life. Only a few years ago we walked on soft dirt paths and elastic turf which cushioned every step. For such walking Nature provided the bony arch of the foot and the pad of flesh at the heel to absorb the lighter shocks.

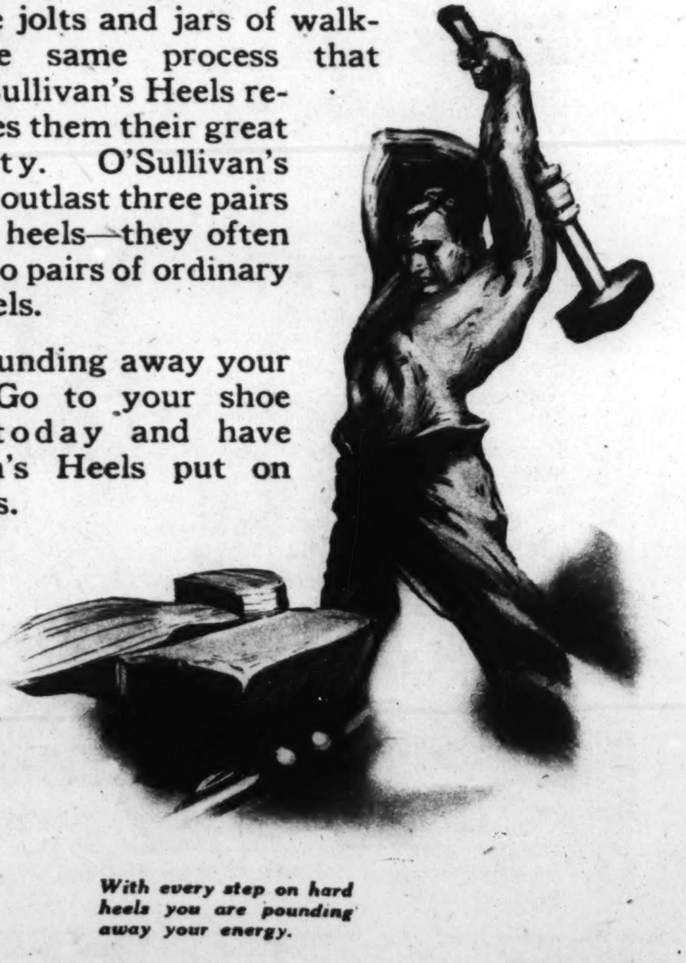
But conditions have changed. Hard, unyielding pavements, sidewalks and floors have replaced the natural ground in all our cities and towns. Now every step with leather heels or ordinary "dead" rubber heels upon these modern pavements acts as a hammer blow to your nervous system. The repeated shocks of your 8,000 steps a day take their toll of nervous energy—contribute largely to that feeling of over-fatigue you so often experience.

Yet you can eliminate this source of fatigue. You cannot change the pavements, but you can change your heels. O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the jolts and jars of walking on hard pavements.

To secure the resiliency, the springiness of O'Sullivan's Heels, the highest grades of rubber are blended by a special formula. With this blend of live, springy rubber are "compounded" the best toughening agents known. The compound is then "cured" or baked under high pressure.

This is why O'Sullivan's Heels absorb the jolts and jars of walking. The same process that makes O'Sullivan's Heels resilient gives them their great durability. O'Sullivan's Heels will outlast three pairs of leather heels—they often outlast two pairs of ordinary rubber heels.

Stop pounding away your energy. Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes.



With every step on hard heels you are pounding away your energy.

O'Sullivan's Heels

Absorb the shocks that tire you out

Plantations have been established in Georgia and Louisiana. The stalk is used for making frames, furniture, ladders, trellises and barrel hoops, and the new sprout is said to be delicious, resembling asparagus in flavor.

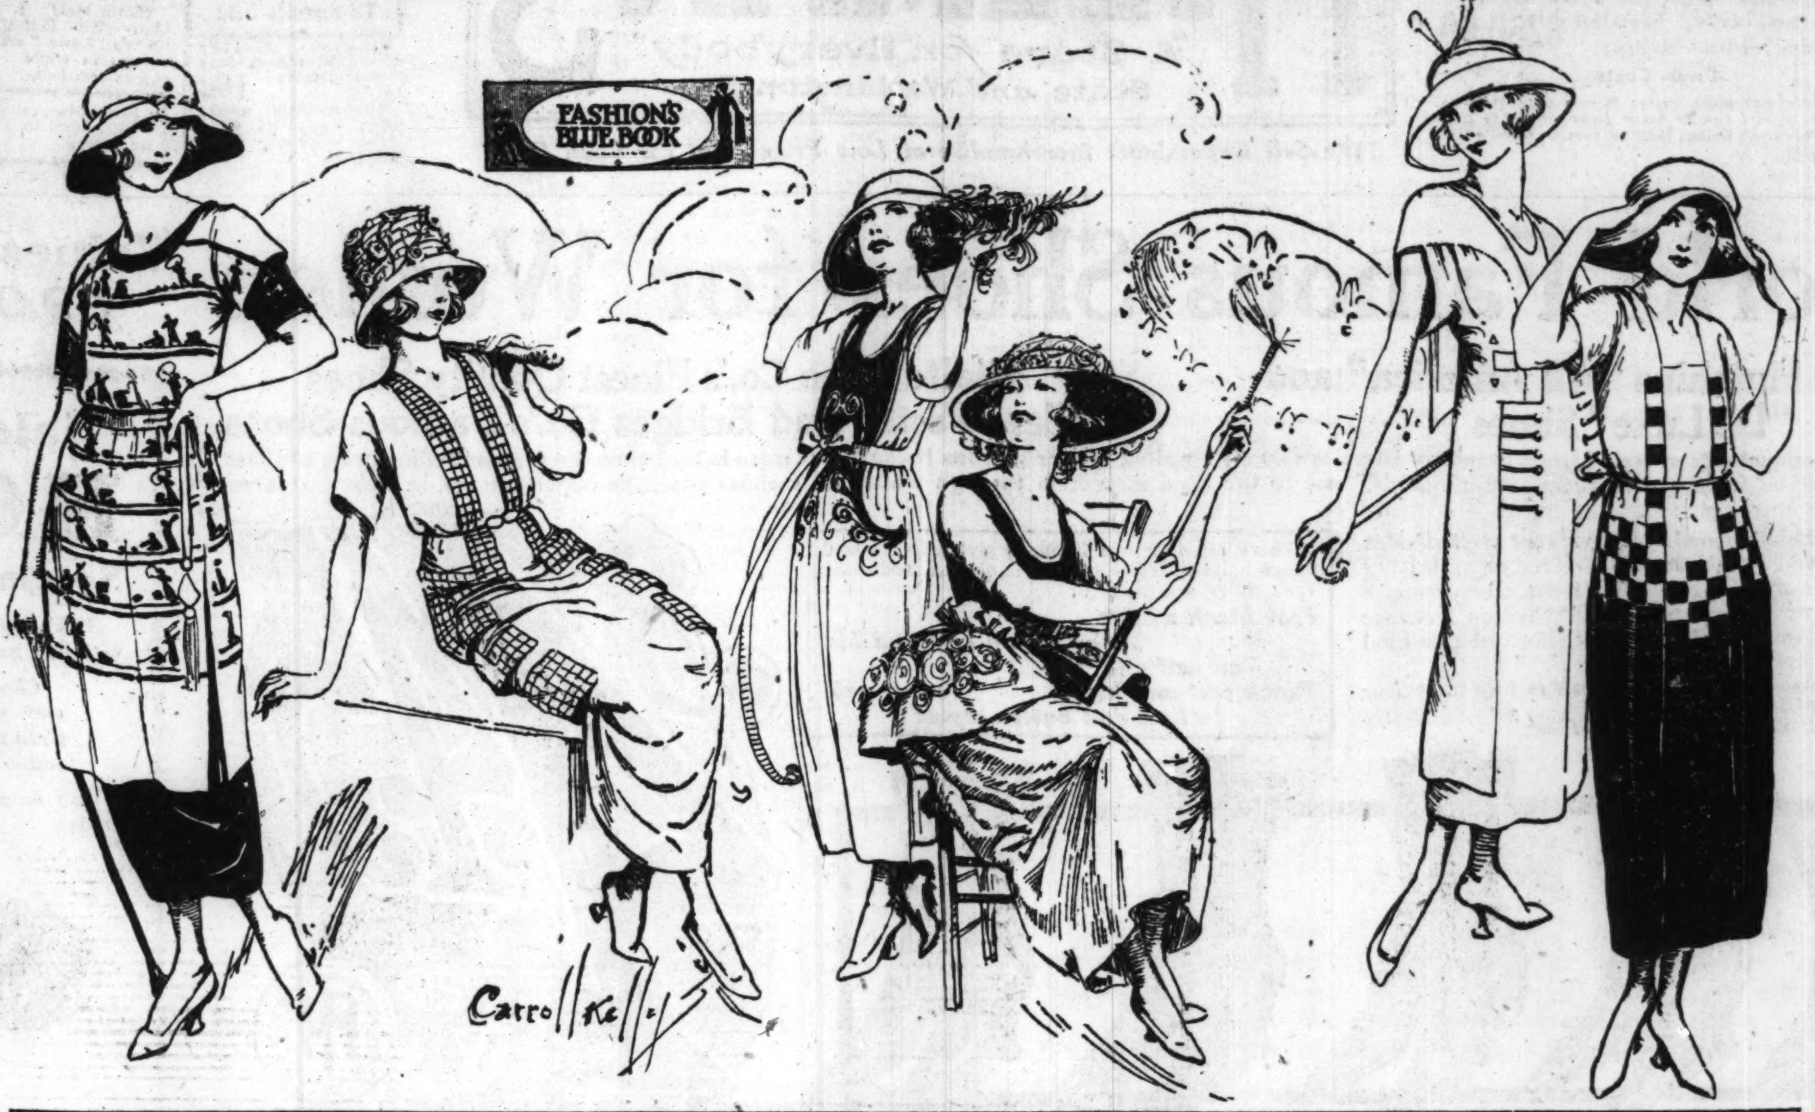
THE STRAIGHT LINE STILL THE SMARTEST DISTANCE BETWEEN TWO POINTS

by CORINNE LOWE

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.



WHEN you add to your Shantung hand printed silhouettes of black you don't need much elaboration of the dress silhouette. The sports frock at the left uses this fabric over foundation of brown black satin and then completes with a black and white Shantung hat. Next to this a rose colored gingham trimmed with rose and white checked gingham is accompanied by hat of satin straw, ribbon trimmed, with roses of the same. Next, a frock of light and dark hyacinthine blue taffeta embroidered in wool of the same tone adds a leghorn of metallic green finished with peacock feathers. The seated lady is in gray taffeta glace combined with corsage of sapphire blue satin and worn with a hat of delicate gray lace and horsehair. Last come, respectively, a dress of white linon with white satin collar and a sports hat of taffeta and a combination of black and coral calico with hat of black and amethyst linon.

NEW YORK.—(Special Correspondence.)—There are styles which make us happy; there are styles which make us sad. If we have any lingering doubt on the subject all we have to do is to see the difference between what they tell us is being worn and what is really being worn.

In all the fashion centers of the world this difference is very acute. For example, there were the first of the Paris races. The mannequins representing the big dressmakers wore here, according to report, costumes that would have made a Sandwich island belle fell a trifle nervous. We read of wearing ochre lace dresses accompanied by tan powder which gave neck and face and arms the look of being cut out of the same piece of material. We hear of crepe de chine wraps collared with the breasts of ducks. And we are startled to know that over there they are trimming organdy with monkey fur and with aigrettes.

Yet against this feverish exploitation of the mode there were the mondaines, the real women of fashion, who set rather than launch the mode. How were they clad? Well, the Princess So-and-So wore an old blue jersey embroidered in jade green, and the jersey was cut on the simplest of lines. Another princess appeared in a black suit with a waistcoat of orange duvetyn. And a costume elected by some of the very smartest Parisiennes was merely a plaited navy blue skirt of serge with the simplest kind of basque or corsage. Elaborate ornamentation there may have been, but it went usually with almost severe line.

That over here it is also case of mannequin versus mondaine is brought out by numerous fashion events. We saw, for example, several weeks ago at a monster fete prepared by our designers a black duvetyn frock with trimming made of 35,000 steel nail heads. Imagine! It looked a little, did that model, as if it were trying to grow up to be a suit of armor in some museum.

That was a show intended to indicate the trend of the fall styles. And it certainly included a number of frocks that might have been worn instead of shown. To deny the originality and charm and wearability of some of the exhibits would be doing an injustice to the American designer, who during the last few years has certainly been taking tremendous strides away from the eccentric toward the really imaginative. Nevertheless it was certainly somewhat startling to go from this exhibition of what they were going to wear to a resort which showed what they are really wearing.

This resort was the fashionable one of Southampton on Long island. Here, like Tennyson's Lady Clare, every debutante comes dressed like the village maid. In the morning she wears the most guileless of tub frocks or sports clothes. In the afternoon her little frock is apt to be cut on chemise lines, and in the evening she is just as likely to wear for dancing an organdy or a batiste as satin, taffeta, or tulle. Certainly a long distance from the hardware costume with the 35,000 nail heads to these hard wear togs! Nor can the difference be entirely explained away by the fact that the former is designed for autumn, naturally exacting always a heavier toll of ornament than summer.

Here is the mainland of thought discovered after many misleading islands. The straight line chemise frock is being worn both here and abroad by some of the most fashionable women. What is more, it will continue to be worn all this fall. Evidence of this is obtained from fall models which both Madeleine et Madeleine and Bernard have sent over to us. No thorny hips here, no torturing of drapery, no teasing of the silhouette! There may be a tunic, but it is the kind that maintains slenderness instead of thwarting it. The skirts of these fall frocks are narrow and short. And though the line is simple, you may embroider them as much as you please.

Copper thread on a navy blue twill; bronze and copper nail heads in Egyptian pattern on a navy tricotine; iridescent metallic thread on another navy cloth—these are some of the ways the French designer takes to enliven the chemise frock. Then there are lovely soft duvetyns embroidered in wool of contrasting shade and perhaps trimmed with a touch of fur. And just now we are fond of eyelet embroidery for these one piece dresses. One of the loveliest afternoon frocks which I saw recently was, for example, a black charmeuse with a pattern of eyelet embroidery which showed the jade green satin placed beneath the design.

In sports and tub frocks the straight line is also holding sway. As an example of this we point to the charming sports dress at the left of this page. This is made of brown black satin over which occurs a tunic of white shantung hand printed with black silhouettes. The hat worn with this is of black and white shantung.

Next comes a dress of rose gingham with trimming of rose and white checked gingham. The hat of satin straw in ribbon width is appliqued with flowers of the same fabric in various tones of rose.

That even taffeta, so inclined to bubble over the hips, may take the straight line of the softer silks is evinced by the next costume—one made up of two tones of this fabric, light and dark hyacinthine blue. This is embroidered in wool of the same shades, and it is set off by a leghorn hat of green. Perhaps you were brought up to believe the peacock unlucky, but you will change your theory when you note that this gorgeous fowl is the trimming used for this hat.

Just to show that panniers have not been entirely panned, there is the seated figure on the page. She wears under the shade of a delicate gray lace hat drawn over a horsehair hood a gray taffeta glace with flowers of the same material doing a mob scene on the draperies. The corsage of sapphire satin is lovely in combination with all this gray.

The last two models are respectively a white linon with white satin collar, which is accompanied by a sports hat of taffeta, and a black calico frock combined with coral in the same fabric. The millinery selected for this latter is a black and amethyst linon.

At the yacht races given this month it was interesting again to observe the simplicity of costume. The plaited white flannel skirt was here very much in evidence—indeed, it is a feature of the sports dressing at all fashionable resorts. Plaited white silk skirts were also, of course, an entry, and with both of these were worn sweaters of silk and fiber—most of them cut on tuxedo lines. Certainly we have a Whistlerian taste in sweaters this year. At these yacht races, for example, one saw hardly any color. Nearly all of the sweaters were black, navy, white, or else camel's hair shade.

BEADS, beads everywhere, and yet not a bead too many. The delightful thing about the new Fall dresses is their striking simplicity, that is achieved by beauty of line and accentuated by luxurious embroideries.

Black satin easily takes first place among the fashionably gowned. The possibilities of this soft, beautiful material are charmingly illustrated here. The noteworthy features of the Fall mode are the short sleeve, the redingote, the variable waist line and the continued popularity of the harem skirt.

The New Fall Suits

THE new Fall Suits have forsaken the trodden path of "just suits" and climbed to heights of smartness in line and gorgeousness in trimming never reached before.

Duvetyn and Wool Velour seem to be Fashion's favorite materials. And to balance the beautiful collars of fur—Wolf, Kolinsky Squirrel, Nutria and Mole—intricate designs of braiding and unique braid "fancies" form the hems of box effect coats or wind into interesting panels down the front, appearing again in panels to match down the sides of the skirts.

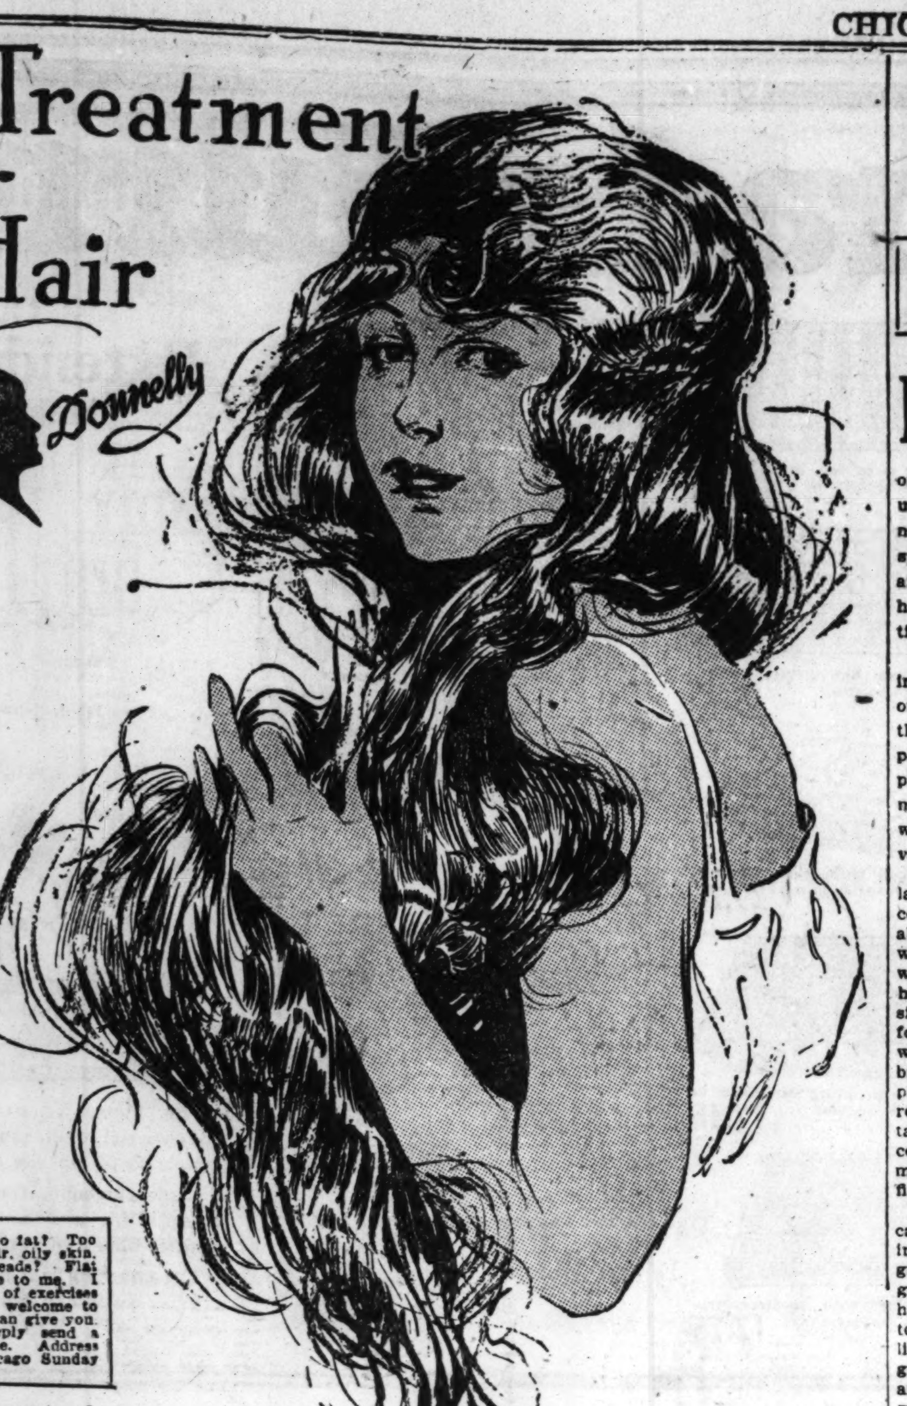
Salt Treatment for the Hair

by Antoinette Donnelly



What's your beauty ill? Too fat? Too thin? Shy on hair? Oily hair, oily skin, freckles, pimples, or blackheads? Flat chested or flat footed? Write to me. I have a tonic, a diet, or a set of exercises for what ails you and you're welcome to them and to all the advice I can give you. If you wish a personal reply send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Antoinette Donnelly, the Chicago Sunday Tribune.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

THE other day a man said: "If salt were done up in bottles of fancy design and color, with a foreign name applied, and sold for $10 an ounce bottle, you would have all the women with falling hair flocking to the counter for it. Now, my wife won't use it, just because it is salt, in spite of the fact that her own sister advocates it and has a fine head of hair to demonstrate its virtues. No, she'd rather go down and get Mme. Blinkety Blanks' treatments at $3 a minute."

Salt has a cult with a strong membership. A woman doctor told me recently about her assistant, who had grown a perfectly splendid head of hair by the salt method. And she enumerated several cases that had come under observation.

Treatment for Falling Hair.

The following letter is a first hand indorsement, and I recommend the use of salt on the hair because of the successful cases that have come under my personal observation:

"Dear Miss Donnelly: My hair was falling out very badly when a friend told me to use salt water. I tried it, and the first application helped, and after a few weeks it stopped falling entirely. Since that time, whenever my hair begins to fall badly, I use the salt water remedy, and have never yet had it fail me. The method is as follows:

"Take a basin of water—rain water, if you have it; if not, any kind you have—and put into it enough salt to make it quite briny. There is no danger of getting too much, as some rub the salt into the scalp. Take a cloth, dip it into the water, and rub it well into the hair all around the edge. Then massage it well into the scalp with the fingers. Part the hair back of where it is wet, and with the wet cloth rub the salt water well into the scalp and massage as before. Do this until the entire scalp has been treated. Allow the salt to stay on the hair about half an hour, then take warm water and wash the hair and scalp thoroughly. Wash in several waters, or until all the salt is out of the hair, as it will make it harsh if it is left in. Never use soap when you use salt, as it will make the hair gluey.

"If you will do this every ten days or two weeks, until you have made three or four applications of the salt water, I believe there are very few cases that will not respond to the treatment. It has never failed with me, and it has been sixteen years since I first tried it.

"A few minutes every night spent in massaging the scalp—not rubbing the hair—holding the fingers firmly and working the scalp—will do much toward keeping the hair in good condition and preventing its falling.

"C. L."

Other Salt Virtues.

A friend and associate on the paper with me has another personal recommendation for the use of salt. Her hair was extremely oily and required washing every week. She found by sprinkling common salt on the scalp and brushing it out thoroughly the trouble was alleviated. But you must have her thoroughness to get every particle of it out, else you may be against salt as a hair help.

Unquestionably salt has health virtues that should not be ignored. For instance, as a pyorrhœa preventive, many of the best dental men are advocating its use.

A salt rub after the bath is a fine tonic, as you who have taken Turkish baths know. The attendant rubs it well into the skin after the bath and just before the hot and cold rinse. It leaves the skin of the body in a clean, sweet smelling state.

MISS W. G.: PUT THE BATHING suit on and go swimming. No one will laugh at your skinny legs. They are too common a sight to be a matter of laughter. Besides, the swimming will help develop them. I will send you some exercises illustrated and described which will help along the good work.

For and By BUSINESS GIRLS

By Loretta King.

Miss King will be glad to help business girls solve their problems. If you want a personal answer send a stamped, addressed envelope. Address Miss Loretta King, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION.

IN spite of the fact that the isolated cases of antagonism between women in offices, which come to light occasionally, have the effect of producing the impression that an unfriendly spirit exists among business women, there is actually a fine spirit of camaraderie and helpfulness among them on the whole, which I have seen demonstrated a number of times, and I suppose you have, too.

Instances come to my mind of women in the business world who have helped others less fortunately situated than themselves to a prominence and prosperity they hardly would have accomplished unaided. Their help wasn't merely a passive matter, either. It was given sometimes even when it involved difficulties and sacrifice.

The supervisor of a department for a large corporation, whom I knew well a couple of years ago, has given inestimable assistance to a number of girls who worked under her direction. There were much better jobs for girls in the house than those under her supervision, and although it meant extra work for herself in breaking in new help, whenever she discovered an unusually bright and capable girl she had her placed in a better job, even though it required a great deal of persuasion, tact, and patience to accomplish it. She couldn't penalize the girls, she said, merely to boost her own stock with the firm.

Another young woman, whose story came to me indirectly, paid for a course in stenography for one of the younger girls in her office. Miss X realized the girl was ambitious but handicapped by having to give all of her meager wages to the support of her mother and little sister. So she advanced, at a great sacrifice to her own comfort, the amount necessary for the tuition. The money was later paid back to her, every cent of it, but when she lent it she had no definite assurance that she would get it back.

I have known women who gave up every moment of their spare time, and worked overtime besides, in order to coach an associate in a new job that meant promotion or help some one out of a difficulty or muddle in their work.

Countless such instances could be listed to prove that a spirit of genuine goodfellowship among business women really exists. But all the good deeds are lost sight of in the unpleasant impression left by the few women who do lack a spirit of coöperation and who are constantly dissentient as far as business associates of their own sex are concerned.

I had a letter this week signed by three girls who were indignant over a threatened dismissal, blaming one of the other girls in the office for the situation. She was so contentious, according to the letter, that she continually got herself and them into trouble with the management. She was forever finding cause for quarrel over some trivial affair with some one of them, and the controversies became so heated and serious that the manager finally threatened to let every girl employed by the firm go the next time any trouble developed among them. They are literally holding their breaths and waiting for the next and last outburst.

Undignified behavior like this, happily, is not common among business girls, but it may be disastrous enough to produce a lasting effect, as a prejudice against women employés in certain communities or particular lines of business. And besides no business girl that I am aware of ever gained anything by quarreling and making herself the cause of continual dissension.

MY FUNNIEST CHILDHOOD ADVENTURE

What was the most amusing thing you did as a youngster? You must have been up to some tricks. We'd like to hear about it. Address Funniest Childhood Adventures, Chicago Tribune. Don't get this contest mixed with Bright Sayings. It's deeds we want to hear about. The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published.

Father Paid the Damages.

My brother and I were told the story of the three bears by an older sister, and she pointed to a little green house some distance from ours, and said: "That's where they live."

Next morning before any one was awake, we got up, dressed, and set out for the bears' house.

When we arrived we knocked at the door several times. No one answered, so we tried the door. It was open, and we walked in. It happened that the occupants had left for the city early.

We helped ourselves to everything in sight, ate a lot of strawberries, mussed up all the beds, threw chairs over, and tore papers and threw them on the floor, trying to make it as real as possible. We even broke two plates, and we saw a clock which we liked, so we took it, and started for home.

When we got there, mother said: "Where did you get the clock?"

She was horrified when we told her everything we had done.

Father paid all the damages, and I think the neighbor whose house we had despoiled, ever laughed as much as she did when we told her why we had gone there. H. B.

A Complete Investigation.

My mother took me with her to make a call on a neighbor. I was placed on an old style carpet covered footstool in a corner of the room to amuse myself as best I could. Having no one to play with and being of an inquisitive turn of mind, I began to poke my fingers into the seams forming the edges of the square foot stool. This led to further investigation on my part, and when mother got up to leave and was ready to take me with her I had emptied the contents of the stool on the carpet and all there was left to gaze upon was a piece of carpet and a pile of sawdust and cork chips. S. J. H.

Wiping Up the Deluge.

Father took my brother and me for a ride on the "chutes." Shortly after my mother went shopping, leaving us alone in the house.

We got the ironing board, and, extending it from the sink to the floor, we made our slide. Next we got a pail, and took turns pouring water down the board, while the other slid on it.

The floor was flooded when we heard a knock on the door, and fear told us to wipe up the deluge. All the clean towels, the bedding, and available clothes were used, but the water did not disappear. Then mother entered—more water. But this had a salty flavor. F. E.

SHOWING FRENCH INFLUENCE.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—The influence of French taste is making itself apparent among eastern decorators to a great extent. Manufacturers have yielded to the charm of French design and some very lovely furniture, inspired by French artists but American made, has been modified to meet our own requirements.

Colors are light and bright and mingled with a certain gay abandonment that indicates a desire to "get away" from somber effects.

A mark that is almost invariably found in French interiors is the use of the circle as a decorative motif. Mirrors are framed in circular frames, carpets are round, chests of drawers and tables have bombé fronts, lamps have round shades, cushions are cylindrical or disk shaped, round bowls are used, chairs have rounded backs, all of the furniture has the frame work rounded off at the edges and corners, and doors and windows have arched tops.

The illustration shows a copy of a French dressing table, elliptical in form, flanked by a pair of narrow stands with drawers. These are surmounted by little round standing mirrors. A similar model has the mirror suspended instead of attached to the stand. In this case the mirror is round, and the dressing stool is round.

One of the fads of the season, coming straight to us from Paris, is that of painting wall paper. It sounds frightfully messy but is in reality quite effective if properly done. A dining room, with side walls papered in light blue striped paper, has the stripes in varied widths, and the color in two tones of blue, the lighter being almost white. Over this great branches of apple blossoms are freely sketched and delicately laid in, in natural colors.

It goes without saying that pictures are not used in the room. The branches extend clear across each wall space. The colors used are light tints of opaque water colors.

In the corner of the room is a little built-in china closet with solid wood doors. These are painted on the outside in pale gray to match the rest of the woodwork in the room, but when they are thrown open the apple blossoms are seen repeated on the inside of the doors and on the background of the shelves.

The floor is painted blue, and the light gray chairs are upholstered in deep blue and white silk. The curtains are batiked in two tones of light blue and trimmed with a deep blue silk band.

A remarkable feature of the room is that three small tables are used instead of one large one. The carving and serving are done from the buffet or from the kitchen. Isn't that simple and easy for father and mother? They have a table all to themselves.

This is the kind of dining room I should like to make compulsory for a tired business man, father of five girls, whom I once heard complain: "Dinner time is the most disappointing hour of my daily married life. I never have a chance at any intelligent conversation with my wife. She is too preoccupied governessing the table manners of the brood, and by the time I have finished carving and passing for the whole family, the few scraps that are left on the platter for me are cold." [Why Poppah leaves home!]

A living room that could have been conceived by no one in the world but an extravagant Frenchman is done entirely in black, cream, and gold. The walls in palest café au lait have willow branches delicately silhouetted on them in the manner described above. The floor covering is a deep golden coffee colored velvet. Chairs are upholstered in black satin.

The small mantel is the drollest thing imaginable. It has a leopard skin laid across its top. The head is at one end of the mantel, and the tail hangs over the other, the middle of the back lying the length of the mantel top. The left front leg and the left hind leg hang down, leaving an arch between that shows the fireplace. The other two legs are cut off.

On the mantel are a pair of gold vases and an alabaster bowl of Italian marble fruit. These seem to be ranged along the leopard's spine. Above them a round mirror is paneled to the wall. Drawn close up to the fireplace is a chaise longue that is made of black veined marble, with a tiger skin thrown over it and a bolster pillow of gold and black brocade. The lamp is a tall standard of wrought iron holding an alabaster bowl that is fitted with indirect lighting; it is garlanded with an irregular arrangement of ivy leaves.

One of the smart special types for summer wear. Made of the finest white canvas in high or Oxford models.

Shoes for every summer need

Dozens of different styles for men and boys to choose

NO matter where you go this summer you will see Keds.

These light fabric shoes are made of finely woven canvas—so cool and flexible that they are always comfortable in the hottest weather. Their springy rubber soles make them a delight to wear.

Keds are also made in many special models—ideal for every sort of work or play. There are sturdy work shoes, light gymnasium shoes, and heavy reinforced models for hiking.

An entirely new feature

Some of the newer models are made like leather shoes, with welt construction soles and firmly boxed toes. They are just the shoes you need with your white flannels, or for business wear in warm weather.

With these additions, Keds have become a complete line of canvas summer shoes—ranging from the easy, less formal tennis shoe to the latest and most fashionable styles of footwear. Last year millions of pairs of Keds were worn by men, women and children.

Good dealers everywhere carry Keds. Try on the different models. See how light they feel, and how perfectly they fit. Look for the name Keds on the sole.

For men and women	$1.50—$7.00
For children	$1.15—$4.50

Keds

The standard shoes for tennis, boating and vacation wear. Made of light canvas, in high and low models—white or brown—with black, gray or red rubber soles.

How to Use the Patterns

THE little dress with a peplum, No. 9584, is a simple, attractive design, and not difficult to make.

The skirt should be finished, in the back with a "wash" placket, which means the long strip that goes from one end to the other. This requires special attention at the end of the opening, where the turning in the strip is made, else there will be a pucker, or maybe a short space where the strip and skirt show little spaces.

To avoid poor work there, slip the seam each side of the turning point, lay the entire length out straight, and backstitch in small stitches for a space of about a half inch each side of the turn. Then, after the basting has been finished the rest of the way, the entire length can be stitched in a seam, and the turning point will be firm and smooth.

Embroidery of all kinds is still so popular as trimming it will be pretty to decorate the edge of the peplum with something of the kind. And part of the same design should be used on the neck and sleeves, and the front of the waist.

The length of the peplum can be changed to suit the figure by measuring down from the bottom all the way around the desired number of inches, but always remember the lower edge is quite circular, especially through the sides, so it will have to be carefully handled to avoid stretching.

The finish at the neck is a piece of work that will require care. The left side of the neck of the waist, from the middle back to the right edge of the front, should be finished with a facing, and the right side of the neck left with the raw edge. Then the collar is stitched together around the lower edge in a seam on the wrong side, turned right side out, and basted together in a seam near the upper edge.

Exactly in the middle of the back the collar should be clipped to the depth of a seam, say one-half inch, and the left side of the collar set into a narrow band, beginning exactly in the middle of the back and extending to the edge of the collar. Then the right half of the collar is basted to the raw neck edge, a narrow bias strip is basted on and stitched in place, and the facing hemmed down over the seam. The left side of the collar is then fastened to the dress with snaps.

No. 9348 is a good design for a house dress. The waist and skirt are cut separately—the skirt being in two pieces, with hip section and pocket in one. The skirt measures 1¾ yards around the bottom, which insures perfect ease for a working dress.

No. 9484 is an attractive model for a dress, and one that can be easily made at home. Nevr forget to apply your own measures to any new pattern you may be going to use. And be sure and lay the entire pattern on the material, exactly according to the directions given on the pattern, so as to be sure it will all come out. Frequently one can shift the pieces about on the cloth, cutting more economically by so doing.

The tabs on the waist must be lined, letting the lining extend a little above where each tab ends. Lay the right side of lining and tab together, stitch together in a narrow seam, and turn the lining to the wrong side.

The long sleeve shown in the picture is good looking, and not difficult to make. The cuff is, of course, lined and the lining stitched to the cuff around three sides—the wrist and length edges. Turn the lining to the wrong side, baste, and press.

After the sleeve seam is finished and the lower edge gathered between the notches, turn in the bottom edge of the outside of the cuff and lay in place on the sleeve according to the notches, lapping the upper cuff edge over the under, and baste and stitch.

Then hem the cuff lining down over the seam and fasten with snaps. It is necessary to be sure that when the cuff is stitched on it won't be too tight at that place, and if the material is at all heavy a loose measure should be taken. Try the sleeve on before stitching the cuff on. And in stitching the cuff and lining together the ends of the seams should be left free, so as to allow for the turning in on the lower edge.

After the sleeves are stitched into the armhole, the seam across the top of the shoulder should be laid toward the shoulder seam and hemmed to the lining for a distance of about two inches either side of the shoulder seam. This makes the sleeve lie flat on the shoulder. On thin dresses, where there is no lining, stitch through to the waist that same distance. If the seam is not fastened there it often turns down toward the arm when on, and gives an ugly appearance.

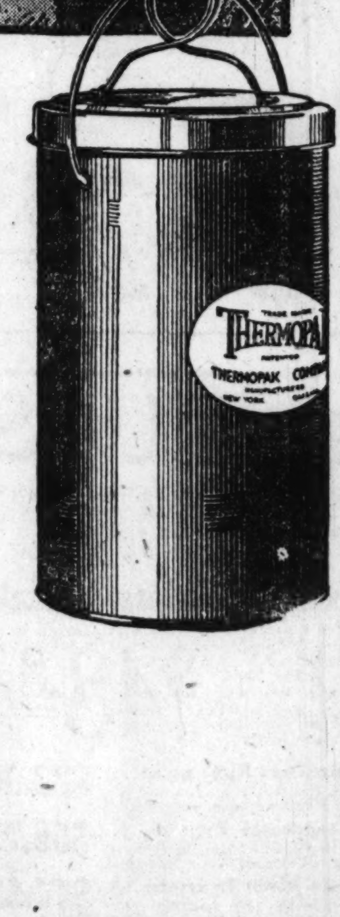
THERMOPAK

Take Ice Cream on your Outing in a Thermopak



THE Thermopak keeps liquids or solids hot or cold. Fill the inner container with ice cream at your druggist's or confectioner's. Put it in the automobile with the rest of the lunch. Carry it miles away from every source of supply. Serve it two to four hours later and find it in the same perfect condition as the moment that the dispenser packed it. If you prefer lemonade, fill the inner container with cracked ice and lemon juice. Prepare your lemonade in the distant country at your favorite spring. Depend on the Thermopak to give you cooling refreshment on your outing.

The farmer can buy ice cream in a Thermopak, carry it home and serve it as firm as when it was bought. The Thermopak replaces the old jug in the harvest fields. It brings many of the advantages of city life right into the country home.

Take ice cream, salads, cracked ice or ice cold drinks with you on your next motor trip, outing or picnic, in a Thermopak.

37th August fur sale's success is attributable primarily to the high quality of the furs—bought months ago, when the fur market was at its best, and made up unhurriedly, by skilled furriers, in the authentic modes of 1920-21. Moreover, fur prices are lower now than they will be in the Fall

The August demand for Mandel furs—larger than in any prior year—witnesses Chicago's recognition of the supreme fur values.

Flushed and Excited.

Getting off a street car, I noticed a man ahead of me carrying a new tire over his left shoulder. The man stepped down, and I made a too hasty step after him. He was tall and I am short; I stepped down and somehow my head got caught in the tire—the first thing I knew the tire was around my head, and the man was starting to push his way through the crowd trying to get on. Fearing I would choke, I screamed—the man stopped short—and the crowd made way. An onlooker helped raise the heavy tire and free my head, while I, flushed and excited, fled across to the transfer corner, where I fairly hopped on the next car in man fashion. R. K.

Not His Girl.

One night three girls and I went into a drug store to use the phone. A young woman stood next to use, apparently also waiting for the phone.

The young man who was using the phone seemed to be having a lengthy conversation, so I said to one of the girls: "I bet he's calling up his girl." The young woman standing next to us quietly remarked: "He could hardly be calling up his girl when his wife is standing right here." B. R.

Bag Was Empty.

I bought some candy and after passing it around the office I placed the remainder on my desk, telling the girl in front of me to help herself, and I turned to my work. After a little while the boss came in and I offered the candy bag to him. He looked at it and then at me, handing the bag back. I saw that the girl in front of me did help herself. L. W.

The Last Word in Paris Fashions

FRENCH CHILDREN DRESSY.

By Mary Brush Williams.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—The fashion display which I have just witnessed is almost depressing. It took place on a certain avenue in the Bois, and no person contributed to it who was over 12 years of age. Everybody wore gloves for playing in the sand, as well as wielding a racquet, and spinning a top, and guiding a hoop, and making French pastry out of sand.

The youth of France are nothing if not polite and dressy. They stop in their goat carts when they meet an acquaintance on the gravel walk and get out and shake hands with him. It looks a little queer, but O, I am not deprecating it.

If I had a child I should try to teach him manners and the languages beginning at an early age. The instinct for both begins at about the same time, and good manners can at that period be taught painlessly. If you do not plant the seeds of good manners, bad ones, like seeds, begin to sprout of their own will. But this is a fashion column and not a department of etiquette.

A long string of a person, almost like a little English girl, has just dashed past me on one of those two wheeled automobiles on which you stand with one foot and employ the other as propeller and rudder, keeping it in close touch with the sidewalk.

She wears one of those dresses of the line I used to affect out in Indiana. It was the village dressmaker's favorite model, but the French give it a twist and a chic which the banks of the Wabash do not display.

It is one of those the skirt of which is the merest ruffle, not over twelve inches long, and the blouse is as straight and uncompromising as the Flatiron building in its long line.

The French are very fond of that line for children, and during the last year grownups have toyed with it. Very often in Paris you will see advance styles on children.

Bright green was lifted without conscience from the prevailing juvenile modes of last year, and is now at every watering place in France.

Tricot is a favorite material. It is so very elastic to play in. The girl on the right displays the prevailing silhouette for her type and years.

She is done all in gray with wide trousers that don't show the dirt readily, and she digs in the sand all day without doing any particular damage to her clothes.

The style is duplicated often in knitted costumes which would stand the rough wear of even American youngsters for many a day. This little girl wears a gray tricot bonnet.

Her companion is dressier than she. He is turned out entirely in white tricot, with pockets that stand out wide when you put bricks and things in them, and they give just the silhouette that Renée strove to produce with her wide flaring hip pockets on her most popular tailored suit.

The little girl of the second sketch is awfully smart in her marquise hat of gray with a black band round it and a bow in front. She has collar and cuffs of seal and a coat of gray woolen material with a design in black embroidery running down sleeves and round chest.

All little American girls please copy in their fall coats if they wish to be "stylish" according to the French mode.

The little girl of the third sketch was the smartest thing in Bois, and she knew it. That which she carries in her right hand is a ball in a bag and it isn't much good as a plaything, but it is so very chic as a plaything, and that is why she has it.

Her skirt is of red plaid crossed with a green line, and her coat is black velvet, as is her dashing little hat.

The boy, her brother, wears a sailor's coat of blue chinchilla cloth, with brass buttons and a big collar.

Bright Sayings of the Children

A new baby had just arived at a home where there were quite a family of children.

An aunt came to see the new baby, and, while she was there, she asked one of the children if she could take Harold, who is about 3 years old, home with her.

The little girl said: "No, I think you had better take the baby, because he wouldn't know he was being taken, while Harold would." I. M. S.

Freddie was visiting us. He had never ridden behind a horse. One day father said he'd drive Freddie into town with him, and, as the flies were very bad, he put a heavy fly net on our old horse.

As we were very busy on the farm at the time, father drove hime quickly, taking the harness and net drag to one side.

Upon seeing the harness falling, Freddie piped up in a frightened voice: "Oh, Uncle Harry, look! Jack's dress is coming off." E. H.

We keep a store. My nephew was visiting us, and delighted in being allowed to sell.

One afternoon business was slow, and he was standing in back of the counter anxious to make a sale.

Finally he became impatient, and said to me: "Go and call in the customers." H. S.

Donald was taken by his parents to a neighboring state, where they spent the winter in a hotel. Upon their return home in the spring Donald was found one day wandering from room to room, gazing at familiar objects. Finally he sat down and said: "Well, I have found my home." L. F.

Joseph was told that if he threw stones at the new buildings the policeman would get him. One evening a friend of his father, who was a policeman, came up to the house in full uniform. Joseph, thinking it was his father coming home from work, ran to open the door. When he saw it was a policeman he said, "What do you want me for? I never threw any stones." E. G.

Good neighbors had just finished taking Byron and his sister for a long ride in their new auto.

Sister gallantly assumed the duty of thanking for the ride thus:

"We have enjoyed this so much, I'm sure," and turning to Byron: "You liked the ride, didn't you, Byron? Now we must do something nice for Mr. and Mrs. R. for this nice ride."

"Well," piped up Byron. "I know; we'll go again." F. M. W.

Charles had taken a trip with his uncle, and upon his return home was telling his mother of his wonderful trip on the train. "And I slept on the top of the train and had my shoes painted by the porter," he said. J. G. C.

Sailor Superstitions

by DORIS BLAKE

ONE of the best known sailor superstitions is that whistling at sea stirs up strong winds.

If an albatross or any bird lights upon the deck of a vessel superstitious sailors look for trouble before the end of the voyage.

To see seagulls flock in the harbor denotes a coming storm at sea.

Another seagull weather version is that if a seagull flies across the vessel between the mainmast and the mizzenmast she will have fair winds both outward and homeward bound; but if the bird flies between the foremast and mainmast, head winds and storms will prevail during the entire voyage.

Swallows and sparrows lighting on or following a ship bring signs of disaster, say the old sea salts.

If cuttlefish swim on the tops of the waves, it is a sign of a storm.

No sailor will shoot at or kill a bird for fear of destruction to his ship.

Porpoises foretell tempestuous weather, as Shakespeare said: "Nay, master said I not as much when I saw the porpus, how he bounced and tumbled? . . . They never come but I look to be washed."

Sailors believe it unlucky to kill the birds called "Mother Carey's chickens." Mother Carey is a corruption of "Mater Cara" (the blessed Virgin), and these birds are petrels, which are called the sailor's friends, as they give warning of an approaching storm. The legend is also that each of these birds contains the soul of a dead seaman.

Cats are unlucky to have on board ship.

Rats leaving a ship indicate impending disaster.

A baby born at sea is good luck for the ship.

The first sailor to sight land after a long voyage will be the first to prosper.

Earrings the old pirate wore carried a superstition. Without them he would have had bad luck.

The Chinese painted an eye on the bow of the vessel to help it see its way.

"Three preachers and a white horse will sink a ship" is another superstition.

Nearly all boats carry a horseshoe for luck. It is nailed to the stern post as a rule. A horseshoe has been a fetish of English sailors ever since Lord Nelson nailed one to the mast of the "Victory."

Break a mirror on shipboard—and worse luck than breaking it on land is threatened.

Eggs seem to be weighted with bad luck to the superstitious sailor.

Sailors all over the world hate to have the dead on board.

Odd numbers have a peculiar meaning of luck to sailors. This belief is shown in the number of guns fired in salutes.

The prejudice against carrying women on merchant ships and men-of-war extends to feminine names for ships, sailors believing a ship bearing a woman's name is unlucky.

An accident or death in connection with building or launching a ship casts a shadow of ill luck over it.

A Saturday's moon is a sailor's curse.

It was once believed that a ship could not sink with a royal personage on board.

The roaring echoes in a conch shell are believed to be the accumulated sound of the roaring of the sea.

The flying Dutchman is a phantom ship seen in stormy weather off the Cape of Good Hope, and thought to forebode ill luck. The Sir Walter Scott legend is that it was a vessel laden with precious metal, but, a horrible murder having been committed on board, the plague broke out among the crew, and no port would allow the ship to enter, so it was doomed to float about like a ghost and never enjoy rest.

The antiquity of the belief in mermaids and mermen is beyond finding out. It can be traced from age to age through every nation. Shakespeare alludes to the superstition once common among sailors that to see a mermaid swimming away from a vessel foreboded disaster.

"A rainbow in the morning is the sailor's warning.
A rainbow at night is the sailor's delight."

HIS PRECIOUS TIE.

MY brother, Hugh, has always had a very secretive nature, but several years ago I made the discovery that he had a love affair. I was much elated over this discovery because he was an avowed girl hater.

It happened through my dislike for a certain tie that he insisted upon wearing day after day. It was a dingy affair, evidently hand made, judging from the irregularity of the stitches. One day at breakfast, when I thought that he had been wearing it for several weeks, I remarked, "I'm thinking of buying you a nice new tie if you will only throw away that awful thing you are wearing." At this sisterly attack my brother grew suddenly red and exclaimed, "Well, this tie suits me all right, and it's none of your affair anyway." As I stared at him in amazement that he should be so touchy about a shabby old tie he jumped up and departed for his work in the city, leaving his breakfast practically untouched. This puzzled me, but did not deter me from searching for his tie the first chance I had when he was not wearing it.

We were having guests for the week end and I did not propose having that impossible tie showing up every time my brother did. I went into his room and rummaged around and came upon a large picture of a very pretty girl. "Well," I thought, "so he has a girl and she must have made the atrocity!" So I left his precious tie untouched. not wishing to disturb her handiwork, and inwardly pleased that my brother had fallen from his lofty scorn of femininity.

But when my brother came home that night an aureole of tragedy seemed to envelop him. Never have I seen such a human thunder cloud. Suspecting that something had happened to mar his affair, I wished that I could help him in some way, but knew that asking him would be fatal to his already broken peace of mind and would only make him withdraw further into his shell. So I refrained.

However, I did go to look at the picture again, thinking I might gain some clew to the unknown girl, but the picture was no longer there. In the freshly cleaned grate I discovered scraps of burned cardboard. This convinced me that Hugh was suffering from an affair of the heart. And that ended my detective work.

Months passed, but my brother's ill humor seemed to increase. Then one day, while we were all at dinner, the telephone rang. I answered, and a girl's voice asked for my brother. He answered in short, broken sentences. then dashed madly out of the house, with an explanation to no one. The whole family was greatly astonished, for as a rule Hugh is painfully formal. But it was destined to be even more surprised, for in about an hour an ecstatic Hugh came back with the girl of the picture, who was even more charming than that picture. When we were all assembled he announced that the wedding would take place the next day.

It seemed that the girl was his employer's daughter, and when they met it was love at first sight. But unfortunately she had become engaged to another man, whom she felt it her duty to marry. So poor Hugh was turned down, and hence his glumness. But fortunately she found that she could not, as time went on, be happy without Hugh. So they were married and are radiantly happy to this day.

This department appears every day in The Daily Tribune.

THE MELON FAMILY.

THE watermelon is a portable mineral spring. Ninety-five per cent of this melon's total weight is flavored water. The cantaloupe is watery, too, and as much a summer breakfast fruit as grapefruit is a winter beginner for that first meal of the day. It is far and away the more wholesome of the two for that meal. Both of these melons are dessert fruits, as is the honey dew and casaba and the old fashioned muskmelon.

The casaba melon can be used in any salad where cucumber is acceptable. The citron watermelon cannot be classed as a "summer beverage," the designation anciently applied to all melons. Candied, it is next to indispensable in the richest fruit cakes and highly desirable in any fruit cake—white or dark or half way between these two.

The melons constitute a ready made dessert that will keep for some days. Of late we have not only desired our watermelons ice cold but iced colder; therefore the pulp has been frozen as a plain ice or sherbet, or little balls of watermelon have been served on a bed of ice.

But some people think the freezing lessens flavor and sweetness. Of course, we remedy the latter fault, if we choose, by adding sugar or, better, a sirup. One cup of sugar is sufficient for two quarts of watermelon pulp.

Newer Species on Winter Market.

The watermelon is preëminently a hot weather fruit, but some of the newer comers are good for most of the year if sweet, and we may, like the Chinese, eat melons in winter quite as much as in summer. They make good "stover." Excuse this word of the cow yard, which seems to me a nicer one for coarse haylike stuffs than roughage. Melons as stover are like bran and contribute their fine mineral water to the diet besides.

Watermelon is a tropical fruit, and in the tropics gets its cooling from the night chilled ground. Its picnic popularity has extended over many years, to my personal knowledge, and I believe it safer to eat it at a picnic when cooled in the ground, preferably near a spring, than when iced.

There are people who cannot with comfort or safety eat much iced watermelon. I myself have "taken cold" [a summer cold of the hay fever variety] from eating iced watermelon, and having printed this fact once, I heard from others who had been similarly afflicted. One young woman wrote cheerfully that she could not eat watermelon without "sneezing her head off."

Moral: Eat a small and cooling quantity, but do not refrigerate yourself with it.

Melon Production Increasing.

Our national melon appetite, fortunately, is not being fashioned diminishingly. The market development of melons seems to grow bigger every year with a sort of Imperial Valley enthusiasm.

Fifty years ago, and even much later than that, the melons for our large cities had to be raised in the vicinity, and the names of the growers were known. A writer that far back said that there were then but two species of the fruit cultivated successfully: "The rough or embroidered coated is called the muskmelon, and those with a smooth thick skin are called watermelons."

Though there were but these two species, men seem to have grown almost as many varieties then as we do now. Nutmegs and cantaloupes were classed, with others, as muskmelons. We have evidently lost some of the pleasant watermelons.

There was the orange watermelon which was "cut through the skin like an orange, and the rind taken off without breaking the pulp, then divided by cutting between the lobes, when it will be found delicious eating."

There was also an apple pie watermelon, a Japanese species, which with a little lemon juice made a pie hardly distinguishable from the real apple pie. Very likely it was the same thing as we find in the Chinese markets all winter, for the statement is made that "it will keep well all winter."

How to Judge Melons.

In the book from which this information is taken it says: "To judge watermelons, when ripe and fit to eat, they should, when pressing them between the hands and knees, make a sort of cracking noise, and, when knocked on by the knuckles, will emit a sort of hollow sound, but never by their great weight. It, however, requires practice to judge them properly."

Judging our melons of any sort is rather a serious business, but I would have all customers keep their hands off melons until they get them into their own homes. Let the salesman pick out your melons for you, and hold him responsible for doing it well. The waste of melons which in the end customers have to pay for—the considerate as well as the inconsiderate—will be slight as compared with that when every buyer handles and rejects the most of a crate to get one breakfast melon for herself and John.

Experts who have examined these shoes tell us we are selling them too cheap. "At $3.95 the public won't appreciate them," they told us. "Look—exquisite satin slippers, beautiful patent leathers, vici kid, soft as velvet—the very cream of the shoe business, to be sold below the price of coarse work shoes. People won't believe it. They'll think there's something wrong with 'em. You can get $5 or $6 a pair just as easy as $3.95," so they said. "Probably you are right," we answered, "but that's not the way we are doing business. We bought them low and we'll sell them low. Every woman who buys will know she has the bargain of a lifetime, and every shoe will be a walking advertisement for Rothschilds as long as the woman wears it. We are here to make FRIENDS as well as to make SALES." And we mean what we say.

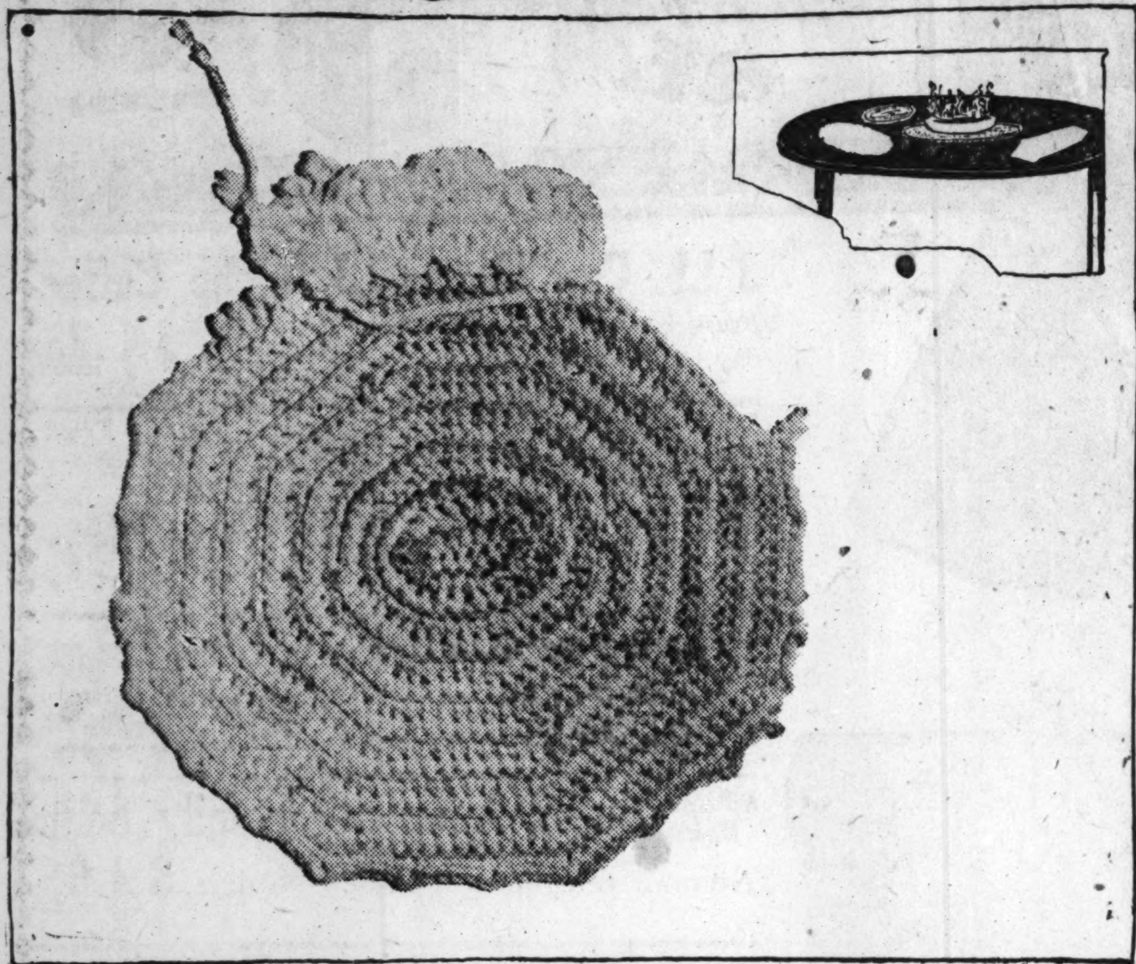
Practical and Fancy Needle Work

By Clotilde



CROCHETED TABLE MATS.

SO MANY requests for the directions for making crocheted table mats have been received I am going to give them today and hope no one will have any difficulty in following them.

There are quite a number of stitches that may be used, but the old fashioned way is what is given today. A heavy white crochet cord, No. 4 or 6, and a No. 7 crochet needle will be needed, and, of course, one can make the mats any size desired, and round or oblong.

There are generally both round and oblong in a set, and the sizes usually run 4, 7, and 9 inches for the round ones, and 7 by 11 and 9 by 14 for the larger oblong ones. They can be entirely done, with the exception of the border, with the single crochet stitch, or one or more rows of some open work design can be worked in as the mat progresses. Then, while most women probably prefer making these mats entirely in the white cotton, some may like a color introduced into the border.

For the larger mats make a chain of stitches measuring 2½ inches for one and 3½ inches for the other.

After the chain is the right length, crochet entirely around the chain, using the single crochet stitch, and going into each stitch of the chain once on each side. The only exception to this is at each end, when three stitches are taken in the same place.

Now, continue with this single crochet stitch until the mat is ready for the border. After you have gone around the beginning chain, and have put three stitches in each end, continue around again, making one stitch, then taking two in the same place, then continuing around until you come to the opposite end, when you will put two stitches into the second stitch from the group of three.

Then take one stitch in the next place, then three at the end as before. The next time around there will be two single stitches before the two stitches are put in the same hole; and so on, always going entirely around with the same number of stitches between the widening places.

The back of the stitch must always be taken up in this crocheting, for that is what makes the ribbed appearance.

Some crochet these mats around and around, and others, after going entirely around, turn and go back each time. This makes a little different kind of rib, and is merely a matter of choice.

For the round mats you start with a chain of two stitches, and make ten or twelve stitches in the first of the chain and then join it to the remaining stitch. This gives it a round start.

The next time around widen in every other stitch, taking two in every widening place. This gives six places to widen, the same as in the oval mats. Each time around there will be an added stitch between the widening places.

The border consists of two rows of shells. These are made with the double crochet stitch, putting four or six (as you prefer) of these stitches into the same hole. These make one "shell." It is a good idea to make one chain stitch in the middle of each group, as this gives a better place for the second row of the border.

"Dear Miss Blake: I was going with a girl for nearly two years, and one day she acted very queer. I went out with her a few times after that, and she treated me very cool. I would like your advice on winning her back.

"H. M."

I am afraid her love was of most fleeting nature, H. M. But you know the old story about the street cars and the woman. Don't run after her, for there will be another along in a minute.

Ask Him to Your House.

Dear Miss Blake: I love a young man very dearly, and meet him most every evening at my cousin's house. My cousin doesn't care to go out with me any more, because she knows I like this young man and I believe she likes him, too. Is it right of me to go to my cousin's house and meet him there and receive his attention?

IRENE.

Now, that would be rubbing salt on the open wound. If you are interested in him invite him to your own house. Don't expect your cousin to entertain him for your amusement.

Do You Know that in an Alaska the circulation is so perfect and the air so dry that you can place matches and a crock of salt side by side in the provision chamber close up under the ice and both the salt and the matches will remain bone dry.

This perfect circulation plus the "cubed" cork and "confined" air WALLS, the most perfect refrigerator insulator known, make the Alaska incomparable as a food preserver and ice saver. Ask your dealer for a demonstration.

For the Best—Buy a Seven-Wall Cork
Insulated Alaska

How an Alaska-Iced Lunch Means a Successful Outing

FOOD kept in an Alaska Cork Insulated Refrigerator is dependably good and stays so.

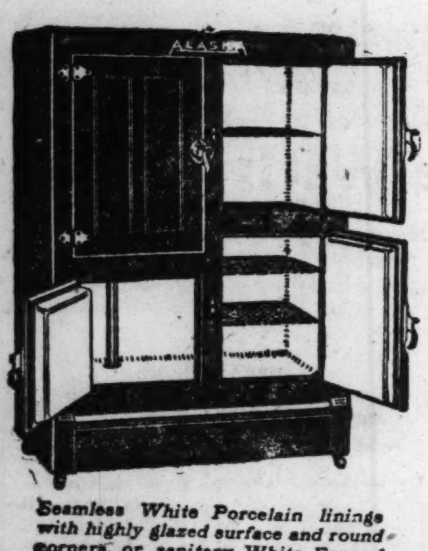
One of these fine modern refrigerators keeps your food protected from dirt, dust, germs and insects in winter—and from heat and moldiness in summer.

But besides getting protection, when you buy an Alaska you get refrigeration at the lowest cost ever offered. Owners say the Alaska breaks all records in daily ice-saving, and Alaska owners number into the millions.

This Alaska supremacy is due to the "cubed" cork and "confined" air walls. Against heat and cold, these walls make the most perfect barrier, the most perfect insulation known to refrigerator engineers. With tight-locking doors, air-tight joints and top, and uniform circulation throughout, they make the Alaska incomparable.

Yet for Alaska refrigerating service and economy you pay no more than for the ordinary refrigerator. All sizes—all prices—splendid construction throughout—linings of seamless, round-cornered Porcelain, or of White Enamel — sanitary, durable, easy to clean, incomparable.

Call at your dealer's for an Alaska demonstration. Send for attractive booklet.



Seamless White Porcelain linings with highly glazed surface and round corners, or sanitary White Enamel linings make Alaskas easy to keep sweet, clean and immaculate.

The food compartments are practically odorless and because of the wonderful dryness of the cold circulating air, they can be kept so with a minimum of cleansing effort.

The Theaters

THE old Whitney opera house in Van Buren street, which has been known of late as the Central Music hall and has been used only intermittently by minor conventions and an occasional recital, is to return next month to its former state as a continuously lighted playhouse. It will be known henceforth as the Shubert-Central, and will be reopened on Sept. [illegible] by Miss Nance O'Neil in "The Passion Flower," translated from the Spanish of Jacinto Benavente. The author is a one time recipient of the Nobel prize for literature; several of his plays have been produced in New York and at Harvard, but this will be the first presentation of his work in Chicago.

The Republican national committee announces that Al Jolson has "accepted" the presidency of the Harding and Coolidge Theatrical league and will direct its activities from an office in the committee's New York headquarters. The league is arranging for Harding and Coolidge speeches between the acts in hundreds of theaters throughout the country, for the placing of phonograph records in theater lobbies, for street parades by actors, and what not. Some time next week Jolson will lead a pilgrimage of actors and actresses to Marion, O., where they will offer their support to Senator Harding and see what he wants them to do.

A. H. Woods vouchsafes the information that he has in his files to date [illegible] letters suggesting names for his new theater at Dearborn and Randolph streets. He will spend the greater part of next month in Chicago, he says, watching the building go up and trying to decide what to call it. The playhouse will not be named the McCormick.

Miss Doris Keane, it is announced, will sail for America next month to arrange for the production of "The Splendid Sinner," by Preston Gibson, in which she will appear this season.

The Palace Music hall, closed for the last two weeks to permit the laying of a new stage floor, opens its fall season tomorrow.

A new prologue has been prepared for "A Man of the People," the Lincoln drama at the Princess, to replace the depressing deathbed scene which nobody seemed to like and which, the author has agreed, the play will be better off without.

When Fiske O'Hara comes to the Olympic tonight he will bring with him his usual budget of new songs. What they are like is indicated by the titles—"Springtime in Mayo," "Top o' the Morning," "A Bit o' the Brogue," "The Lilac Tree."

"Ladies' Night," the new Avery Hopwood farce presented in New York last week by A. H. Woods, did not find high favor with Alexander Woollcott of the Times. Mr. Woollcott summarizes his impression thus:

"It is a somewhat laborious farce, dealing with a man who blunders into a Turkish bath on ladies' night. In preparation for this great climax and in the gradually subsiding excitement which follows, the playwrights (one Charlton Andrews is implicated as coauthor) fairly wallow in their opportunity. They gloat. You can hear them gloat. In the midst of it all wanders that expert farceur, John Cumberland, gravely, quietly, conscientiously at work. Roaring and swirling and pounding around him is a frequently decorative company, of which nearly all the members shout, scream, yell, and howl quite unbelievably."

Washington, D. C., has plans under way for the promotion of a great building to house a producing theater, a children's theater, a concert hall, and a "green room." The recently formed organization, which has the undertaking in hand, proposes to begin operations shortly with the presentation of four new plays at the capital. Three women—Miss Katharine S. Brown, Mrs. Glenna Smith Tinnin, and Mrs. Mary Holland Kinkaid—are the moving spirits in the venture.

Golf as an item of stage interest is not to be further ignored if Martin Beck has his way. He approached Harry Vardon and Edward Ray, the great British professionals, last week with an offer to appear in vaudeville during the coming season, not to act, but to give exhibitions of grip, stance, swing, drive, putting, etc., in the two-a-day. Mr. Beck suspects that golf enthusiasts perhaps will be as much interested in improving their form by attendance at the theater as in the dubious pleasure of trooping over the links with the gallery at the infrequent matches in which these players appear.

Folks who insist on seeing "Aphrodite" at the Auditorium on the opening night, and from the best seats, will be taxed $11 apiece for the privilege. To discourage the speculators, who are said to have received as much as $200 a seat at the New York premiere, not more than six tickets, the management says, will be sold to any one person unless credentials for bona fide theater parties are shown.

J. J. Rosenthal, manager of the Woods theater; Mrs. Rosenthal (Kathryn Osterman), and a party of thirty other Chicagoans are off for New York this week to be present at the eastern debut of Jack Osterman, whose activities in vaudeville have been confined hitherto to the hinterlands west of the Alleghenies.

Three companies will act in "The Bird of Paradise" in Great Britain this season. A fourth is scheduled to present the play in Paris in October or November.

The run of "The Sweetheart Shop" at the Illinois, which treminated last night, equals in length the longest run for a musical comedy in the history of that playhouse, a like eighteen weeks' record having been made there by Montgomery and Stone in "Chin Chin." The management reports that 310,000 people saw the play at the Illinois, and expects that several thousands will be added to this total during the coming two weeks at the Colonial.

The Drama League of America announces a ten day institute for training community and recreational workers, with demonstrations at the municipal pier, beginning Tuesday. Among the subjects treated will be pageantry, drama for children, costuming, stagecraft, and folk dancing.

George Arliss will appear in New York on Sept. 9 in Booth Tarkington's new comedy, "Poldekin." The play has to do with a Russian bolshevist and his conversion to Americanism.

Miss Margaret Lawrence will act no longer in "Wedding Bells" after the termination of its Chicago engagement. She will go to New York to begin rehearsals in a new play by Roi Cooper Megrue, which is to be produced in October.

A musical version of "The Road to Yesterday," to be called "The Dream Girl," will be presented in October. Rida Johnson Young will be the author and the music will be Victor Herbert's.

Mme. Nazimova is reported to be considering a return to the stage. If she does, she probably will appear in the Maude Fulton comedy "The Humming Bird," which is now running successfully in Los Angeles.

So many of Mr. Ziegfeld's coryphees have been decoyed to the films in recent years, with a proportionate loss to Mr. Ziegfeld, that the manager has caused all recent contracts to contain clauses barring motion picture work.

George W. Lederer proposes to launch two new stars next season. One will be Johnny Dooley and the other Hal Skelly.

"The Americans in France" Is Well Done Propaganda

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—M. Eugene Brieux is a fair minded as well as a diplomatic propagandist. When he wrote "The Americans in France," which is the first thoughtful play of the preliminary theater season to reach Broadway, he frankly wanted the French people to feel the sting of a lash wielded over the backs of their Yankee visitors. But he did not neglect to give the Americans an occasional love tap with the butt of the whip.

Thus in warning his own people that they would do well to observe the ways and open their minds to the suggested reforms of the Americans, with the intention of following Yankland into the procession of progressive nations, he incidentally warns the Americans that if they were a little less cocksure in their attitude and a little less boastful of their youth and their strength while in the presence of their elders, if not their betters, it would help considerably.

Speaking as a Frenchman he assures the Americans that his countrymen are grateful beyond words for the payment of the Lafayette debt at a time when France needed it most; that they have had occasion to admire extravagantly

By Mae Tinée.

YOU will find this a colorful sermon on gossip and the evils that follow in its train. Slanderous tongues furnish the subject matter proper. Their waggle is about a young wife, her middle aged husband, and a young poet, protégé of the husband, who has found refuge in their home.

The young wife adores her husband. The poet adores him also. The husband loves them both, and a happy family they would have been had busy surmisers of the outside been content to attend to their own affairs. That they were not is the reason for jealousy, bloodshed, and unhappiness.

Miss Rubens is a "different" sort of heroine. There is a pleasing melancholy about her gayest moments. I'm afraid we will have to cast her as a tragedienne always, if we will be doing the right thing by her. She has beautiful eyes, an appealing smile, and great charm of manner. You would pity her, somehow, no matter what she did.

Montagu Love furnishes fine support. He's a virile sort of a chap—older than most of the screen favorites—and an actor who knows what he's doing all the time.

Gaston Glass, as the poet, is slim, well bred, and pleasing after a delicate boyish fashion. He'll never take the world by storm, but ladies will love him, just the same.

"The World and His Wife" is splendidly photographed, and has been well handled by the director.

George Beban was recently made mayor of Oakland, Cal.—for a day! (Foooled you, didn't I?) Reason for the coronation or whatever you call it was merely to show appreciation of Mr. Beban's visit to that city. (Ain't it grand to be popular?)

Hadst heard that Ferdinand Pinney Earle was to create and direct a new screen version of "The Rubaiyat"?

"The Americans in France" Is Well Done Propaganda

the new world efficiency and courage and unbeatable determination of the American armies, both as fighters and builders.

France smiles and applauds the virtues of its younger ally, but France also suggests that it is just possible the Yanks are still a little crude, a little overpatronizing, a little too confident of knowing it all, to make the biggest kind of a hit or accomplish the most good as the agent of admittedly needed reforms.

And then, trying to get the American attitude, he turns to his neighbors and reminds them that there are a lot of things they had better be learning tout suite: First, that they are more or less dead from the ears up, to employ an Americanism; that their hearts are good and their sentiment touching, but that neither good hearts nor sentimentalists ever get anywhere; and that while ancestor and tradition worship have their good points, if they are carried to extremes they can practically kill a nation in a few hundred years.

"If your ancestors believed as you do," the American army captain says to the proud French girl who is protesting against the desecration of the Charvet acres during the installation of an irrigation system that is to make them productive as well as ornamental, "if your honored ancestors believed as you do you would still be living in a cave instead of a chateau." And the point strikes home.

In the end the propagandist compromises. A Chicago nurse who is about to take a young Frenchman to husband and bring him to America to live his own life weakens when she sees how much more he is needed in France and agrees to stay there with him; and the American captain, having put through his thoroughly American project of tearing up the Charvet estate that it may be used to the glory of the Charvet descendants rather than as an honor to their ancestors, decides also to stay on the other side and marry the proud spinster of the Charvet family, dowerless though she confesses herself to be.

Leo Ditrichstein bought the American rights to "The Americans in France" when the play was first presented in Paris, and has both engaged and directed the American cast. His choice of a leading woman is excellent, Blanche Yurka giving a nicely restrained performance as the French girl. Wayne Arey, representing America as a captain in the A. E. F. hailing from Texas, is less satisfactory but fairly representative. Frank Kingson, Harriet Duke, Franklin George, and several others assist.

"The Charm School," written by Alice Duer Miller and Robert Milton, the stage manager, from Mrs. Miller's story of the same name, is 80 per cent charming and 20 per cent artificial and trying on the patience of hot weather playgoers.

The dialogue is bright, the girls are beauties, the men, led by Sam Hardy and Rapley Holmes, are competent, and the settings attractive. But the little play breaks rather badly after its charming second act, and so predictions as to its future cannot be made with any certainty. Minnie Dupree, playing the first part of consequence she has had on Broadway since "The Road to Yesterday," quite ran away with the individual hits of a cast in which Marie Carroll and Arnold Daly's daughter, Blythe, are prominent.

"Scrambled Wives" is a new farce by the authors of "Nighty Night," Adelaide Marshall and Martha M. Stanley. It concerns that familiar duo—the divorced couple—and extracts its complications from the desire of both parties to the separation to keep it secret.

Despite its conventionality, however, there is good fun in many of the "Scrambled Wives" situations, and its first audiences have been quite pleased with it. Juliette Day is the attractive divorcée and Roland Young, whose local following is large and loyal, plays the perturbed ex-husband, a blundering incompetent, with great skill.

Salient Points of Our Summer Opera; Hopes for Future

By Eric De Lamarter.

MORE froth is written about opera than about any other kind of artistic effort; a fact not surprising, of course, when you remember that opera is compounded with a greater percentage of froth than any other sort of art. Every one of us has his pet theory as to how the Sacred Cow could be made to give milk in return for expensive adoration; but, if any one of us were to be challenged to a demonstration, we'd intone a scream for help from Mr. Eckstein or Mr. Johnston.

But let's name over to ourselves this morning some of the surface aspects of Ravinia Park's lyric theater, and see if we can discover what "makes the wheels go 'round?" When we decide Mr. Eckstein may rise up and tell us that we're all wrong, and know nothing about it. But a close mouthed man is he, and doubtless will say as little afterward as before.

At any rate, we have in our suburb an unique specimen in the summer opera. With the right sort of support and administration it ought to become a thing unique in the world of opera, not only in our land. For half the usual fee you may hear the feature points of almost any standard work, without the hours of "padding" so prevalent in much of the classic repertory. This is a point which will be mentioned later.

It would be difficult to maintain a higher grade of performance than we have here. No better singers would be available in most of the cases under discussion, and any real money spent in addition would do little more than buy greater aureoles. No better orchestra could be found, and the conductors and stage management continue to do wonders under their conditions of work.

Now as to the psychology of the audience's side of the footlights, we beg to suggest that the absence of starched shirt front and plug hat make the men of these congregations much more contented with their presence. It was amusing Thursday night to note with what promptness the audience followed the suggestion of the stage—you remember how persuasively Miss Easton toyed with her cigaret in "The Secret of Suzanne"? and scratched the surreptitious match. And always is there fresh air blowing through the shed. In short, art at this market does exactly what art was designed to do, in its primitive aspects: It distracts, rests, uplifts, touches with the priceless gilding of forgetfulness the wearing actualities of life.

There is none of the winter's tension and hurry in this sort of a day. You step aboard your pushmobile, after a leisurely dinner, and you step out of it after a couple of hours' diversion, painless and negligee. The whiles your chauffeur has been amusing himself with "the bones" beyond the gate.

That your ear has been hearing at least one foreign language from the singers' tongues, and sometimes two or three at a sitting, has not annoyed you up to this date. When you cannot understand the text it is real opera—if you could comprehend every nuance of the sung word, it would be merely "who told that chap he could write a libretto?" or "what a foolish book it is, after all," And that, also, is the consecrated patter of opera in our land.

Did it ever strike you that this very aberration is the fundamental reason for the continuance of our lyric drama in its original language? It is rooted in the years of training we have had, the assurances of our imported teachers that "over there" is the real land of creative, interpretative, and appreciative artistry. This foolishness will continue, too, until some librettist and composer creates a success, thereby convincing the scoffing business man and his culture hungry wife that opera is, first of all, "a good show," and not a more or less tedious aspect of polite society.

These, then, are the salient points of this al fresco opera—the tariff, the repertory, the standard of excellence, the lazy freedom of the audience, the assurance that it is the real thing from the fact of its incomprehensibility; and we have hinted that the omission of yards and yards of "padding" that the works performed may be within a reasonable time limit, has brightened up almost any of the long winded classics—excepting "Carmen," which is the most nearly pure gold throughout of any of them—so that our racial desire for swift action and compact subject matter is ministered unto effectviely.

What do these fact foretell? They foretell absolutely nothing. But certain of us, who think that we have thought exhaustively upon such topics, are convinced that upon such a basis an institution [not a market] could be built solidly, which should serve as the most natural medium of art expression for our race. For, look you! girl and music material is the very vital, and the largest part of our theater.

Our theater is far from dead, despite the fact that many of its overlords yell periodically for the oxygen tanks; there are convulsive kicks of life here and there—though you'll note that the member doing the kicking invariably is a feminine specimen, John Barrymore excepted. And of what more is opera compounded?

What matters it that variant of the valiant, antique mother-in-law joke was missed utterly the other night because it was sprung in Italian? One of these days it will be a standby of our English opera, as it always has been a concrete buttress of vaudeville. And it is a wager, open to all, that our vast land will have raised up companions for our two lonely established opera institutions by that time. For we'll be buying a "good show" instead of a polyglot aural puzzle.

AEOLIAN-VOCALION
Style 720 Price $285

THE instrument shown at the left is the famous Style 720 Aeolian-Vocalion, price $285. Many people consider this the most beautiful of any of the regular Upright Vocalion line. It has a pure, full tone, of great power and richness. Its volume may be beautifully modified in two ways; by the wonderful Graduola, with which you may graduate the flow of melody as you will, or by the Volunome—an ingenious device for setting the Vocalion to play at "Piano," "Forte," etc., until a change in volume is desired.

The superior Vocalion Automatic Stop, the famous Vocalion Universal Tone Arm for playing all records, and eight finest quality record albums are included in the splendid equipment of this Vocalion.

Shown above is Period Vocalion number 1495, price $310, designed in the Gothic Windsor manner—one of the sixteen handsome Period Models that have attracted such wide attention. Like its prototype, the Windsor chair, the Gothic Windsor Vocalion will harmonize with any style of furnishing, and will impart to the room in which it is used that same attractive atmosphere of the long ago.

Period Vocalions are all equipped with the Graduola, with the Universal Tone Arm, and the Vocalion Automatic Stop, and in addition they contain a new and most convenient record filing device. In choosing either of these Vocalions, you may feel confident that you are securing a phonograph of highest quality—superior in tone, in appearance, and richer in special features than any other phonograph on the market.

How Miss Sterling became a better file clerk—

She was a bright, clever girl and she was ambitious. But she had really never had a chance to make good.

She had taken the place of the regular file clerk who had left to get married. She had taken it without any special training, or in fact without any training at all. It had been hard to keep things running smoothly. Too many letters were being lost or mislaid.

One day Miss Sterling sat down to think it over. Finally, she made a decision. She was going to study filing—she was going to know more about it than anybody else in the office.

She went about it in the right way. She took a course at the Illinois School of Filing. She learned the fundamental principles that underlie all filing systems.

How the skies brightened! Miss Sterling wasn't guessing any more. She knew! There were no more lost letters—no impatient executives.

Naturally, everybody noticed the improvement in the Filing Department. Miss Sterling noticed it, too, in her Friday pay envelope.

Today she is Filing Supervisor and earning more than $30 a week.

She puts it this way:

"Every file clerk and in fact every girl who wants to better her position ought to study filing—just as a physician studies medicine or a lawyer studies law. The work is pleasant and it holds a wonderful future for bright, ambitious girls and women.

"The Illinois School of Filing is owned and managed by Library Bureau. They teach you not only the theory of filing, but also give a lot of actual practice in all kinds of filing systems.

"This school is located at 116 S. Michigan Ave., and the principal is Miss Gladys C. Bridges. Drop in to see her some day."

MRS GEORGE KURWIN GAUFF PHOTO BY BLOOM

The engagement is announced of Miss Ruth Rendleman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Rendleman of Cairo, Ill., to Dr. Frank Walls Young of the Hyde Park hotel. Miss Rendleman is a junior at Northwestern university. Dr. Young, who is a son of J. M. Young of New York and a nephew of Dr. Frank X. Walls of Chicago, was a captain in the British army medical service during the war.

Mrs. Paul L. Feyresen of 812 Montrose boulevard announces the marriage of her daughter, Pauline Helen, to George Kurwin Gauff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin D. Gauff of 430 Roslyn place.

One of Chicago's Coolest Summers Draws Near Close

By Mme. X.

LIKE the buzz saw in a Michigan lumber mill the August locust cuts the hot summer noontide stillness. Ye gods and little fishes! Did ever a summer rush so fast as this one has? Already the foliage is getting that haggard, middle aged look which precedes the coming end of this lovely season and the advent of the time when we may expect winter's blasts, coal famines and colds in the head. That most unwelsome of flowers, the goldenrod, is in thick bloom along the wayside, lying in wait for the luckless hayfeverite.

Of course, there is still the possibility of a long, hot September before us, a period of fierce, southwest winds, blazing days and stifling nights to counterbalance the cool summer that has been our portion up to now. Such a summer preceded such a September the year of the famous Chicago fire, say the records. Fortunately ours is no longer a city of wood, but one of steel and stone, so we may safely face a scorching spell of weather without fear that history will repeat itself.

Women Active in Coming Election.

The coming presidential campaigns are looming up on the horizons of even the most indifferent of us. For the first time in our history women will be an important factor in the election, not only as voters, but in the machinery of the various political parties.

They have proved themselves good orators; they are zealous workers in the routine of office drudgery; their long experience in women's clubs has taught them how to organize effectively. In short, he is a bold campaigner who thinks he can get along without them. Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Miss Grace Dixon, Mrs. Fletcher Dobyns, Miss Emily Larned, Mrs. Joseph Coleman, Mrs. Lambert O. Wile are some of those of their sex who will take a hand in promoting the cause of one or other of the principal candidates this autumn.

In this active participation in politics the women of the west are far ahead of their sisters of the east. The latter are more conservative. Neither woman suffrage nor politics ever was fashionable in the eastern communities where fashion is supposed to have its birth. This extra opportunity for activity accounts in a measure for the greater alertness, precision, and air of self reliance noticeable in the majority of women west of the Alleghenies.

Mrs. Thorne's Latest Feat.

Even our leaders of the world that amuses itself have a talent for putting things through which is amazing in view of their supposed lack of business experience. For instance, there's Mrs. James Ward Thorne, one of the gayest of the gay, and as pretty as she is gay.

Under her administration the women's exchange has become a thriving concern. She personally directs all their big sales which are such great events in Chicago, Lake Forest and Palm Beach. A recent one, held in Mrs. Ogden Armour's large and beautiful music room, netted in one day's sale $13,000. Mrs. Thorne's latest and most remarkable achievement was to secure for the woman's exchange the contract to supply all the lamp and candle shades for the new Drake hotel. And, "mirabile dictu!" these are all finished now, and waiting to be installed as fast as the lamps and fixtures are ready for them.

Not only does Mrs. Thorne organize the business of this attractive shop, but she is the inspiration of its lovely things. She can, and does, trim the most fascinating hats. She designs delicious negligés. Whenever she sees a new and chic "article de luxe" she straightway copies it for her establishment, an enterprise which gives employment to great numbers of needy women.

To make the instrument which serves you as a means of doing good likewise, in itself, a means of raising the standard of taste is to serve a double purpose. This Mrs. Thorne has done.

Drake Hotel Progresses.

Apropos of the Drake hotel: Mr. Drake says that they expect to be ready to serve Thanksgiving dinner there next November. The building is being carried on in such a way that as fast as a floor is finished it can be immediately used. Everything, such as rugs, furniture, curtains, and ornaments, is already waiting to be put in place. In this way the hotel will be slowly opened to guests, floor by floor.

The Drake hotel is going to change the character of that old, aristocratic neighborhood, which has long had an almost village-like air of friendly acquaintance. Its residents felt that they owned the Lake Shore drive, and, so feeling, could walk there in old clothes, with weatherbeaten hats pulled well down over their ears. So clad, and shod with stout shoes—well known social leaders delighted to face the strong northeast winds, unmindful of mussed hair and wind blown faces. The hotel will bring a different element, one more metropolitan, smartly clad, ornamental. The old, simple, unsophicticated days will fade away into the past. The north siders will become as trim, elegant, and well set up as a Fifth avenue crowd.

Which prophecy recalls an experience of a friend of mine. She had been spending a winter in New York, and, returning with her New York standards and habits, she dressed as carefully to shop in the loop as she would have done for an expedition to the shops on Fifth avenue.

A Chicago friend who met her exclaimed: "Are you going out to luncheon?"

The shopper said that she didn't expect to.

"You looked so dressed up, I thought you must be," was the comment.

Humiliated, the shopper returned home, and thenceforth was more particular to dress carelessly and shabbily.

Gaps in Society Ranks.

So many Chicagoans of note have died in the last month that when society meets again next autumn its ranks will have to close up to hide the gaps. The places left vacant by Mrs. H. H. Porter, Mrs. John C. Black, Miss Grace Howe, Arthur J. Eddy, Lawrence Williams, and James B. Waller never will be filled. Each was a part of old Chicago, that cheerful, eager city which was born in the renaissance days which came after the civil war; the Chicago that saw its house burn down one day and started to rebuild it before the ashes were cool; the Chicago that planned and put through the World's Fair; the Chicago that made possible the first and most famous settlement house in the country; the Chicago that set the nation's stamp once and for all time on anarchy and sedition as planned by foreigners; the Chicago that, almost unconsciously, achieved one of the greatest universities in the country; also what is now the finest symphony orchestra in the land, as well as an institute devoted to art where more art students are trained than in any other similar establishment in the western hemisphere.

No, I don't belong to the City Hall Boosters' club. But neither do I belong in that poor spirited category of spurious Chicagoans who when they travel abroad register themselves as from some other burg.

Death in London of Eustace Jaques.

A few of those whose memories go back to the society which flourished here in the '80s and '90s of the last century will recall the gay and friendly personality of Eustace Jaques, an easterner, who lived here long enough to leave a permanent impression on all who knew him. News of his death in London a month ago brought back to mind some of many stories of his jests, which have been buried for years in oblivion. One in particular deftly combined humor and rebuke.

A well known Chicago hostess (one of the most conspicuous, even today) wrote a note telling him that she was asking some people to dine with her to meet a celebrity on a certain evening, and asking him to come in after dinner.

Back came his prompt response: "Dear Mrs. R.: What's the matter with my table manners?" Brief and to the point!

Changes in personnel and in residences are a continuing feature of Chicago's social life. This coming winter the cheerful brown stone front mansion on the Lake Shore drive which has for so many years been associated with the Harold Howards will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Pike, while the Newton Perrys will be in the Robert Dunhams' attractive house on North State street.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Brown have leased a furnished apartment at 936 Lake Shore drive.

Edwin Ryersons Moving.

Dr. and Mrs. Edwin Ryerson and the latter's mother, Mrs. Hamilton, have exchanged their sea view at 999 Lake Shore for the more distant one to be had from the windows of the Raymond apartments, one block west.

A great loss to Chicago society will be the Edward Moores, who are going to New York to live. Their beautiful place at Lake Forest is for sale, and they are nearing the end of their last summer there, where they are so popular.

Another place in this "suburb de luxe" that is also said to be on the market is the James Ward Thornes' charming French chateau (is it French or Italian?), with its lovely gardens and enticing pool.

The Orville Babcocks' cozy white cottage on Green Bay road is still another house to be had by the mortal desirous of living where the maple trees respond so subtly to environment as to turn a more auriferous hue than their kind do anywhere else on the north shore.

McCormicks Solve Garden Problem.

An interesting experiment in gardening is being tried in the Cyrus McCormicks' xetensive and beautiful gardens this summer. The problem of securing adequate and trained garden workers has troubled many owners of fine country places.

The McCormicks solved it to their entire satisfaction by employing students from the University of Illinois, young men studying agriculture and kindred subjects. There are five of them, and after their day's work is done they study the science of their profession in the pleasant reading tent which is their home.

The R. T. Cranes are trying a similar experiment on their place at Ipswitch, Mass., where they have seventeen college girls whose job is to keep those great gardens in order. Never a rose leaf falls that is not quickly picked up by one of the seventeen, with the result that the Crane gardens gave an impression of exquisite immaculateness to the visiting delegates at the garden convention last June, which sent every one home with new ideals of the possibilities in this direction—given the college girl gardeners, of course.

Tickets Selling for Amateur Plays.

So enthusiastic has been the demand for tickets for the dramatic soirée which Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Ellsworth Laflin, Mrs. Henry Stimson, and others are organizing for Friday, Aug. 27, that it has been decided to present the three plays at the Durand Art institute, instead of at the Winter club, as at first announced.

Additional attractions are promised; Otis Chatfield-Taylor is to give a solo on the mandolin, on which he is an expert. There will be other music and general dancing afterward.

Miss Virginia FitzHugh, who is to play an important rôle in Ellworth Laflin's play, spent last winter in Boston studying dramatic expression. Mrs. Stimson has already made a name for herself in the days of the Aldis Players.

From across the water comes news of the Leander McCormicks, who are, if one may so express it, enjoying their second honeymoon. After spending several weeks in England, they joined Mr. McCormick's brother, Edward McCormick, and the latter's wife, and the quartet is now in Etretat, that gay French seashore resort where in old days the most mixed and picturesque crowd of pleasure seekers used to gather—Russians, Hungarians, Hollanders, British, and Americans, as well as throngs of French. It will be many years before quite so cosmopolitan an assemblage of visitors collects there again.

Lady Portsmouth Visits Chicago.

A visitor of more than usual note passed through Chicago last week. This was Lady Portsmouth, who came to this country to be present at her nephew, Gerard Wallop's wedding to Miss Mary Post of New York. Lady Portsmouth's chief claim to fame is not because she belongs to the British nobility but because she is the head and supporter of the British Y. W. C. A. She has been making an especial study of the works of this organization in this country.

She took a day off, however, and spent last Sunday visiting her brother-in-law, Oliver Henry Wallop's American relatives, Dr. S. J. Walker, Miss Helen Walker, and Mrs. W. J. Goudy, at the Walker residence in Lake Forest. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank entertained her at luncheon on Tuesday at the Blackstone. She left Chicago that evening to visit the Wallops on their ranch near Sheridan, Wyo.

Dr. Walker, his daughter, and Mrs. Goudy will go out to Sheridan the end of this month for a few weeks' stay with their sisters, Mrs. Wallop and Mrs. Malcolm Moncrieffe.

Winterbothams Are in Canada.

Other Chicagoans who are wandering are the "Jack" Winterbothams, who are traveling in Canada.

The Charles Edward Browns are just about landing in England.

In Paris Mr. and Mrs. William Boyden and their daughters are in Paris, preparatory to sailing for home in a few weeks. They expect to arrive at their home in Winnetka in September. Mr. Boyden was at the head of the American Red Cross relief work in Poland, a piece of work which he carried out wonderfully well, according to report.

Mr. and Mrs. George Higginson Jr. are coming to Chicago from their summer home in Lenox. They arrive today, and will be the guests of Mrs. Higginson's brother, Wallace Wakem, during their stay here. Miss Therese Higginson, the Higginsons' eldest daughter, will make her début this coming winter, the first débutante to be so announced. How fast they come, these annual crops of buds!

Preparing for Oriental Ball.

The debutantes, sub debs, the maids, wives, and widows of the community are all being drawn into the preliminary whirl of the oriental ball, which Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is organizing for next December, to help provide funds for the Chicago Lying-In hospital. Committees are being formed on the north, south, and west sides of the city to assist in the ball pageant, which is to be the great feature of the occasion.

Many of the famous legends and myths of the ancient and mysterious east will be illustrated by groups in the parade. The affair is to be the big social event of the season, and with Mrs. Fairbank at the executive helm and Mrs. John A. Carpenter directing its artistic effects, it is sure to be a "humdinger" as Uncle S. says.

Slams of Life

SOME WISTFUL LINES ON GOLF.

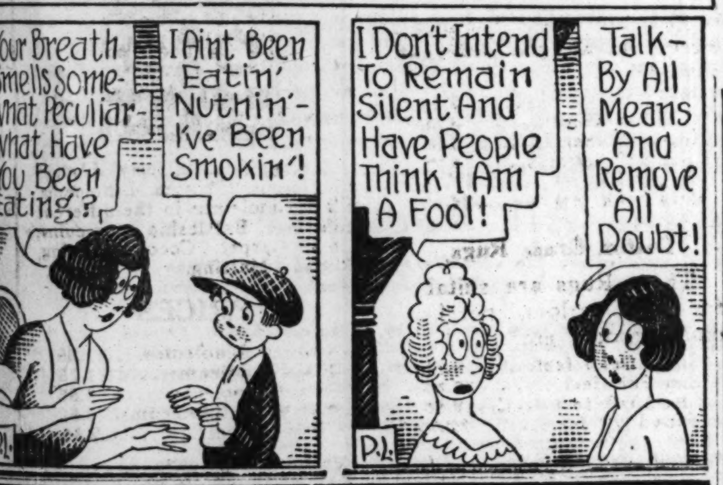
To drive a ball three hundred yards
And never nudge the rough—
A long, low liner to the pin,
Is elemental stuff;
One easily can castigate
The small spheroidal pellet
And bat it out three hundred yards—
To hear MacDonald tell it.

And when two hundred yards away,
O, what a simple deed
To drop the ball upon the green,
With just the proper speed
To bring it to a sweet repose
Upon the very brim!
At least Jack Croak says it's a cinch,
And I defer to him.

Or if in case you're forced to putt
Some twenty feet or so,
One simple putt is quite enough,
As you may doubtless know.
You merely tap it earnestly,
And swiftly it will steal
Across the green and drop right in—
Or so says George O'Neil.

I would not cast asparagus
At any of these guys:
MacDonald, Croak, or George O'Neil;
But still I must uprise
And tell them that their stuff is wrong;
That I just can't abide it.
Golf can't be played like that nohow—
I know because I've tried it.

IF WE COULDN'T TELL A LIE



Your Breath Smells Somewhat Peculiar—What Have You Been Eating?
I Aint Been Eatin' Nuthin'—I've Been Smokin'!
I Don't Intend To Remain Silent And Have People Think I Am A Fool!
Talk—By All Means And Remove All Doubt!

First Division Military Circus, Born on the Rhine, Coming This Week to Stage Its Own Private War

Guns in position to fire barrage in the military spectacle "The Battle of the Tanks."

THE First Division Military Circus, organized and first staged in the A. E. F. zone of occupation on the Rhine, is due to arrive in Chicago tomorrow morning for mobilization preparatory to its opening at the White City circus grounds next Thursday evening. The big army exhibit proposes to remain in Chicago as long as it finds favor with the public.

The circus, which is coming from Indianapolis, will arrive in five sections of twenty-five cars each. In addition, the air service section, comprising aeroplanes and captive observation balloons, is on its way from the U. S. air service station at Omaha, to join the circus here, and still another section comprising the German war exhibits will come from Camp Taylor, Ky.

"No other circus could travel with such expense and make money," says the press agent. "It is the largest traveling show on earth, carrying everything that a combined circus and military tournament requires."

The exhibition recorded many triumphs when first given at Coblenz with the Hagenbeck animals. It will be restaged here on a larger scale with many added features.

It has the usual circus atmosphere with its sawdust arena, rings and platforms of performing acrobats, tumblers, wire-walkers, strong jaw acts, clowns, performing animals, trained elephants, tigers, lions, horses, mules, monkeys and dogs, bareback riders, wild west stunts, lassoing, stagecoach holdups, Roman riders, chariot races, and cavalry monkey drills.

The big feature, however, is the military spectacle, "The Battle of the Tanks," which enlists the services of 1,000 fighting men, including every branch of the army service and comprising ten tanks; one platoon of 155 millimeter, two batteries of 75 millimeter and ten sections of 37 millimeter guns; six machine gun sections; one chemical warfare service section; one signal corps section; one section of engineers, and one platoon of infantry.

The circus is being financed by an unsought for profit which was derived by the show in Germany, and all proceeds go toward a fund for erecting a monument at the Arlington national cemetery, commemorating the deeds of the 5,000 dead of the First division, towards which every officer and enlisted man of the division has already given six days' pay.

The opening performance on Thursday will be a gala occasion, with Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood and other high army officials in attendance for the first review.

Why They Laugh in Vaudeville

PALACE.

James Thornton: Some actors are called hams. This is all wrong; hams can be cured.

Everything is being taxed. Why not tax the bachelors? That's a luxury these days.

Christie and Bennett: George Washington never had to lie. In those days they didn't have any income tax.

I am fully in accord with the idea that women should have their rights. On election day they should go to the polls; yes, the north and south poles.

Blossom Seeley: It's so darn hot here in Chicago that the other day when I was out to Lincoln park a greyhound was chasing a rabbit and they were both walking.

When my wife sees anything that she likes in the store windows she will always call my attention to it, and then I leave her stand there for hours looking at it.

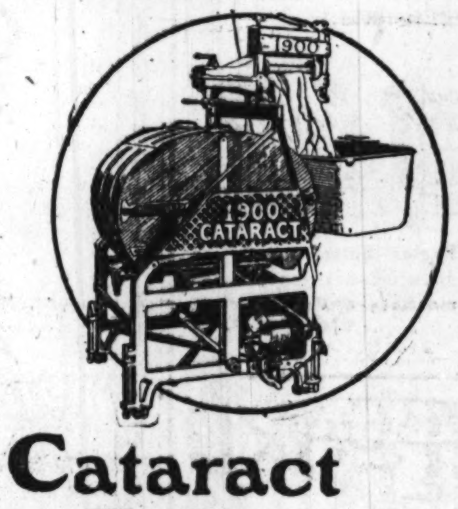
The Store of To-day and To-morrow
THE FAIR
Established 1875 by E. J. Lehmann
State, Adams and Dearborn Streets

Are You Going to Rub Your Clothes Again Tomorrow?

Clothes washing by the old hand method, whether you do it yourself or hire it done, is extravagant, expensive and wasteful. The rub on the washboard wears out more clothes than does the hardest kind of use; time and health are wasted in the laundry by old-time methods.



The 1900 Cataract
Electric Clothes Washer

Will relieve you of all the drudgery of hand rubbing. It will put an end to red hands and arms and sore knuckles. It will lift a burden from the woman's back that should never have been put there, and

It Washes Clothes Cleaner

Wholesomely clean, as a woman likes them washed, with less work, in less time, and with less wear than any other method ever devised or used, and you have the satisfaction that you have supervised the washing, and that your clothes have not been mixed with other people's.

The 1900 Cataract Electric Washer Is the Best

This was the decision of our experts who searched the markets in quest of a washer we could recommend to the customers of The Fair. Its rustless copper tub with the double oscillation found in no other machine, its electrically operated wringer which swings to all positions, and its superior mechanical construction throughout, stamp it the peer of all washers we have ever seen.

Allow Us to Prove It

At our expense and at your convenience. We have a trained corps of demonstrators, and upon the payment of $5.00 we will demonstrate the 1900 Cataract Washer in your own laundry, on your own clothes. If you decide to purchase the machine the balance may be paid monthly. If, for any reason, you are not satisfied, we will promptly refund your money. See the 1900 Cataract Washer on the sixth floor

NEWS OF THE RELIGIOUS WORLD

The Rev. Dr. W. E. Biederwolf, evangelist, leaves Chicago on Wednesday for a trip around the world, during which he will attend as a speaker the world's Sunday school convention in Japan.

He sails from Portland, touching at Hawaii, arriving at Tokio in September. Following the convention he will tour the far east.

He will conduct his last services in America before leaving for the orient this morning and evening at the Immanuel Baptist church, 2320 Michigan avenue. Dr. Biederwolf is an authority on Bible study and has had twenty-five years' experience as an evangelist.

Work on the Catholic academy at Area, Ill., St. Mary's of the Lake, is being pushed forward rapidly. Ground has been broken and the foundations of the twenty-four buildings which will comprise the project are under way.

Announcement is made by the Garrett Biblical institute of the selection of Prof. Archibald Thomas Robertson, professor of New Testament interpretation in the Southern Baptist Theological seminary, Louisville, Ky., to deliver the convocation address at the close of the summer quarter Sept. 1. Prof. Robertson is a noted theologian, having held his present professorship since 1895.

The Americanization department of the Y. M. C. A. has been assisting in a number of successful religious meetings among the Lithuanians in the city. Dr. John Silupas of Scranton, Pa., who represented the Lithuanian government in the peace conference in London and later in Paris has devoted his time to the meetings.

At a conference held at the Y. M. C. A. last Thursday representatives of the Protestant denominations attended a luncheon given in his honor at which further plans for a revival of the Lithuanians were discussed.

Sunday, Sept. 19, has been selected as Rally day for members of the Evangelical Lutheran Immanuel church members in Chicago. The meetings will be held on the new building site of the church at Greenview and Elmdale avenues.

"BUILD ROADS NOW," IS UNANIMOUS PLEA IN THE NORTHWEST

Contractors Fight Vainly to Obtain Needed Materials

Territory Good Example of Nation Caught Short in Prime of Development

BY J. L. JENKINS.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Aug. 14.—[Special.]—Motor trucks hauled a billion tons of freight in the United States last year. Railroads carried 2,500,000,000. With hard roads instead of mixed dirt and gravel in the great northwest the nation's highways this year could bear an equal share of the vital transportation that now awaits delayed movement.

That, briefly, is the spur goading worried highway engineers and state officials to new bursts of speed in dragging the food belt from its bed of mud this summer. All along the line from Sioux Falls north to Jamestown and from Fargo to the Twin Cties the same "build roads now" plea is going up from the farmer, the manufacturer, the merchant, and the statesman—a plea that comes more than a year short of accomplishment.

For thousands of miles through the Dakotas, Montana, and Minnesota contractors are fighting vainly for delivery on road materials and making the best of a bad situation by whipping the old dirt trails into shape with the means at hand for their ever increasing loads of traffic. With millions available for immediate hard road building and practically unlimited funds on tap through bond issues that can now be carried anywhere, the northwest stands as a striking example of a nation caught short in the prime of its development and struggling bravely to catch up.

Of more than 13,000 miles in the state highway system of Minnesota but 150 miles represent the needed pavement. The smallest towns in the Dakotas boast concrete and brick pavements on Main street, but fume over the branch line railroad delays nine months in the year, while their county roads are all but impassable. And some counties are spending as high as $7,000 and $9,000 a mile to lay gravel as a rescue measure on roads whose hard surfacing two or three years ago would have cost but little more.

"I hate to think how much this bad road has cost me in the five years I've farmed this section," remarked a grain raiser near Brookings, S. D., while watching the annual attempt to fill a mile of swamp road with black dirt to lift it out of water in August. "It was the middle of July before I could take any good load into town or to the railroad, and then I had to fight for cars. Every year we throw good money after bad filling up the mud holes, and every year we are stuck in the mud in the same old way."

"If I had twenty more trucks and a hard road I could operate day and night through nearly all seasons of the year," lamented an Aberdeen, N. D., freighter who runs scheduled transport trains over the road in good weather. "Now that everybody wants hard roads we can't get the stuff to build them."

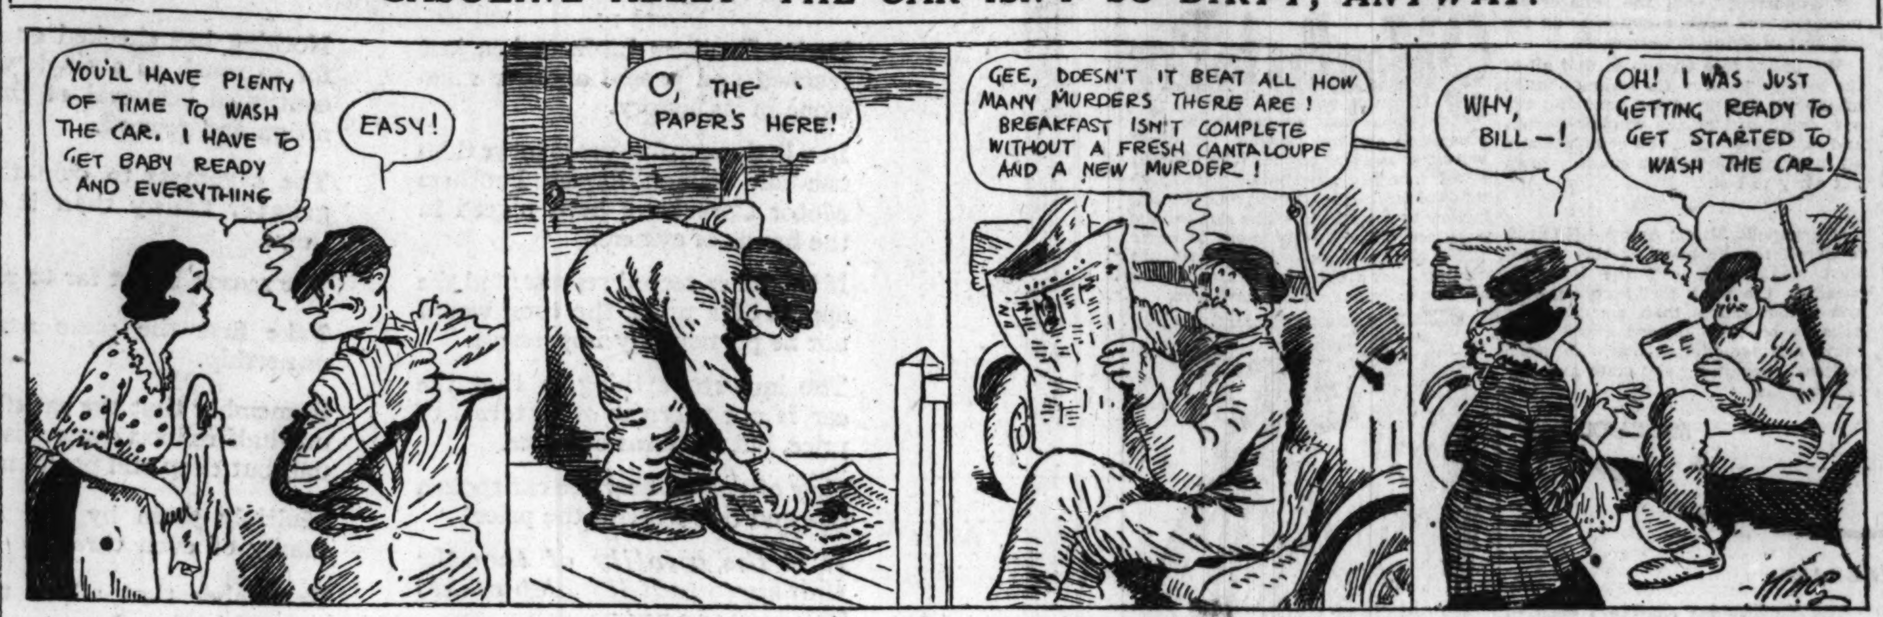
"It's up to the roads to allow us to operate at capacity," declared a Fargo manufacturer, "and it's pretty tough to be dictated to year after year by a bad dirt highway."

State aid and county bond issue money is paying $10,000 a mile along the Minnesota side of the state line near Clinton to overcome the same sort of swamp that forms a road barrier for scores of less alert towns and counties in South Dakota. Caterpillar trucks turned over to the state by the war department and well organized road crews are operating on a deep cut and fill, resembling a railroad embankment, that eventually will open a new transportation artery for one of the richest farm valleys of the state.

The fill, like other highway improvements noticeable throughout the west, will form a perfect foundation for the paving to be laid on the state road as soon as materials are available.

"We are making the best of things in Minnesota by consistent work on the natural roads," said C. M. Babcock, state superintendent of highways. "Eighteen hundred miles of grading are included in this year's contracts now under construction, and we are graveling 1,500 miles. We found it impossible to let any more paving contracts after May this year, both because of high costs and the fact that in fighting for materials we could not give proper attention to the state system generally. County bond issues have built her roads for Minnesota, and we are improving them just as fast as we possibly can in order to carry on the business of the northwest."

GASOLINE ALLEY—THE CAR ISN'T SO DIRTY, ANYWAY.



YOU'LL HAVE PLENTY OF TIME TO WASH THE CAR. I HAVE TO GET BABY READY AND EVERYTHING EASY!
O, THE PAPER'S HERE!
GEE, DOESN'T IT BEAT ALL HOW MANY MURDERS THERE ARE! BREAKFAST ISN'T COMPLETE WITHOUT A FRESH CANTALOUPE AND A NEW MURDER!
WHY, BILL—!
OH! I WAS JUST GETTING READY TO GET STARTED TO WASH THE CAR!
KING

A Look Ahead.

The vast importance of the highway as a unit of transportation is strikingly indicated by the statements recently made by John Wanamaker of Philadelphia, who holds that twenty-four years hence developments will be amazing. Citing the Lincoln highway as an example, Mr. Wanamaker pictures this great thoroughfare as a broad boulevard carrying two passengers cars and one motor truck in each direction every second daily. He further predicts that highways in the near future will be 100 feet wide.

Causes of Rim Cutting.

Motorists are often puzzled at the reason for their tires rim cutting. Especially are they surprised at this when the rims are in good condition. Ordinarily underinflation is held solely to blame. But there is an important contributing cause—side sway. Sudden turning of the car throws an abnormal strain on the side walls of the tires. Occasionally this side sway is sufficient to rupture the fabric. In the majority of cases, the trouble is noticed close to the bead or edge of the tire, where the fabric strands are anchored.

Log of Two Tourists
by Jenks

HURON, S. D., Aug. 3.—Strange, fishy roads thread the depths of South Dakota. Launched with a flourish of barking cylinders, the world's greatest expedition today narrowly escaped registering a total loss all among the water grass and wild ducks of the dank bottom lands.

Joining the procession of motor nomads moving northward from Sioux Falls toward big game lands of Canada over the king of trails, we found good gravel footing to Dell Rapids, the pretty, homey town where folks still have time to gather in gossipy little groups in the bakery and ice cream parlor of mornings. Sandy dirt and a winding road led us to Brookings and the headwaters of the state.

"Up to July 4th," drawled the Brookings editor, "there was water everywhere and not a road to take. Heading for the next town was an adventure in uncharted seas. Crops seem to be growing in spite of it. Don't know about farm credits yet. Our banker got back this morning from a financial conference at the Falls. I'll see him in a couple of days and find out what they did."

For nineteen miles west of Brookings the Yellow and Black trail, resembling a relic of the Spanish Main, dives manfully into and over the inland sea. At one point it disappears from view under a mile of stagnant water where wild duck, kingfishers, and mudhens frisk gleefully, and the mystified tourist backs and files through wheat field lanes seeking a distinctly unmarked detour about the morass.

There is a hidden way, a by-path climbing through a wooded ridge and snaking itself past submerged fields into the town of Arlington, where gas sells above 30 cents. Then a kindly farmer has made a rough detour path and marked it through his berry patches, barn lot, and near pasture for the next leg of the journey to Lake Preston.

Eventually one can come to Huron, the town built by the Northwestern railroad, on the banks of the James river, notable as the longest unnavigable stream in the world. Here traveling men argue over train schedules, and fierce thunderstorms rise, bluster, and fade unnoticed by cheerful old timers.

Aberdeen, S. D., Aug. 4.—There's an uncouth road called the Sunshine trail that labors north through duck ponds and wheat fields to this thriving city of the food belt. We pulled through the marshes to Redfield, stopping to help a big car untangle itself from one mud hole and a big truck escape from another, paid 33 cents for petrol, and struck a fair dirt road into Aberdeen and a welcoming service station.

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 6, 2 a. m.—Endurance is the word in the Dakotas. It was noon before we finished wtih Aberdeen, said good-by to the Yellowstone trail and civilization, and tackled the profane Sunshine highway again into the north. It starts over mountains of new sand and gravel without a detour mark, comes to a complete halt in an abandoned corn field, and leaves the driver to poke his way around water holes and through tall sunflowers eleven miles to Westport.

Then it promises to be a road again, and dashes into the middle of a wheat

CLEVELAND SIX

Wins Distinction By Its Better Qualities

The Cleveland Six has won a place of distinction among light cars because of its better qualities. Designed for every-day service on every kind of roadway, it is sturdily built for endurance. It seeks no glory in speed contests, but earns praise for its performance in doing well all that its thousands of owners expect of a good car.

The exclusive Cleveland Six motor, of the overhead valve type, quiet and responsive in an unusual degree, is alive with power. Power sufficient to give all the speed that any thoughtful driver would ever want to use and to take the loaded car on high up long climbing roadways.

Bodies of dignity and beauty are mounted on the Cleveland chassis. All are splendidly finished and upholstered.

Come see the Cleveland. Ride in It. Drive it. Then you will know.

MOTORDOM

Log of Two Tourists

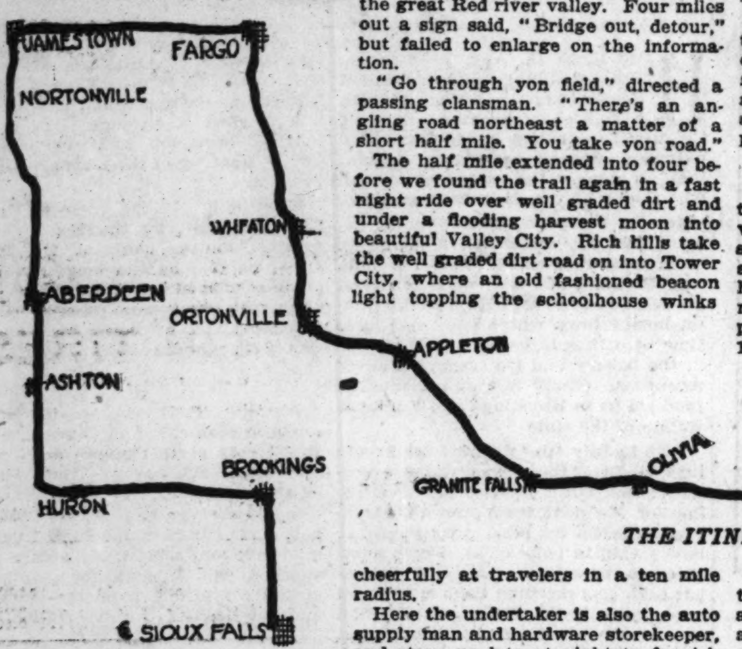
field, turning and twisting through miles of wheat, with a sign stuck here and there as a guide, and endless weeds that push stubbornly up, threatening to batter to pieces the stoutest drip pan. We came to Barnard, bewildered and hungry, and sought a restaurant.



THE ITINERARY.

"Please have my ham sandwich lean and well done," requested the senator after his usual formula.

"We ain't got no ham," announced the lady innkeeper, after an ice box search, "an' the milk is sour, an' the ice cream is soft and runny."

Thinking to give our roadster nourishment at least, we found the only filling station.

"Gas 35 cents," remarked its baron. "Cheapest it's been in two months. Them chocolate bars is 15 cents each."

"Dirt cheap," we returned, overcoming all desire for chocolate. "Do you endow colleges or just build libraries with the excess profits?"

In attempting to run over a Barnard chicken in retaliation, we chased it nearly a mile before it drew ahead and disappeared around a bend in the road. Wonderfully fast chickens hereabouts.

We crossed the North Dakota line at Winship, and headed into a great bank of blue rain cloud that swept across the sun in a short ten minutes and darkened the countryside. At Ellendale the first big drops caught us and we made a run against the rising wind out across tragic Whitestone battlefield, the scene of Custer's last stand. We were caught in mid praire and almost swept from the road by the typical northwest gale that emptied a lake on the wheat and left us mired in gumbo mud. Five miles farther on the road suddenly became dusty again and dipped into Nortonville.

"How's the road to Jamestown?" we asked the cheerful general storekeeper and gas man.

"There's lots of 'em takes it," he returned, "but none of 'em ever comes back!"

At Jamestown we escaped from the Sunshine highway and turned east at dusk over the old National Parks highway, the "Red trail" that runs almost straight for ninety-nine miles through the great Red river valley. Four miles out a sign said, "Bridge out, detour," but failed to enlarge on the information.

"Go through yon field," directed a passing clansman. "There's an angling road northeast a matter of a short half mile. You take yon road."

The half mile extended into four before we found the trail again in a fast night ride over well graded dirt and under a flooding harvest moon into beautiful Valley City. Rich hills take the well graded dirt road on into Tower City, where an old fashioned beacon light topping the schoolhouse winks cheerfully at travelers in a ten mile radius.

Here the undertaker is also the auto supply man and hardware storekeeper, and stays up late at night to furnish the tourist with new supplies. The busy life of Fargo reaches far out to the west, filling even the night road with farm trucks and produce wagons. It is well to telegraph ahead for reservations in this bustling center. We are lodged now in sample rooms, the only ones vacant in the various crowded hotels.

Ortonville, Minn., Aug. 7.—The king of trails leads south with graded dirt through a valley rich in scenery and Indian lore. It is a dry weather road only, with its gumbo surface baked hard by the midsummer sun, and drops the tourist down past the site of old Fort Abercrombie and through Wahpeton, to dip into South Dakota marshes again at White Rock.

It crosses the Minnesota line at Wheaton, and runs in high fills and over well worked gravel into the wonderland of Big Stone lake, with Ortonville cupped snugly on its southeastern shore. The old boat captain of Ortonville will prove worth while should you happen to find this Minnesota resort. He has fought twenty years against an opposition boat line on the lake, and, by hek, his boats alone ply over its green waters now.

Glenco, Minn., Aug. 8.—Back home on the Yellowstone trail in a Sunday run through country where the word rural originated. The trail, one of the very few honest highways organized in the country, is very well marked throughout the west, and, although heavily traveled, is the best hot weather road across the country. Its information bureaus tell the truth about it, and see that county organizations give it proper attention. We asked for food at Olivia, and the hotel keeper looked at us blankly.

"Haven't had a meal since April," he declared.

"Wonderful," said the senator admiringly, and made a cuff note on the low cost of living in Minnesota.

We pulled into Glenco to find all of the boys perched on the railing outside of the ice cream parlor admiring the soft drink girl of the window poster, and at 10:30 enjoyed the complete and all invading silence of a country town put early to bed.

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 9.—No need to detail the beauties of this northwest playground. All the world is spending the week end here anyway, and better artists than we can ever hope to be have flooded every hotel room and stopping place with word pictures concerning the state and her 10,000 lakes.

The Yellowstone continues good to the outskirts of Minneapolis, revealing at every turn new lake land beauties, and stopping now and then in pretty summer resort towns. Badly worn macadam brings the trail into the city where "Minnie" is the popular prefix to every word. Total mileage for week, 809.

Waste of Gasoline.

Those who have studied the subject say that one-half gallon of gasoline per car is wasted daily in Canada through carelessness, the overuse of cars, and needless mileage, which means 200,000 gallons wasted daily in the country, or 73,000,000 gallons per year, if all motor cars were operated every day.

ONE-HALF MILLION BUILDERS OF GOOD WILL

Dodge Brothers business has just reached and passed another milestone in its history.

In a little over five years more than one-half million Dodge Brothers Motor Cars have been placed in the hands of owners.

If this sales record represented the appeal of a price, the total would not be particularly impressive.

The important thing is that the car is not thought of in terms of price, but in terms of value.

How often you hear the car spoken of—and how seldom the price!

It is the quality of thought that surrounds it which makes this success noteworthy.

Because people think well of these cars, it is still impossible for Dodge Brothers to build enough of them.

Seldom has there been a finer example of the force of friendly thoughts.

It is an inspiration and an encouragement to build well—because the reward, in America, is so great and so sure.

With nothing but good will toward them in American homes—how could Dodge Brothers do less than they have done?

Nothing has checked or hindered for so much as a single week, the continued bestowal of this recognition and reward.

The eagerness to own the car is greater today than it ever has been.

The reason is not far to seek.

Take first the mere numerical ownership.

Remember that the satisfaction of one-half million owners is not casual, but deep and profound.

Multiply them by the average family of even three.

Remember that all of these are warm friends.

Then think of that leaven of thought leavening the whole mass.

You will begin to understand, then, why Dodge Brothers have been building new buildings ever since the business began.

You will understand why the works in which the car is built are still steadily spreading and expanding.

You will get an idea of how much men can do when the homes of America are solidly behind them.

The Chandler Dispatch Car

CHANDLER SIX
Famous For Its Marvelous Motor

It Offers So Much More For So Much Less

The Chandler Six was never in stronger position than right now, at the height of the 1920 season. Chandler price has always, regardless of the demand, been based on cost of production plus a fair profit, and nothing else. An oversold condition of the trade has never moved the price up.

And today, the Chandler is, by long odds, the most closely-priced fine car in the American market.

Chandler holds its leadership among Sixes so distinctly because it offers so much more for so much less. It leads because of its endurance and great motor, unsurpassed for flexibility of power. It leads because of its sturdy construction throughout and the character of service it renders to more than eighty thousand owners.

Like Naked Strength Of the Far North
GILLETTE

The Gillette Chilled Rubber Process

Gillette Cord Tires are tires of sheer strength. There's not a thing about their construction or operation that doesn't mean mileage—comfortable mileage—economical mileage—down to the last inch of travel—the last penny of cost.

Gillette Cords do not develop defects. They do not permit tread separation or consequent blow-outs. They are not injured by heat or cold. They do not go to pieces because of fast travel, heavy loads or rough roads. They do not become flabby and lifeless. They do not render anything short of greatest mileage at least cost.

This is due to several causes. One is: proper construction of body—equal distribution of strain over all sections—elimination of weak spots. Another is: the improved Gillette Chilled Rubber Process of manufacture, which refines and toughens rubber as iron is toughened when changed to steel. Another is—and this is important: every Gillette workman is a legislator of labor conditions. He governs working laws—he is a satisfied workman—his heart, his head, his hands are in his work, resulting in a Cord Tire of perfect design, perfect materials, perfect workmanship.

If there is no Gillette dealer near you, write our general sales office. One Gillette on your car is sure to sell you a set.

All Set for Big Elgin Road Race; Classy Entry List

Seven A. A. A. Champions Among Drivers to Compete for Prizes

ALL is in readiness for the eighth revival of the Elgin road race next Saturday under the auspices of the Chicago Motor club. On Thursday and Friday the course will be turned over to the drivers for practice and elimination trials.

Entries for the race closed last night, but all nominations in the mail postmarked before that hour will be accepted. Between twelve and fifteen cars will start, an ideal number for the course. This will give spectators a view of cars passing on an average of about once in every thirty seconds. Quality is expressed in the entry list as well as quantity. Of the ten drivers listed as leading in the American Automobile association championship standing, seven are entered in the Elgin race.

There is a good chance of the leadership changing hands through the Elgin race, for first place in this event carries 600 points, and both Tommy Milton and Jimmy Murphy of the Duesenberg team are within that number of points of Gaston Chevrolet, who at present holds first place.

A last minute change has been made in the plans of the Chevrolet entry. Instead of piloting a Frontenac, as was at first planned, Gaston Chevrolet will be at the wheel of the same Monroe car with which he won at Indianapolis. Teamed with Gaston will be Ralph Mulford, who will drive the second Monroe, and Percy Ford, the Chicago ex-amateur, who will tool a Frontenac, a companion car to the Monroes. Joe Thomas, whose entry has been received and accepted, also may handle a Frontenac, although this has not been settled.

The Duesenberg team is regarded as the strongest entry in the field. Tommy Milton, Jimmy Murphy and Eddie O'Donnell, standing second, third and seventh, respectively, in the A. A. A. point column, are the official Duesenberg team entries, but it is probable that there will be several more Duesenberg engined "specials" in the race. In this class falls the Meteor Special, for which no driver has yet been named, and the Schillo Special, which will be driven by Ed Schillo, also a Chicago entrant.

Chief among the "solo" entries are Ralph De Palma in his Ballot, and Cliff Durant in the Chevrolet Special. De Palma has made numerous modifications in the Ballot since his misfortune this year at Indianapolis when ignition trouble wrested almost certain victory from his grasp, and is counted as a favorite for victory.

Cliff Durant is the real man of mystery in the race, for less is known about his Chevrolet Special than about any other car in the contest. Durant originally intended to start at Indianapolis, but was unable to get his car together in time for that event, so Elgin will be his first start of the year. About all that it known of Durant's entry is that it is a Miller motored machine and that trials have shown it exceptionally fast.

Attendance at the race is expected to be far in advance of last season. The Chicago Motor club has put tickets on sale in hotels and garages throughout Illinois, Indiana, Wisconsin, and Michigan, and in addition there has been considerable interest manifested in the contest in Iowa and other western states. The advance sale for Elgin has never been particularly heavy, but this year the total sale at present is above that of last year.

Arrangements have been made for the sale of tickets at Marshall Field & Co., Bloom & Mayers' Lyon and Healy's, The Fair, The Hub, Owen O'Malley's, Spaulding's, Wilson's, Edgewater Beach hotel, Kirby's garage, and the Chicago Automobile club.

My Funniest Motoring Experience

Every one who has taken the road in a motor has some story to tell. What is your best one The Tribune will pay $1 for every letter published in "My Funniest Motoring Experience." Write as briefly as possible, on one side of the paper only, and address Funniest Motoring Experience, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

Outdoor Sports.

My flivver was picking its way along the rough Louisville-Nashville pike when a car roared up behind and sounded an impatient horn. The road was narrow at this point and I put on speed, taking the bumps as they came and trying to dodge the persistent blasts that seemed to gain on me every second.

When both flivver and nerves had reached the breaking point, I looked back and found the big car full of pretty girls, who seemed to think it a very funny race. I drew to one side to let them pass, but they also stopped.

"Please go ahead," pleaded the girl driver. "We don't want by, but it's such fun to watch that flivver bounce!"

E. W. F.

Seeing Things.

While returning from a motor trip we were driving after dark. Suddenly I saw a brand new tire lying almost in the center of the road. I swerved around it, and put on the brakes. After a minute's interval I said to one of the occupants: "Well, aren't you going to pick it up?"

"Pick what up?"

"That tire back in the road!"

"O, did you see a tire?" and two of us piled out to get the prize.

We covered the hundred yards to the rear of the car several times, scraping our feet along in the dust trying to locate the tire in the dark; but in vain.

"Talk about your mirages," I said in a puzzled way.

"Talk about a dizzy driver, you're one," said my uncle.

"Tee, hee, hee," came from some farm lads in the cornfield alongside of the road.

It was one on us! X.

Somebody's Mistake.

Bad roads and the dog himself were most at fault, but that did not impress the mad farmer, who made a dive for his house and his gun after I had struck his collie a slanting blow with one fender. I was soon out of range, but had to stop when a tire blew out.

When the irate farmer carrying his shotgun came tearing by I was working over the tire at the roadside. He did not even glance my way. Pulling into town later, I stopped at the garage for gasoline and innocently asked what all the commotion was about.

"Somebody ran over Highway Commissioner Smith's dog," said the garage man, "but the old man was too slick for the tourist. He telephoned ahead and they stretched the rope across the street, and, by golly, they caught the bird dead to rights!" W. B. P.

Knew His Rights.

The boulevard was crowded, but that didn't seem to worry the small boy who leisurely crossed the street directly ahead of us. The line for a block back came to an abrupt halt just as we did. Then the boy spread his feet far apart, put his hands in his pockets, and grinned at the line.

"You don't dast run over me," he shrilled. I suppose he was right.

K. K.

Baggage Off Behind.

We were hitting the road at the rate of fifty miles per hour. All the time the occupants of the back seat were on the lookout for cops.

Suddenly Bill shouted: "Speed up Hank, a copper following us."

I stepped on her, but we soon come to a poor stretch of road, and I gave up, letting the motorcycle catch up to us.

The driver hopped off and came over saying: "Hey, don't you want your trunk? It fell off an hour ago."

Britain Big Buyer of German Motors; Few from America

Only 200 commercial motor vehicles were imported into England during the month of April from the United States, while no less than 718 commercial cars were imported from Germany during the same month.

This is according to a statement issued by the American Chamber of Commerce in London, and the reason given for this unusual "slump" in American cars is attributed to the low value of the mark which has enabled purchasers to obtain German cars at a tempting figure for some time past.

There is, however, likely to be a change in the situation shortly, for the German manufacturers have decided that they will charge for all exports in the currency of the country to which they are sent.

"This step," is the comment of the Chamber of Commerce, "logical though it may seem to German manufacturers, is likely to remove the general incentive of cheapness for German cars and the probabilities are all in favor of increased imports of American cars."

Water in Oil.

Few motorists realize that a comparatively large quantity of water gradually accumulates in the crank case, mixing with the oil and forming an emulsion which had impaired lubricating qualities. This accumulation of water is more pronounced in winter than in summer and is found to a greater extent as the number of cylinders increases. This brings out the importance of changing the oil every 1,000 miles, and for the best lubricating results every 500 miles.

The Next Time You Buy a Tire
you can save one-half the cost

It sounds almost too good to be true, but more than 1,000,000 motorists are now doing it.

If you are continuing to get only 5,000 to 6,000 miles out of your tires you are overlooking a big economy—you can save half of what you are spending.

If you are using a standard make of tires you can easily get 10,000 to 15,000 miles out of them. This would be a big saving to you.

Some of the tires now on your car may appear to be about worn out, but tires just like these are being made to double and triple their mileage.

The Gates Half-Sole Tire has made this possible and more than 1,000,000 car owners who pay their own bills have already taken advantage of it.

Some of the biggest business houses in the United States were the first to grasp this saving and for three years now they have been getting better tire service than they ever had before, and it has been costing them only one-half as much.

Investigate this before you buy another tire.

There are now more than 2,000 authorized Gates Half-Sole service stations in the United States and there is a trained expert at every one of them ready to serve you.

ART

Portrait Work in Foreign Exhibit Claims Attention

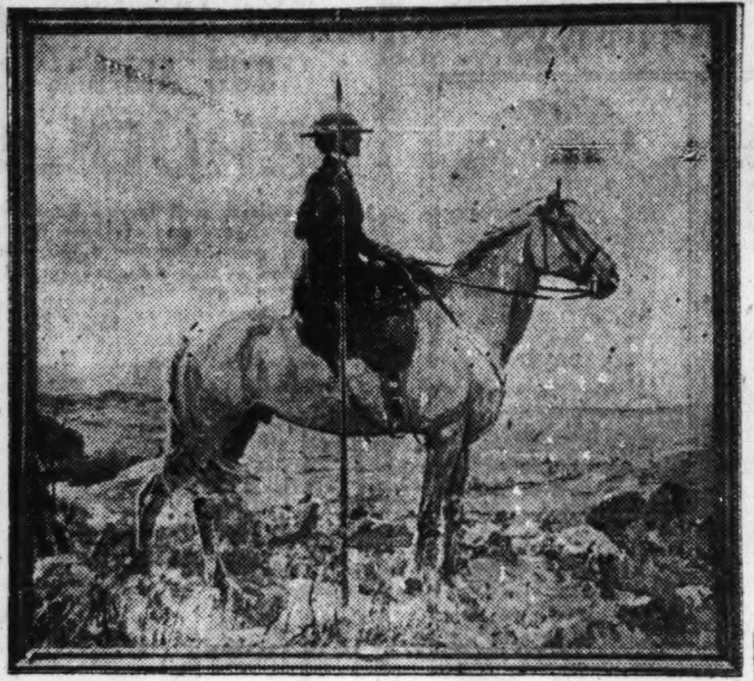
By Eleanor Jewett.

AN unusual opportunity to study the work of artists of various countries, almost each one of whom has before this been considered and seriously appreciated by the world at large, is given in the present exhibition of foreign paintings at the Art institute. Not only is it interesting to study the pictures as the work of individual men, but as affording contrasting types of success.

Possibly the best example of what I mean by the concluding sentence of the above paragraph is found in two portraits. The one is Mrs. John Works Garrett painted by Ignacio Zuloaga; the other is by Sir William Orpen and is of Mrs. St. George. Each is a splendid canvas, and the one is superficially mindful of the other—mindful, that is, only in as far as such material details as size of canvas, pose of the figure, and such matters are considered. For all else they differ as radically as wine and water, the British phlegm, and the Spanish temperament.

Mrs. St. George is evidently a charming English lady of birth and breeding. She is calm, suave, unruffled by any wave of emotion. Sir Orpen has painted her standing before a background of rich curtains, gowned in a stunning costume, with jewels, furs, and laces that take nothing from the exquisite simplicity of the long lines. You think as you look at it—"What a beautiful portrait." And you would be quite willing to claim her as a relative or friend.

On the contrary, Zuloaga has given us in the painting of Mrs. Garrett a woman of whom one might be afraid. She might be as clever as she looks, or she might only pose as clever. She has a touch of the Mona Lisa evasiveness and cynicism about her. She may have temperament, or the painter may have wrought some of his spirit into her likeness. The essential character behind the portrait is like quicksilver; the longer you look upon the canvas the more baffled you are, the less you feel you catch the real Mrs. Garrett. As a family matter I should rather dread to perpetrate such a portrait. As a work of art, the portrait is a success. It is very dark, very mysterious, very Spanish—very Zuloaga.



"The Amazon," by Sir John Lavery, a striking canvas in the exhibition of foreign paintings at the Art institute.

It is with almost relief, however, that one turns to the wholesome, sane work of Sir John Lavery in "The Amazon." He has advanced several centuries and taken for his model a great-great-great-granddaughter of the original woman—master of fiery steeds.

His Amazon is clad in a riding habit and mounted on a side saddle upon a massive white horse. The horse and rider are on the rocky summit of a broad hill, from which they look down over an endless stretch of waste land; a gray sky backs them.

To give meaning to her title the woman has a long lance in land. The atmosphere of power, with its necessary burden of loneliness, is clearly felt.

Turning from this again to a third type of woman, we find in "Motherhood," by Flora Lion, a beautiful example of the maternal. A chubby, charming baby lies cooing on its back upon a rug on the floor, while over it bends the young mother, a world of love and pride for the plump infant in her eyes.

I think I mentioned several weeks ago that the Art institute has now three paintings of water lilies by Claude Monet in its galleries. A fourth painting by Monet dealing with the same, evidently a favorite, subject is found in this exhibition. It is called "Water Lilies Beneath the Bridge," and differs from the other three paintings, inasmuch as those give only the calm pond graced by the pink blossoms and green pads, and this shows the arching span of a narrow bridge and the encircling green wilderness of rushes and reeds and trees which make a perfect frame for the mirror-like pool and its fleet of fragrant, fairy shallops. Though not more lovely than the canvas in the Neilson collection, it is still lovely.

The group of pictures by the French artist, Auguste Emile Rene Menard, strikes a note of saddened beauty. They deal with deep valleys and high hills where trees grow thick and flowers blossom in their shade to be danced upon in the warm moonlight by the white feet of nymphs or wood dryads. Mostly they live in Grecian times—in the golden days when our classic traditions were born. They breathe the mystery and the beauty of things that have passed. One must search them for their charm. It is not obvious nor strident, but it is deep within each canvas, if you look.

One more striking piece of work, by a painter of whom we have not seen many examples, is found in "Basque Types," by Zubiaurre. There are three figures in the picture, a man, a woman, and a girl. Each is distinct in itself, yet the three are bound together by their evident resemblance. They are of one country, of one life. The painting is remarkable for the figures, for the coloring, for the composition, for the beauty of the details. It is unusual and well worth more than casual inspection.

"Clump of Fir Trees," by Andre Dauchez, is another picture which demands appreciation. It is a bold, clear, beautiful landscape that invites one to enjoy the freshness of its air, the coolness of its water, the shelter of its trees.

Among the other paintings are pictures by Alfred Bergstrom, Paul Besnard, Sir Frank Brangwyn, Degas, Thomas Cantrell Dugdale, Harry B. Lachman, Harrington Mann, Alfred J. Munnings, Edouard Vallet, Howard Somerville, and Lucien Simon.

THE SUPER-CARBURETOR

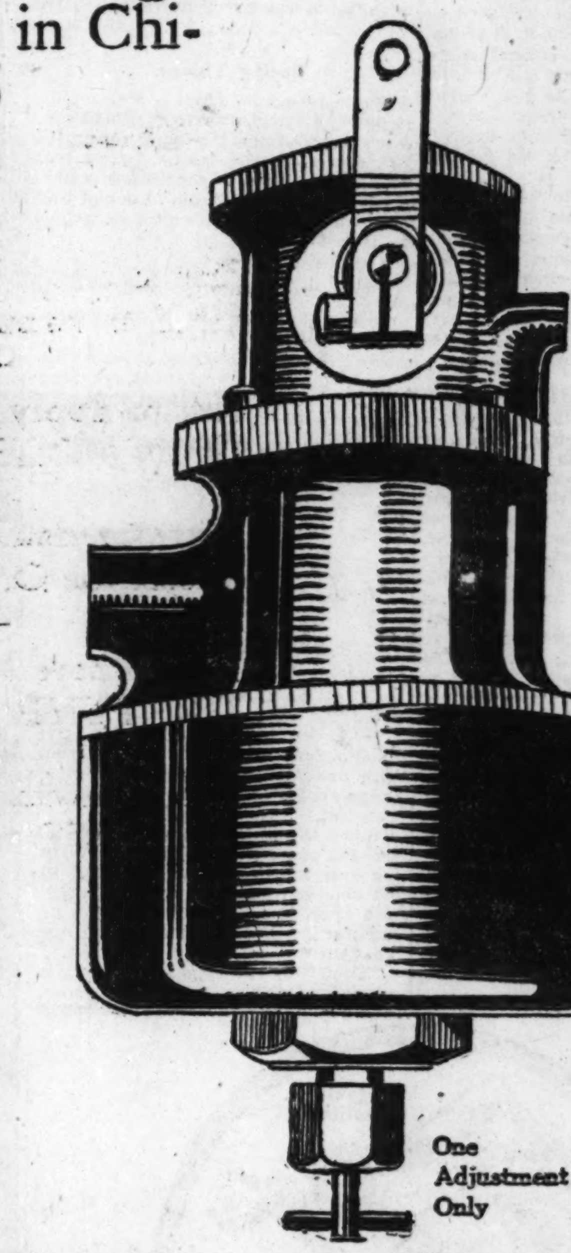
U. & J. Success Is Due to Performance That Exceeds Claims

50% More Mileage — More Power, "Pep," Smoothness

60,000 U. & J. CARBURETORS WERE SOLD LAST YEAR. This wonderful record speaks for itself. Even more remarkable is the fact that a year ago there were only five U. & J. dealers in Chicago—while now we have over 75 dealers in Chicago and suburbs, and the number constantly increasing.

U. & J. CARBURETOR

The revolutionary principle on which the U. & J. operates has led to the allegation that it was a "freak." So was the early automobile, motorcycle and aeroplane. As a matter of fact, the U. & J. is entirely different from all others. But, judged by results, it has earned the right to be known as THE SUPER-CARBURETOR, for it is showing the way to improvement in every function of carburetion.



Firmly Established with the Trade

150,000 drivers swear by the U. & J. Carburetor. Every one of them has proven that the U. & J. actually saves at least 50% on gasoline mileage over the carburetor they formerly used, for they could have returned it without question had it failed to do so. We have established U. & J. Agencies all over the world. All of them are authorized to make our to give 50% increase in mileage, as well as increasing power, speed and "pep" on your Ford, Dodge, Maxwell, Overland, Dort, Vim or other 4-cylinder car.

The U. & J. Carburetor can be installed in 30 minutes. Examine it at your nearest dealer, or write for descriptive literature.

There's a Touch of Tomorrow In All Cole Does Today

Era of Scientific Farming Calling for College Men

By Frank Ridgway.

HIGH school graduates who expect to enter college this fall are now busy with their plans for the coming year. Catalogues of the various universities and colleges have been scanned from cover to cover in an attempt to decide what course to take and what school to attend.

With some this has been a simple matter, for it was decided several years ago that they would study law, medicine, ministry, commerce, journalism, engineering, agriculture, or some other course, but with others it has been difficult to decide the business or profession they would like to follow. This is not an easy task, for it often means the choosing of one's career and deserves careful consideration.

Teachers of high schools say it is surprising to see so many students planning to enter the agricultural colleges this fall. It is believed that the teaching of agricultural courses in the high schools has had much to do with this. But a better reason, perhaps, is that the general public is beginning to thoroughly realize the great opportunities now open in the field of agriculture for both men and women. No profession or business offers better chances for advancement. Men and women are needed in all branches of agriculture, as well as other industries closely allied to it.

Not Enough Trained Men.

Searchlights in the field of agriculture are now being focused directly upon the economic phase of farming. Heretofore attention has been given to production, but now agriculturists are digging into the business side of the question.

Big business devlopments are now on foot in this broad, uncultivated field. Big men are going over into this new field, but the supply of trained, competent men is limited, and there is not enough to fill the places now open. More big men are needed, and most of them must come through the agricultural colleges before they are equipped to handle the work.

There is probably a greater shortage of men trained in agriculture than most any other line of work. So great has been the development in this field new avenues opening up in an attempt to solve the business side of farming as well as the production end of it, that agricultural colleges have been unable to turn men out fast enough to fill the new openings.

At the present rate of increase in demand for agricultural experts there will be an inadequate supply of men for years to come, educators believe. Men who are seriously interested in the work are urged to equip themselves for positions that now offer good salaries. This should encourage high school students from both the city and country to study agriculture.

Salaries Increased Everywhere.

"The demand for men trained in good colleges of agriculture is very much greater than the supply of men available at the present time," writes Dean F. B. Mumford, College of Agriculture, University of Missouri. "I have had requests for more than fifty men for teachers of agriculture in universities and colleges, investigators in experiment stations, workers in the United States department of agriculture, county agricultural agents, teachers of agriculture in high schools, agricultural experts for railroads and business concerns, and agricultural journalists.

"One reason for the scarcity of men is that a large number of our graduates are now going into practical agriculture and making money at farming. Salaries for the better county agents are from $3,000 to $4,000 a year. Men who go out as teachers of agriculture in high schools are receiving $2,000 the first year out of college. The salaries of professional workers in agriculture are being increased everywhere," he said.

Men are needed in all parts of the country, particularly the middle west. Some of the agricultural colleges graduate more than a hundred men every year, but there is always a long list of positions waiting, and many of them sign contracts a year before completing their school work.

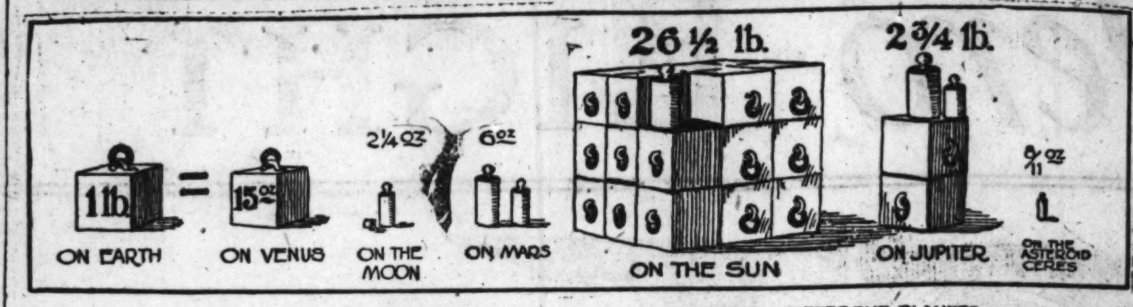
Teaching in High Schools Popular.

It is not necessary to go very far away from home to find out the need of more men trained in agriculture. Right here in Illinois industries are waiting for the degreed men in agriculture to step out of the state university. Their job is waiting for them.

"Practically all of our agricultural graduates are placed in fairly good positions before they finish," said A. W. Jamison, head of the agricultural extension work, University of Illinois. "The most popular thing at present, so far as salaries are concerned, is agricultural teaching in high schools. Large salaries are paid, and many of our strongest students take up the necessary work and are empoyed—in fact, eagerly sought after—by principals of the high schools of this and other states where agriculture is a rapidly growing subject.

"We have made a careful attempt from time to time to see what our students do after graduation and find that a large number of them actually go to work on farms," he added. "Those who do not usually get into some kind of work closely allied to this—either teaching, investigation, agricultural newspaper work, or county agent and extension work. The present year several of our best students have stepped out of college into positions of assistant county agents at good salaries and where they are able to utilize their knowledge at once and to a very good advantage."

ASTRONOMY



HOW THE SAME MASS WOULD CHANGE WEIGHT ON DIFFERENT PLANETS

BY S. F. MAXWELL

HOW MUCH DO YOU WEIGH?

HOW much do you weigh? Do you know that your weight is determined by the place you are in? You lose weight as you walk toward the south and gain it as you walk toward the north; you lose also whether you go upstairs or to the cellar. Your weight is greatest on the surface of the ground and would be greatest of all if you could stand on the north pole.

To be sure, the changes are slight and you cannot notice them without instruments. However, they are apparent enough to surveyors, engineers, and those who ship gold. The north and south changes are due to the earth's shape. The force of gravity acts from the earth's center, and you are thirteen miles nearer it at the pole than at the equator.

When you go upstairs or make a balloon trip you are farther away from the center of gravity than you were on the ground, and in consequence you weigh a little less.

When you descend into a mine the mass of rock above you pulls back on you—even though you are journeying toward the center of the earth — and makes you weigh less.

There is no force of gravity at the center of the earth itself, but only enormous pressure from every direction. These lines of pressure, continued backward, cause our familiar gravity that makes things fall.

If the earth were a hollow shell there would be no gravity on the inside and objects would stay "put" anywhere.

Every body has gravity in an amount directly proportional to its mass. The moon has only one-sixth the gravity the earth has. If you were on the moon and were to fall over one of the very numerous cliffs that are there your plunge would begin like a slow walk and gradually increase to the speed of a run, but it would be several seconds before you would be falling hard enough to hurt yourself. In the same way you could vault over an object the size of a house as easily as you vault over a fence on earth.

On Mars you would weigh more than you would on the moon, because Mars is a bigger world than our satellite, although much smaller than the earth. A pound on earth weighs but six ounces on Mars. At the same time your strength would be quite undiminished and you could easily drive a golf ball a mile there.

A few strong men can carry two and three-quarter times their own weight. Such men could just drag one foot after the other on Jupiter, supposing that Jupiter were possessed of a surface to stand on. Gravity there is that much stronger than it is here. In order to stand under the weight that such a world would impose an ordinary person would need to have his body braced with iron.

Braces or no braces, you could not even move on the sun. You could not even writhe like marine creatures when suddenly thrown upon the land. Every pound of you would register twenty-six and one-half pounds on the sun, and you could no more move under your own weight than can a miner crushed under tons of rock.

Out in space, you would have no weight at all, and if you turned your head you would spin round and round forever unless you turned your head the other way and stopped yourself.

C. E.: A telescope lens should be of a relatively low magnifying power and should be of large diameter. The front lens of a telescope is only to collect light. The small lenses at the eye perform the magnification.

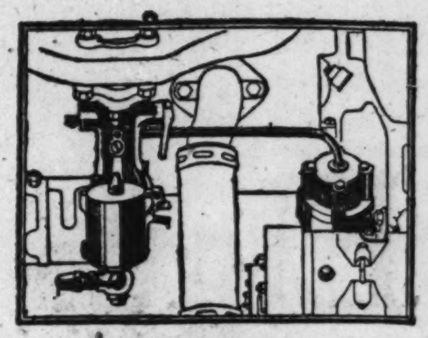
SAXON

Duplex engineering
—protection against burned-out bearings



Duplex Lubrication —another Saxon advantage

The conventional car goes half way in the matter of lubrication. At low speed, regardless of how much work is being done by the motor, the lubrication is scant. When the car is running fast, regardless of how little work the motor is performing, there is too much lubrication. How inconsistent this is!

When the everyday car is laboring through sand at 12 miles an hour in high gear, it is robbed of oil at the time it needs it most. Burned-out bearings sometimes result. Then when racing downhill, with very little work for the motor, there is too much lubrication, and the result is carbon on valves and spark plugs.

Saxon

Now consider what Duplex Engineering has accomplished in Saxon. Its patented Duplex Lubrication System is double, because in addition to the conventional control, which supplies oil according to speed, it also has an automatic vacuum control which supplies oil according to the motor's actual work. This patented double control enables Saxon to meet every lubrication demand.

This is one of the many patented developments which make "Duplex" the only word which accurately describes the Saxon of today. When you see these features in our showroom and hear them explained, you will realize why the Saxon is at least two years ahead of present standards.

Upon request we will gladly send you "Brass Tacks," an interesting and informative booklet containing the story of Duplex Engineering

Elgin Six Smashes Another Record

"Chicago's Own Car" celebrates opening of big new sales and service buildings by passing all competition for July sales in Chicago.

During the month of July Elgin Sixes to the value of $394,000.00 were sold and delivered from a little 25-foot store on Michigan Avenue.

So far as I am able to learn, this is the largest volume of business done in July by any car-selling organization in Chicago in the Elgin price class.

During the four months ending August 1st, $1,500,000 worth of Elgin Sixes were sold from the same store.

These records were merely on business done by our Chicago Distributor. We have approximately 600 other Distributors and Dealers throughout the United States, in addition to our foreign connections.

Unsurpassed Four Year Record

Only a superior car could have jumped from an "unknown" four years ago to absolute leadership in a highly competitive territory like Chicago, where every car manufacturer in the country puts forth his best selling effort.

Car-Buying Chicago is paying a merited tribute to this Chicago-made car by beating a path to the Elgin Six door, because they have learned from Elgin owners that here is a stylish, smooth-running, easy-riding, quality car at a moderate price. They have proven to themselves that the Elgin Six, with a record for performance, endurance and economy never equaled in its price class, is the biggest value on the market today.

Elgin Six Always a Winner

Elgin Six owners regard their cars as the embodiment of life and eager enthusiasm, rather than mere assemblies of metal, wood and leather. Its unbroken series of victories in every stock car race, endurance run and economy contest during the past four years proves that we have succeeded in building into this handsome Motor Thoroughbred the true Chicago "I Will" spirit.

When you buy an Elgin Six you do not have to pay freight in addition to the purchase price, because the Elgin Six is manufactured in Chicago.

Old Sales Quarters Outgrown

Having outgrown the former sales headquarters, Elgin Sixes will hereafter be sold in Chicago in the splendid new Elgin Six Building at 2323 Michigan Avenue, a large, perfectly appointed building of distinctive design, providing an atmosphere in keeping with the excellence of the Elgin product.

Immediately east of their Sales Building, just across the alley and facing on Indiana Avenue, is their big, new, three-story Service Building, one of the finest in Chicago. It contains every modern facility for the quick and efficient handling of service work for owners of Elgin Sixes.

Here is furnished the famous Elgin Golden Rule Service—that is, rendering unto Elgin Six owners the same Cheerful, Unstinted Service that we ourselves would like to receive.

Largest Stock of Parts in Chicago

There is on hand at all times in Chicago more than $1,500,000 worth of parts for Elgin Sixes—the largest stock of parts for quick service ever carried in this city.

These fine buildings, valued at approximately $250,000.00 and containing 36,000 square feet of floor space, have been provided for the comfort, convenience and service of Elgin Six owners in Chicago.

We are proud to add these splendid buildings to further Chicago's improvement and growth, and cordially invite you to inspect them and view "Chicago's Own Car" in its several models.

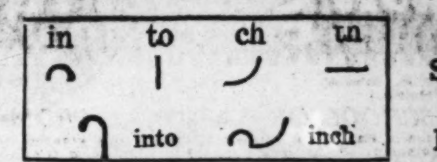
Boyd Shorthand

No Dots, Shading or Position



Best for Secretaries and Reporters

Signs represent syllables. Five vowels—a, e, i, o and u—build about one-half the words. 112 syllables make all words. Write "chin" and "thin." Note how often "th" occurs in reading. Graduate in THIRTY DAYS, 150 hours' study. Typewriting is extra.

"Since May, 1918, I have been teaching Boyd Shorthand with very good results—not one failure. One of my students, a young man attending Marquette University, is taking all of his law notes in Boyd and has no difficulty whatever in reading back the perplexing law terms long after his 'notes are cold.' He states that other students in his class use other systems of shorthand and find it impossible to read their notes immediately after recitation."
MISS KELLY'S SCHOOL OF STENOGRAPHY, 85 Oneida St., Milwaukee, Wis.

If 100 people studied Boyd Shorthand for three hours, and then studied another method for three hours, every one of the 100 would take the Boyd System. Not to do so would be like geting off a parlor car and taking an ox-cart in travel. If you do not investigate you make no progress. If you do not progress, you are in good shape to be enslaved into studying from six months to a year an antiquated shorthand rehashed under various names. The longer the time the more profit to the school on a monthly tuition, but what about the pupil?

Our textbooks are standard and complete. The BOYD SHORTHAND INSTRUCTOR is for study, the BOYD LETTER WRITER is for speed practice, and the BOYD SHORTHAND DICTIONARY is for reference. Sent prepaid to any address for $1.50 each. Day and Evening Classes. Catalog on request.

The Columbia School of Music offers an excellent training and assists its graduates to secure these places through the School Employment Bureau. The course includes thorough and practical work in Elementary Teaching and Advanced Pedagogy by means of a comprehensive course of lectures on Psychology and Teaching as well as practical lessons on teaching both class and private as it applies to children's work. Classes are also held in History of Music, Dalcroze and Harmony. A novel feature of this course is the Model Practice School. In this school are more than two hundred children receiving instruction in Ear-Training, Sight Reading, Preliminary Harmony, Technic and Dalcroze Eurythmics, under the direction of a Faculty teacher. Every Woman Loves this Car Alive, modern and superb, with all the ease and splendid poise that charming women prize, the Jordan Brougham glides through the traffic press.

Quick to respond, unfailing to inspire, there is within the smart compass of this fascinating car, a prophecy of days that are to come.

Men, to whom the world is never dull, turn on their heel to pay the fleeting tribute of a glance to this trig, tailor-made, bewitching thing.

A face within, vivid and rare, with lovely ardor, smacking of the great outdoors, reveals a woman's pride of possession and strength of command, impossible to express.

Light, eager and ever poised to go, this nimble vehicle of economy and power, sweeps forward with the vanguard at the bluecoat's whistle.

It's a five passenger with all aluminum body, hammock-swung between the axles for comfort, with long springs; cushioned against shock by the patented Crane-Simplex Velvet Shackle.

Virtually dust and rattle-proof, with broad vision—yet it may be opened so as to be practically out-of-doors.

Under the steering wheel a woman finds extra clearance, which allows for that low-sitting, easy attitude, so desired by those who value motor car poise.

The metal appointments in white silver—the very latest thing, as all women of good taste already know.

No longer do careful buyers feel the necessity to pay a high price for a car to realize that real economy that comes with long time service and proven reliability.

Women of refinement and culture know that the trend of present day thought is toward lasting things that are built upon the fundamental principles of service and economy.

Come into our salesroom—open the door and step into the clean, comfortable interior of this charming Jordan Brougham. The rarest, imported worsteds comprise its attractive upholstery, with every convenience, and appointment of delicacy and charm.

It's the daily companion of thousands of modern American men and women who must choose wisely as they are always imitated.

Phone us, if you choose, and we'll send a car to you. Or, telephone that you are coming in.

THERE IS A

Great Shortage of Flats.

This is a blessing in disguise, because it has forced rent payers to own their own home.

We have many substantial 8 and 10 room brick and frame houses in the territory near Washington and Jackson parks, along the lake and convenient to the I. C. through and local trains. The best territory in Chicago. Still available at pre-war prices, and on very easy terms.

Many of these houses can be had at almost land value, and a few hundred dollars would put them in good shape.

See us for interesting facts and figures.

VACANT—SOUTH SIDE.

WE ANTICIPATE A BUILDing Boom Early in 1921.

Our advice to builders and operators would be to select your lot now. The advanced prices have not yet reached vacant. There are many choice plots available for Hotel, Apartment Hotel, Residence and Business buildings at pre-war prices. We think the territory adjacent to Washington and Jackson Parks, along the Lake and convenient to the Illinois Central local and through service, is the best in Chicago for many obvious reasons.

See us for interesting data, plans and figures.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE.

VACANT—SOUTH SIDE.

WE HAVE PASSED INTO A NEW DAY.

For 25 years Chicago Real Estate was the cheapest commodity in the world. Improved income Chicago real estate is now selling at about what it is worth—in a few cases, a trifle more than it is worth. Many forehanded owners of income property have taken this opportunity to sell. These investors are now back in the market picking up choice ripe vacant plots for improvement early in 1921. We would advise operators and builders to sell their improved holdings now at a profit, and put the money in vacant, which can still be had at prewar prices, and on which a certain profit may also be taken.

See us for interesting figures, data, and plans.

RIDGE PROPERTY SALE.
For Sale—Beautiful building lots on the Ridge at Beverly Hills and Morgan Park, at sacrifice prices. Lots 50x200 feet, as low as $595 per lot; $50 cash and $15 per month. A special sale is being held on the property today and our salesmen are now on the ground. We invite you to look this property over TODAY. Come at our expense.

Take any suburban train on the Rock Island to 119th-st. and walk three blocks west to our big tent on the ground. Or, take Halsted electric line on Halsted and Vincennes to 119th-st. and walk west to property. Or, come by auto. Good boulevard all the way.

Your Future Home Site.
There is none better. Just get a tape line and measure off 50x200 feet and see what a wonderful lot you will have. It's a lot where you can have YOUR home. Do you get THAT? Not Mr. Landlord's home, where he walks around each month with his "due bill" for next month's rent. But YOUR HOME, where the rents are not boosted every six months at the whim of your grasping landlord.

Be Independent.
Start to own your own lot today, Aug. 15. Let this day be your "Independence Day." So we say again, Come to our property TODAY. We will guarantee you fair treatment and an honest deal. Get there early. Our salesmen will meet you on the ground and refund all railroad or street car fare.

BUICK PRICES

New prices are about to be announced on Buick cars.

The increased costs of the new models will inevitably force increased valuations on used Buicks.

A complete canvass of Buick dealers shows that the higher valuations are already effective in most instances.

Hence our present price schedule on used Buicks will automatically terminate with the sale of such Buicks as we now have on hand.

Take advantage of this fact and buy your rebuilt guaranteed Buicks from us now.

You will save at least $100 by doing so.

TEMPLAR

The Superfine Small Car
A Real Automobile

The highest grade small car.
The lowest priced high grade car.
350 in daily use, yet not one is in the repair shop, and one man does the service work on them all.
The car that broke the record from New York to Chicago, and from New York to Los Angeles. Both official, honest records; but one car was used.
The car that won the "rim of the world" contest, averaging 32½ miles to the gallon of gasoline.
Not a single owner has ever paid a dollar for repair due to the fault of the car, yet there are cars in our territory which have run over 50,000 miles.
There are more Templar cars being sold daily than of any other high grade car in Chicago. Why? Because the quality is the best, with economy thrown in for good measure.
Quality, class, economy. Try to find those three features in any other car. You will find two of them in some, but not all three in one. Come in and see for yourself, and take a demonstration. Price $2,885 from our factory at Cleveland. A few immediate deliveries.
